THE CHINA-AFRICA CONNECTION:
IMPLICATIONS FOR UNITED STATES FOREIGN POLICY

by

Bernadette M. Semple

June 1992

Thesis Advisor: Claude Buss

Approved for public release; distribution is unlimited.
Over the past 40 years the central theme and organizing principle of global political, military and economic existence has been the East-West conflict. Now with the ending of the Cold War and international economic restructuring, the primary global struggle may very well be transformed into a North-South Conflict. This thesis examines the role of the Peoples Republic of China in Third World affairs and the use of its self-proclaimed "Third World Leader" posture as a mechanism for achieving its own goal of becoming a full-fledged global power by the 21st century. In particular the thesis focuses on China-Africa relations. China views the prospect of a "New World Order" as a threat to the interests of the Third World. Consequently China has embarked upon a diplomatic offensive designed to strengthen political, economic and strategic relations with Africa as well as other Third World nations. With nation states and politico-economic alliances changing faster than many could imagine the PRC-Third World relations deserve focus and attention.
China–African Connection: Implications for United States Foreign Policy

by

Bernadette Marie Semple
Lieutenant, United States Navy
BA, College of the Holy Cross, 1982

Submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of

MASTER OF ARTS IN NATIONAL SECURITY AFFAIRS

From the

NAVAL POSTGRADUATE SCHOOL
June 1992

Author: Bernadette M. Semple

Approved by: Claude Buss
Claude Buss, Thesis Advisor

David Winterford
David Winterford, Second Reader

Thomas Bruneau, Chairman
Department of National Security Affairs
ABSTRACT

Over the past 40 years the central theme and organizing principle of global political, military and economic existence has been the East-West conflict. Now with the ending of the Cold War and international economic restructuring, the primary global struggle may very well be transformed into a North-South Conflict. This thesis examines the role of the Peoples Republic of China in Third World affairs and the use of its self-proclaimed "Third World Leader" posture as a mechanism for achieving its own goal of becoming a full-fledged global power by the 21st century. In particular the thesis focuses on China-Africa relations. China views the prospect of a "New World Order" as a threat to the interests of the Third World. Consequently China has embarked upon a diplomatic offensive designed to strengthen political, economic and strategic relations with Africa as well as other Third World nations. With nation states and politico-economic alliances changing faster than many could imagine the PRC-Third World relations especially PRC-African relations deserve focus and attention.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION

A. GENESIS AND GROWTH OF SINO-AFRICAN RELATIONS

B. TANZANIA-ZAMBIA RAILWAY (TAN-ZAM) A CASE STUDY IN COOPERATION

II. CHINA'S FOREIGN POLICY OBJECTIVES IN AFRICA 1949-1989

A. "LEAN ON ONE SIDE" 1949-1952

B. THE BANDUNG CONFERENCE AND THE AFRO-ASIAN ALLIANCE 1953-1959

1. Non-Aligned Conference of Afro-Asian Nations (Bandung)

2. The Legacy of Bandung

3. The Suez Crisis, 1956

4. Afro-Asian Solidarity Council (AAPSO)

C. UNITED FRONT STRATEGY AND THE SINO-SOVIET RIFT 1958-1965

1. Zhou En-Lai and the United Front Strategy

D. CULTURAL REVOLUTION AND ISOLATIONISM (1966-1969)

E. 1970-1979—CHINA'S REEMERGENCE IN AFRICA

1. Economic Aid

2. Diplomatic Relations

3. Arms Transfers

1. Peace and Independence
2. Emergence of Four Principles .....................................................44
3. Third World Position .................................................................46

G. SUMMARY .................................................................................47

III. CONTEMPORARY SINO-AFRICAN FOREIGN POLICY .............51

A. THE EFFECTS OF THE ENDING COLD WAR ON SINO-
AFRICAN RELATIONS ...............................................................51

B. THE EFFECTS OF THE GULF WAR ON SINO-AFRICAN RELATIONS .................................................................................52

C. CHINA AND THE NEW WORLD ORDER ....................................57
   1. Diplomatic Offensive .............................................................59
   2. Arms Sales ............................................................................61

D. SINO-AFRICAN RELATIONS AND NORTH-SOUTH
CONFLICT SINCE 1990 ...............................................................63

