(2) During the reporting period a Battalion Command Net was established. Due to the relatively fixed positions of Battalion units, this net is intended primarily for use within and around the Cam Ranh Peninsula.

(3) The battalion became a unit member of the Joint Defense Operations Command (JDOC) peninsula ground defense net.

g. Logistics:

(1) Total equipment mileage during the reporting period was 479,669 miles.

(2) Major shortages are in communications equipment. Major items of shortage are radios - AN/PRT 4, AN/PRR 9, AN/PAC 25 and -12 series.

b. Operations.

(1) Aviation Support:

(a) Observation: The dispersion of subordinate units requires dedicated aviation support for command and control purposes, visual route reconnaissance and timely response for police and investigative assistance.

(b) Evaluation: The distances and road conditions to isolated areas preclude frequent visits for command and control purposes. A lone vehicle cannot travel to these isolated areas and must either be attached to one of the infrequent convoys travelling to the desired area or additional personnel and vehicles organic to this unit must provide necessary security. The resulting use of vehicles and personnel lessens the unit's ability to meet commitments of priority missions.

(c) Recommendation: That one rotary wing aircraft (HUID) be dedicated daily for operational commitments of this battalion.

(2) XM 706 Exhaust Deflector:

(a) Observation: During range firing of the M-73 machine guns mounted on the XM-706 Armored Car, it was discovered that the guns could not be fired to the rear when the guns were fully depressed because of an obstruction caused by the exhaust deflector.

(b) Evaluation: The metal exhaust deflector which extends approximately five inches above the hull of the car, and serves to deflect vehicle exhaust fumes upward, created the obstruction. Removal of the deflector, accomplished by removing four bolts from the exhaust grillwork, eliminated the obstruction. Use of the vehicles with the deflectors removed has shown that there is no danger of exhaust fumes being drawn into the crew compartment.

(c) Recommendation: That metal exhaust deflectors be removed from XM-706 Armored Cars.

(3) XM-706 Armored Car Weapon Racks:

(a) Observation: Weapon racks in the XM-706 Armored Car will not accept the M-16 rifle.

(b) Evaluation: Weapon racks located within the XM-706, except the single rack located horizontally on the engine firewall next to the rear hatch, have insufficient clearance for the length of the M-16 rifle. The racks are designed for M-1 carbines.

(c) Recommendation: That crews of XM-706 Armored Cars be issued CAR-15 rifles with collapsible stocks.

1. (U) The Operational Report - Lessons Learned for the Quarterly
Period Ending 31 July 1969, for the 97th Military Police Battalion, APO 96312, is submitted.

2. (U) This command considers the report adequate. The following comments refer to parts of the report as indicated:

a. Section 2, paragraph b(1): Concur. The mission and dispersion of a military police battalion deployed in support of a land area in excess of 20,000 miles makes the dedication of appropriate (UHID) aircraft mandatory. This particular battalion provides area military police support to the southern portion of the largest Corps Tactical Zone in South Vietnam with subordinate elements deployed at eight widely scattered locations. Dedicated air support is absolutely essential to allow the commander and his staff the opportunity to effectively supervise operations.

b. Section 2, paragraph b(2): Concur with the observation; nonconcur with the evaluation and recommendation concerned. The problem is not solved by removing parts from the vehicle, since the M-73 machine guns, when fully depressed and pointed over the back of the vehicle, are aimed directly at the engine compartment itself.
Development of either some sort of vertical stop, or installation of a traversing bar or rack is recommended.

c. Section 3, paragraph b(3): Concur. Maneuver room inside the XM706 (V-100) armored car is insufficient to allow employment of bulky weapons. M-14's are completely impractical, and will not fit in the racks provided. M-16's are better, and the racks can be modified to accept the weapons. Nevertheless, the new CAR-15 rifle, now available in limited quantities, appears to be ideally suited for crews of all types of armored vehicles, including the XM706.

TO: Commanding General, United States Army Vietnam, ATTN: AVHGC-DST,

1. (U) The report with 1st Indorsement has been reviewed and is considered adequate as modified below.
2. (U) Reference item concerning possible security violation, paragraph 1d (3), basic correspondence. Originally, a CEOI item was thought to have been lost. Immediate investigation, however, revealed that the item in question had been merely misplaced, and that there had been no compromise of classified information. A complete investigation was conducted, reports forwarded, and appropriate disciplinary action administered to personnel involved. At the time of this incident, units were issuing complete CEOI booklets; this practice has been discontinued and military police patrols now receive only an extract of applicable CEOI items. This headquarters has reviewed the case in question, and the investigation and corrective actions are considered adequate.
3. (U) Reference item concerning rotary-wing aircraft support, paragraph 2b (1), page 7, basic correspondence and paragraph 2a, 1st Indorsement: Concur. A recommendation that a rotary-wing aircraft section be assigned at military police brigade headquarters has been submitted to Headquarters, USARV, and will be included in the next revision of MTOE 19-262G for Headquarters, 18th Military Police Brigade. As an interim measure, continued use should be made of aircraft support available through local coordination.
4. (U) Reference item concerning the XM-706 exhaust deflector, paragraph 2b (2), page 7, basic correspondence and paragraph 2b, 1st Indorsement: Non-concur. When fully depressed, the machine guns in question will fire upon various parts of the vehicle and upon other crewmen. This problem cannot be solved by removing exhaust deflectors. A deck clearance cam for manually operated turrets, and a cam operated deck clearance valve for power turrets, are available from Cadillac Gage Corporation, manufacturer of the XM-706. However, the XM-706 was accepted by the Army without these devices. Recommend that these safety devices be accepted, included in future XM-706 shipments, and made available to all units currently employing this vehicle.
5. (U) Reference item concerning individual weapons for XM-706 crews, paragraph 2b (3), page 7, basic correspondence and paragraph 2c, 1st Indorsement: Concur. Due to the extremely confined nature of the XM-706 fighting compartment, the M-16 rifle is impractical for crew use. Recommend that sufficient quantities of the CAR-15 be made available for acceptance in lieu of the M-16 on a basis of four per XM-706 authorized.

1. This headquarters has reviewed the Operational Report-Lessons Learned for the quarterly period ending 31 July 1969 from Headquarters, 97th Military Police Battalion.

2. Comments follow:

a. Reference item concerning "Aviation Support", section II, page 7, paragraph 2b(1); nonconcur. Direct support aircraft for II Corps MP units can be obtained by submitting aircraft requirements with justifications through the 16th Military Police Group to Headquarters, I FFV. No further action by USARPAC or DA is required.

b. Reference item concerning "XM-706 Exhaust Deflector", section II, page 7, paragraph 2b(2) and 2d Indorsement, paragraph 4; concur. The requirement for a deck clearance device will be included in the forthcoming vehicle suitability report to AMC and TACOM. Recommend that AMC take action to provide this safety device on all future XM-706's shipped to RVN and that modification kits be provided for installation on vehicles currently in RVN.

c. Reference item concerning "XM-706 Armored Car Weapon Racks", section II, page 7, paragraph 2b(3); concur. The CAR-15 rifle is no longer being procured and will not be issued in the future to units in RVN.
