2. (C) Section II, Lessons Learned, Commander's Observations, Evaluation, and Recommendations:

a. Personnel: None.

b. Operations:

(1) Construction or Improvement of Howitzer Parapet Floors:

(a) Observation: Much of the fill used for construction of parapet floors is unsuitable. During periods of heavy rain, surface forms a layer of slippery mud resulting in poor footing and difficulty in maintaining clean equipment and ammunition. Surface water does not readily drain off unless a system of culverts or ditches is constantly maintained. The replacement of these types of fill with sand eliminates many of these problems. During heavy rain, the sand retains a firm footing and surface water will run off rapidly. This works particularly well with a gravel base under the sand.

(b) Evaluation: The use of sand in the gun pit results in safer working conditions and improved maintenance and cleanliness of equipment and ammunition.

CONFIDENTIAL

AVGAR-C

SUBJECT: Operational Report of 5th Battalion, 42d Artillery for Period Ending 31 July 1969, RCS CFP01-65 (3)

(c) Recommendation: Sand and gravel should be used in construction of parapet floors when available.

(2) Battery Life:

(a) Observation: Life expectancy of lead-acid batteries used as radio power supplies can be increased by using them in such a manner that they are neither completely discharged nor overcharged. The preferable type is 12 volt used in the 2½ ton or 5 ton multifuel trucks. Two of these batteries supplying two VRC-12 series FM radios will work well with a 0.5 KW or 1.5 KW D.C. generator on a cycle of 15 to 20 minutes of charge every 2½ to 3 hours. This cycle will conserve both generator and batteries. The cycle can be varied depending on size of batteries and amount of transmitting in a given time block.

(b) Evaluation: Battery life can be extended by the simple expedient of limiting charge to short periods and use between charges to 2½ to 3 hours.

(c) Recommendation: That battery charging be conducted on a timed schedule rather than continuous charging or waiting for the battery to run down between charges.

(3) Night Lighting Device for Gunners:

(a) Observation: Since the majority of artillery firing occurs during the hours of darkness flashlights must be used in large numbers. A problem is presented when the crewman must hold the light and work with one hand. The ammo handlers are handicapped by having to hold a flashlight while selecting proper lots of fuzes to be fired.

(b) Evaluation: Speed and efficiency would be greatly increased if some sort of lighting device could be developed that would free the use of both hands while working at night. This type of lighting device would also reduce the number of accidents caused by improper lighting.

(c) Recommendation: Recommend that a light be developed similar to those used by miners. This light should be designed for placement on the steel helmet.

5. Training and Organization: None.

6. Intelligence: None.

7. Logistics: None.
f. Other:

(1) Prevention of skin diseases:

(a) Observation: During the past several months we have had a number of personnel develop serious skin rashes, which were treated with many medications without success. The rashes became infected and caused a loss in non hours.

(b) Evaluation: The rash was caused and sustained due to perspiration and lack of circulation of air under clothing, particularly under the arms and around the legs of the individuals.

(c) Recommendation: That all individuals be encouraged to wear shorts and sandals during off duty hours or whenever possible in order to prevent rashes from occurring.

DA, HEADQUARTERS, 54TH FIELD ARTILLERY GROUP, APO 96491 20 August 1969

TO: Commanding General, II Field Force Vietnam Artillery, ATTN: AVFB-FAC, APO 96266

1. (U) This headquarters has reviewed the Quarterly Operations Report - Lessons Learned from the 5th Battalion, 42d Field Artillery and considers that it adequately reflects the operations and lessons learned during the reporting period.

2. (C) Reference Section II para b(1), Construction or Improvement of Howitzer Parapet Floors. The 54th Field Artillery Group concurs. The use of sand in the gun pit with a gravel base will eliminate many safety hazards for personnel in the operation required in artillery firing of a 155mm Towed Howitzer plus improving the maintenance of equipment and ammunition, especially during the rainy season.