E. NEW CHINESE LEADERSHIP ...................................................67

IV. IMPLICATIONS FOR U.S. FOREIGN POLICY ..........................69

A. U.S. FOREIGN POLICY AND INTERESTS IN AFRICA ..........71

B. THE PUSH FOR DEMOCRACY ..................................................76

C. EFFECT OF CHINESE INITIATIVES ON U.S. FOREIGN POLICY ....78

D. THE ROLE OF THE UNITED NATIONS ....................................82

E. RECOMMENDATIONS ...............................................................83
   1. What is in the Best Interest of Africa .......................................83
   2. What is in the Best Interest of China? .....................................85
   3. What is in the Best Interests of the United States? .................86
APPENDIX A. TIME LINE 1949-1992 ................................................................. 90
BIBLIOGRAPHY ............................................................................................... 113
INITIAL DISTRIBUTION LIST ......................................................................... 123
I. INTRODUCTION

With the ending of the Cold War and the disintegration of what was once the Soviet Union, the world is entering a phase of restructuring in international relations. At the forefront is the United States, asserting its role as the dominant player, ushering in what President George Bush has proclaimed to be "The New World Order." It is a new world order that is in essence an international economic order based on democracy and a capitalistic global "free market" economy. Consequently, world events over the last two years have delineated the power centers of a world economy dominated by three competitors—the United States, Japan and the European Community (EC)—each with its own spheres of influence, special interests and special relationships in the Third World.

Left out of this tripolar competition is the Third World, or Developing Nations. China, (which considers itself the leader of the Third World nations) contends that this "new world order" is merely a code word for U.S. hegemony designed to attain an undisputed capacity to set the global agenda on international political issues and facilitate exploitation of the Third World.¹

Over the past 10 years the central theme and organizing principle of global political, military and economic existence has been the East-West conflict. Now, with the collapse of Soviet Union and international economic restructuring the primary global struggle may well be transformed into a North-South conflict. Clearly China views the New World Order as a threat to the interests of the Third World. With nation states and politico-economic alliances changing faster than many had ever imagined, PRC-Third World relations, especially PRC-African relations, deserve focused attention and consideration.

---

Africa is a complex, struggling and unstable region. However, there may be light at the end of the tunnel. In the past year several one-party rulers were toppled. Africa is slowly moving toward democratization. While Africa should not treated as a single entity chiefly because it is one continental land mass, it is imperative that one recognize that there are over 50 diverse states rich in natural resources. The strengthening of political, economic and strategic relations with Africa as well as with other developing Third World nations is a heady challenge to contemporary Chinese leadership. More importantly, Chinese leadership among the African nations could strain North-South relations and could provide China with the support it needs to become a power broker on such international and regional issues as arms control and regional conflicts.

The purpose of this thesis is to examine the role of the People's Republic of China in Third World affairs and the use of its self-proclaimed "Third World leader" posture as a mechanism for achieving its own goal of becoming a fully fledged global power by the 21st Century. Utilizing a regional approach I have limited my focus to Africa.2

The central hypothesis is that China perceives itself to be the de facto leader of the Third World. As such, the PRC will seek to utilize its leadership position in order to emerge ultimately as a truly global power capable of challenging “Western Supremacy” and thus play a significant role in defining the “New World Order.” At the outset the genesis and evolution of Sino-African relations will be examined. The relative depth of China’s politico-economic interests on the African continent will be carefully scrutinized. The question will be asked whether the PRC has a genuine ideological interest concerning African development or is PRC concern only part of an agenda designed to coopt Third World nations into developing a New United Front Strategy?

Chapter I examines the mutual interests of China and Africa. It explains feelings of sympathy and reciprocity and uses the Tan-Zam as a case study in the implementation of their respective policies.

Chapter II concentrates on the specific historical, ideological, and geopolitical motives behind the policies pursued by various governments from of Zhou En-Lai through Li Peng (1949-1989). The differences are noted between rhetorical pronouncements and pragmatic compromises. For convenience, the development of Chinese policies is divided into chronological periods: 1949-1952, 1953-1957, 1958-1965, 1966-1969, 1970-1976, and 1977-1989. Within each period, attention will be drawn to the political, economic, military/strategic and ideological concepts involved in the formulation of China's African foreign policy.

2Africa, although the term in U.S. foreign policy denotes subsaharan Africa, for Chinese foreign policy objectives North Africa will also be included in this study (Algeria, Egypt, Libya, Morocco and Tunisia).

Chapter III examines contemporary Sino-African foreign policy, 1990-present, as affected by the end of the Cold War, the Gulf War and disintegration of the Soviet Union. These are the key elements in formulating the still vaguely defined “New World Order” and in shaping the Chinese reactions. In a broader fashion, the chapter will examine the goals and objectives of China with respect to the South Commission or Group of 77. The question will be asked whether a new Chinese leadership would be more progressive, or perhaps more reactionary, in the implementation of current policies.

Chapter IV addresses the problems that American policy makers face in dealing with Sino-African relations. Historically, U.S. foreign policy towards Africa has been defined in terms of the East-West conflict. Now that the Cold War is over and the Soviet Union and China no longer constitute an ideological monolith, the U.S. must revamp its foreign policy towards Africa. Clearly Africa is conflict-prone. Many of the conflicts are a result of the colonial past with many states seeking autonomy. Consequently some very real political and economic transitions are beginning to take shape that may have far-reaching consequences. It is quite possible that China believes African nations distrustful of the West will seek assistance in economic development and technological knowledge from Asian countries, including China. The thesis concludes addressing the effects of various Chinese-African scenarios on the policies of the United States after examination of different possible alternatives. Recommendations are suggested for policies that may be in the best interests for Africa, for China, and for the United States.

---

A. GENESIS AND GROWTH OF SINO-AFRICAN RELATIONS

Some experts contend that Africa does not in fact matter very much to China. For example,

It is hard to make a case that Africa matters very much to China. The 45-odd countries of the continent constitute roughly a quarter of all U.N. members and something like a half of all developing states, but they count for little in the overall scheme of Chinese foreign policy objectives.\textsuperscript{4}

However, the fact remains that China and Africa have deeply rooted historical, social and economic ties dating back as early as the First Century B.C. and reinforced by three major factors: race, colonialism and under-development. However, the historical background of relations mattered very little to China until the Cold War, which followed in the aftermath of World War II.

China's interests—its objectives, motivations, and aspirations—have only recently been aroused by the actions of the United States and the former Soviet Union. To assist in understanding the recent development of Sino-African relations, Appendix A contains a time line that begins in 1949 and ends in 1992.

Before the accession of the communists to power in Beijing the contacts between the Chinese and Africans could be characterized as somewhat remarkable in the sense that although there was significant commercial, technical and nautical exchanges, the Chinese confined themselves to East Africa without attempt or intention to impose influence on the life and destinies of the population. The conduct of the early Chinese can only be fully appreciated when contrasted to the persistent barbarism and exploitive practices of the Egyptians, Phoenicians, Arabs, Persians and subsequent colonial/racist policies of the European powers.5

After 1949, considerations of the Third World have been basic to China's foreign policy objectives. For reasons both of ideology and national interest, Africa became the primary component of that Third World policy and held preeminent importance. Africa symbolized the ongoing revolutionary struggle against capitalism and imperialism. Then, China's support for several African states on the quest for self-determination provided instant credibility in the region against "American Imperialism and Soviet Revisionism." Finally, China, in turn, has received the support and recognition of African states.6 This special reciprocity is best illustrated by the support of African nations during the U.N. vote in which the PRC displaced Taiwan as "China," in exchange for Chinese subsequent willingness to undertake the building of the Tan-Zam Railway.

Specific Sino-African relations expanded within the global framework of anti-imperialism and national development in the years before 1974. The world witnessed a great anticolonial movement that impacted on China which was still striving against its colonial period. The number of African states in the United Nations grew from eight in 1959 to 42 in 1974. During these same years both Taiwan and Beijing courted recognition from African states. By 1971, Taiwan had begun normal diplomatic relations with three African nations; Beijing with 26. It was at that juncture that a substantial African vote supported the successful effort of the PRC to again its seat in the United Nations.7

B. TANZANIA-ZAMBIA RAILWAY (TAN-ZAM) A CASE STUDY IN COOPERATION

A consummate watershed event in Sino-African relations was the extraordinary financial commitment undertaken by China in building the Tanzania-Zambia Railway. The Tan-Zam Railway was unquestionably the most important single foreign aid project undertaken to date by the Chinese. The $400 million, 25-year no interest loan more than doubled its commitment to the region. Adding even greater significance to the undertaking was that the project commenced in 1965 which was at the onset of the Cultural Revolution. Committing itself to a vast project despite a paucity of resources not only enhanced China's credibility but produced political gains in the region and international arena.8

8Yu, op. cit., p. 125.
Perhaps even more significant was that the Chinese built the railway when no one else in the world would. The conception of the railway was born in the British colonial era. Zambia, which gained its independence in 1964, was land-locked between what was then Southern Rhodesia and the Portuguese-controlled Mozambiquan port of Beira. By having a rail link between the Zambia copper belt to Tanzanian port of Dar es Salaam, Zambia would be able to achieve a greater degree of political and economic freedom from then White-ruled Rhodesia and Mozambique.

President Julius Nyerere (Tanzania) and President Kenneth Kaunda (Zambia) sought support for the project from the West and the British/U.S.-dominated World Bank. They were turned down with the explanation that the railway served "no economic benefit." President Nyerere stated:

It was not as if we had alternate proposals, we should indeed welcome Western offers, but the only firm offer we had was from China.

China's proposal was accepted immediately by Tanzania. After Zhou En-Lai's 1965 visit to the Tanzanian capital of Dar es Salaam, a 12-man survey team arrived to conduct an engineering survey at the request of President Nyerere. Zambia's full commitment did not come until 1967 after President Kaunda's visit to Beijing.

---

9Ibid., p. 127 and Snow, op. cit., p. 151.

10Snow, op. cit. p. 151.

12Ibid.
The contracts were signed on September 5, 1967 in Beijing by Fang Yi, (Minister of Economic Relations) and the finance ministers of Tanzania and Zambia. Two more rounds of talks followed, to work out the technical aspects of the projects, in Dar es Salaam (1968) and Lusaka (1969). The final agreement was signed in Beijing on July 12, 1970.\textsuperscript{13}

The construction of the Tan-Zam Railway (named Tazara) commenced immediately following inauguration ceremonies of the rail link on October 12, 1970. Chinese engineers and construction workers along with Tanzanian trainees began laying railway on the outskirts of Dar es Salaam. Two years later, on August 25, 1973, the Tanzanian portion of Tazara was complete and the Zambia construction began. In September 1975, Tazara was complete, two years ahead of schedule and much to the chagrin of skeptics.

Tazara was a massive project. "It was the longest railway in Africa and the longest railway complete anywhere on the planet since the end of the Second World War."\textsuperscript{14} The Chinese-Tanzanian-Zambian workforce (see Table 1) built 300 bridges, six miles of tunnel, 93 railway stations (which when linked up with Zambia rail systems would be expanded to 147), imported 85 mainline diesel locomotives, 17 shunting locomotives, 2100 freight wagons and 100 coaches.\textsuperscript{15} In addition, China also developed training schools for \textsuperscript{14}Snow, \textit{op. cit.}, p. 154.

\textsuperscript{15}Yu, \textit{op. cit.}, p. 137, and Snow, \textit{op. cit.}, p. 154.
Zambians and Tanzanians in Dar es Salaam as well as shipped trainees to China to attend the Northern China Communications University.

TABLE 1. TAZARA FORCE FORCE, 1972-74

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>NATIONALITY</th>
<th>NUMBER OF WORKERS</th>
<th>PERCENTAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Chinese</td>
<td>13,500</td>
<td>26</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanzanians</td>
<td>35,900</td>
<td>70</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zambians</td>
<td>2,100</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>51,500</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1973

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>NATIONALITY</th>
<th>NUMBER OF WORKERS</th>
<th>PERCENTAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Chinese</td>
<td>12,000</td>
<td>26</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanzanians</td>
<td>23,400</td>
<td>51</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zambians</td>
<td>10,800</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>46,200</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1974

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>NATIONALITY</th>
<th>NUMBER OF WORKERS</th>
<th>PERCENTAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Chinese</td>
<td>11,500</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanzanians</td>
<td>13,600</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zambians</td>
<td>13,000</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>38,100</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Upon completion of Tazara the Chinese workforce returned to China immediately. The Chinese fully intended to leave Tazara operations to the complete autonomy of Tanzania and Zambia. Unfortunately, Tanzania and Zambia did not have the technical know-how to run such an extensive operation and problems developed. Consequently, after a tripartite meeting in 1978, China agreed not to withdraw the technical expertise and to continue to provide for training.

---

16Ibid.

There are several reasons why the Tanzam Railway can be considered especially significant in the evolution of Sino-African relations. First, until this undertaking, Chinese support was considered to be more symbolic than material. Second, completion of the railway provided psychological invigoration for both Chinese and Africans by demonstrating technological prowess, energy and politico/economic largesse. Third, the fact that the project was completed during a period of international conflict in China proved that internal conflicts would not impede China's foreign policy commitments. Fourth, China could now guarantee itself access to Zambian copper and other vital exports. Last and most important, China gained trust, and prestige while solidifying the spirit of cooperation in the region and catapulted itself into the international arena as a force to be reckoned with.¹⁷

The long-term expansion of the Chinese economy was based upon a proliferation of heavy industrial of "blue steel" enterprise. Indeed, the pattern of Chinese economic growth was consciously directed by the party apparatus. In keeping with fundamental Marxist-Leninist principles, the goal of the industrialization program was to transform what was still basically an agrarian subsistence economy into a full-fledged industrial power. In this basic sense China still operated within ideologically Marxism-Leninism.

The key to understanding all of China’s concerns with its position in Africa lies in appreciating the long-term implications of China’s domestic ideological and economic goals. As the scale and pace of China’s industrialization grows the need for raw materials and export markets for subsequent production grows at an exactly parallel rate. While Africa is beset by a host of problems, enormous debt, drought, starvation and tribal conflict, it is still, nonetheless, an vital source of strategic raw material and commodities.

There are other very basic economic considerations that serve as incentives to Chinese policy. China is equally aware of Africa’s potential as a market. In spite of this economic potential, Africa is responsible for less than 2% of world gross economic product. Its overall economic development has been in a condition of severe decline during the same period that the western industrial nations have experienced unprecedented economic growth. Given this set of conditions, the potential for economic growth on the Africa sub-continent is extraordinary to say the least. From the Chinese perspective Africa represents far more than simply a source of raw materials but also an expanding marketplace to sell finished products and establish the types of symbiotic relationships that fuel mutual long-term economic expansion.

---

Actual growth for Africa in 1991 was 1.4%. Projected growth for the region in 1992 is 2.7%.
II. CHINA'S FOREIGN POLICY OBJECTIVES IN AFRICA 1949-1989

Since 1949, Chinese foreign policy has undergone a myriad of changes and continuing development. This chapter examines China's foreign policy in Africa for the years between 1949 and 1989. As stated in the introduction, the Third World, particularly, Africa, has been a cornerstone in determining China's foreign policy objectives. While there are a variety of opinions regarding the ultimate goals of China's foreign policy, one can assume that it is based on the four factors that determine every nation's policies: security, ideology, domestic political/economic development and the international environment. These factors, along with the transitions in ideology from one of doctrine (1949) to a more pragmatic approach (1989-present), will be examined.

A. "LEAN ON ONE SIDE"1949-1952

Since inception, the primary objective of the PRC has been threefold: preserving national unity, sovereignty, national development and restoring territorial integrity. The twin traumas of its birth, civil and foreign war and the fact that once-born, the PRC found itself sandwiched between two global powers engaged in the Cold War, proved to be the decisive factors in determining foreign policy and behavior. As a means of guaranteeing its security against foreign invasion and procuring assistance with its own agenda of domestic ideological development, the PRC adopted a "lean on one side" policy in alliance with the Soviet Union\(^\text{20}\).

---

13

Most 20th Century contact between China and the African states had been exiguous at best prior to 1955. The majority of interactions were the direct result of PRC delegates being present at Soviet sponsored international functions. Though a few African leaders visited China, none of the four autonomous African states—Egypt, Ethiopia, Liberia and South Africa—extended diplomatic recognition to China. The most interest Mao displayed in African affairs was when he sent a cable to South Africa in July 1950 protesting impending Apartheid legislation on the grounds that it would discriminate against the Chinese living there\(^\text{21}\). Despite scant contact there was a great deal of optimism among the Chinese leaders that communist ideology would soon triumph in Asia and Africa. China believed that its revolution was the proper model to follow in the struggle for independence\(^\text{22}\). Mao stated

Why was Abyssinia extinguished? First it was not only a weak country, but also a small country. Second, it was not as advanced as China; it was an ancient country passing from slave to the serf system, had no capitalism, no bourgeois political parties, much less a Communist Party; had no army like China's, much less an army like the Eighth Route Army.... Quite a large-scale guerrilla war still persists in Abyssinia, and if

\(^{20}\) Yu, op. cit., p. 2.

\(^{21}\) Larkin, op. cit., p. 15-16.

\(^{22}\) Cooley, op. cit., p. 6.
the Abyssinians can only persevere, they will be able to reoccupy and revive their fatherland in a future fluctuation of world affairs.23

The period ended with China closely aligned with the Soviet Union and in direct conflict with the United States as a result of the Korean War.

B. THE BANDUNG CONFERENCE AND THE AFRO-ASIAN ALLIANCE 1953-1959

The second period in Chinese foreign policy witnessed the attempts of the PRC to spread its wings independent of its big brother, the Soviet Union. With its internal power consolidated, its domestic policy on track and a feeling of relative security in its alliance with the Soviets, the PRC set out to win friends. Although the PRC's primary objective was to preserve and protect its eastern and southern flanks against a perceived threat of aggression from the United States, the PRC also sought a way out of isolationism. This period also denotes the beginning of the Sino-Soviet split. Until this time, the Soviets were perceived as the leader of all socialist states. The death of Stalin and The Non-Aligned Conference of Afro-Asian Nations at Bandung clearly changed that.24

1. Non-Aligned Conference of Afro-Asian Nations (Bandung)

The African-Asian Conference, 1955. catapulted China onto the African scene and exposed the divergent ideological concepts of the Soviets and PRC. As early as three years prior to the Sino-Soviet split; it became clear that the Soviets and PRC possessed conflicting ideology in attaining African 23 Snow, op. cit., p. 68.

support. For example, on the one hand, the Soviets appealed to the African states from a material perspective and the promise of economic aid. On the other hand, the PRC, unable to compete in terms of hard currency, focused on the heart, minds and fears of Africans by emphasizing race consciousness. While the Soviet action consisted of aid and credits; Chinese officials such as Kuo-Mo-Jo spoke of a common cultural heritage of the non-whites of Asia, and Africa.25 Another delegate, Chu Tu Nan, asserted that "Chinese, Indians, Arabs, Africans shared a common heritage of oppression and of rich ancient cultures that had been destroyed by western imperialism." Chu asserted that the only alternative was a concerted effort by the non-white world to develop a new civilization incorporating their lost traditions with socialism.26 Clearly China sought to create solidarity based on being non-white, non-European, and having the common experience of being a "poverty-stricken country exploited by 'foreign devils' ever since the Fifteenth Century, when the first Portuguese caravels touched the coasts of Africa and the Orient."27 More significant was Chinese support for the FLN in Algeria's quest for self-determination, a cause which the Soviets did not support.28

1. The Legacy of Bandung

The Asian-African (Bandung) Conference took place in Bandung, Indonesia. Of the 29 participating countries, six members were from Africa—

25 Cooley, op. cit., p. 18.

26 Ibid., p. 16.

27 Ibid.

28 Larkin, op. cit., p. 27
Egypt, Ethiopia, the Gold Coast (Ghana), Liberia, Libya and the Sudan—with Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco as observers. The Soviets and United States were not wanted because they were neither African nor Asian. During the conference Zhou En-Lai took the opportunity to expand "the five principles of coexistence" to a modified version tailored for anti-imperialism as applied to Africa.29

1. Mutual respect for each other's territorial integrity.
2. Mutual non-aggression
3. Mutual non-interference in each other's internal affairs.
4. Equality and mutual benefit.
5. Peaceful coexistence.
7. Nondiscrimination.
8. Equality of all nations.
9. Respect for freedom to choose political and economic systems.
10. Mutually beneficial relations between nations.

Very few African issues were discussed at Bandung, but the imagery of Afro-Asian solidarity became attractive political/ideological concepts. More importantly Zhou, succeeded in creating an impression that there existed a united front of communist and neutralists based upon common conviction that western colonialism and western military pacts were the only real dangers threatening independence of the new nations of Asia and Africa.30

---

The conference ended with a final communique supporting Tunisian, Algerian and Moroccan right to self-determination. In a paragraph dedicated to racism Zhou En-Lai articulated PRC policy "We have always regarded that different races are equal. New China has not practiced discrimination."

2. The Suez Crisis, 1956

During the Bandung Conference Zhou actively cultivated the Egyptian leader Abdul Nasser, and the PRC was formally recognized by Egypt on 5 May 1956 with full diplomatic relations being established on November 30, 1956. Realizing the importance of Africar issues, the PRC then established a new office of West Asian and African Affairs in the foreign ministry. With the exception of aid to the Algerian Revolutionary Army and pledges of support for Arabs in their struggle against Israel, little direct military interest was evident. This changed dramatically with the Suez Crisis. Not only was the Sino-Soviet rivalry beginning to heat up but the Suez (a vital strategic waterway) became a target for Chinese attention. When Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev vowed to send rockets against the West if Anglo and French attacks did not cease, China responded by sending $5,000,000 and vowed to send 300,000 volunteers as well.

When Egypt gained control of the Suez from the British, Zhou took the opportunity to articulate the strength of the so-called Afro-Asian Movement. Chou En-Lai stated in March 1957

---

31 Larkin, op. cit., p. 19.

32 Larkin, op. cit., p. 25.
[Suez] was a great revelation to us, showing that the Asian and African countries are not yet powerful in material strength, all aggression by the colonialists can be frustrated, as long as we maintain our solidarity and firmly unite with all peace-loving forces of the world and wage a resolute struggle.33

3. Afro-Asian Solidarity Council (AAPSO)

The period ended with the Afro-Asian Solidarity Conference in 1957. From the conference and in accordance with President Nasser's desires, the Afro-Asian Solidarity Council (AAPSO) evolved. The organization was located in Cairo and chaired by Anwar Sadat. Egypt had clearly desired to control key posts but the influence of Soviets and the PRC came to dominate the organization. The PRC and Soviets engaged in incessant arguments which ultimately served to the advantage of the PRC. Africa was rapidly changing. Morocco, Tunisia and Ghana all achieved independence. The Suez Crisis, along with the Algerian uprising, stimulated the movement against western imperialism. With the Afro-Asian Council devoted exclusively to the anticolonial struggle, China was able to forge new contacts and challenge the Soviets for leadership of the socialist camp. The Chinese, after all, were an authentic Asian power while the Soviets were admitted as "Asians honoris causa." 34 By the time the Council completed its first year of work, China had not only successfully placed more delegates but had also pledged more money than the Soviets ($28,000 to $25,200) for the coming 33 Ibid., p. 25 and Hutchinson, op. cit., p. 17.

34 Brzezinski, op. cit., p. 155.
year.\textsuperscript{35} The Council clearly represented a tremendous opportunity for the PRC to pursue its objective of becoming the leader of the Third World.

C. UNITED FRONT STRATEGY AND THE SINO-SOVIET RIFT 1958-1965

The third period began with China experiencing severe domestic problems as well as even more strained relations with the Soviet Union. A poor harvest in 1956 coupled with lagging economic development, Khrushchev's denunciation of Stalin, and an inadequate level of Soviet aid, compelled China to reassess its situation. Thus on 1 March 1958 Mao announced the "Great Leap Forward" designed to accelerate economic development independent of the Soviet economic model. According to Mao, "Stalin had paid attention only to half of the factors that promote economic development: technique, but not politics; cadres but not masses; industry but not agriculture; the constraints imposed by objective conditions, but not the potential created by man's subjective will."\textsuperscript{36}

The implementation of the "Great Leap Forward" was a clear challenge to the Soviet model of communism and a rejection of Soviet policies. Over the next two years the rift widened. China became disenchanted by the Soviet hesitancy to provide support to the regional agenda of the PRC, such as the liberation of the offshore islands, annexation of Tibet and the serious border clashes with India. As a result, the PRC initiated a fundamental reassessment of its position in international relations. Lack of definitive Soviet support as well as the Soviets' interest in a more managed relationship with the United States convinced China that the Soviets were no longer committed to the revolutionary cause.37

\textsuperscript{35}Ibid., pp. 155-157.

By 1960 the Sino-Soviet split was fully recognized and the "U.S.-Soviet-China Strategic Triangle" was born. The split was significant for several reasons. First, it signified a complete break with the Soviets not only on the domestic front but also in the area of the foreign policy and revolutionary agenda. Second, the Chinese leadership had made a conscious effort to end the relationship in order to preserve its vision of socialist national development. Third, the Third World became China's primary focus in foreign policy, with Africa at the center. Fourth, China's new position represented an "internationalization" of foreign policy that stood in opposition to the hegemonic ambitions of the Soviet Union and the United States. It was also significant that China sought to formulate a new international strategy that could counter the revisionist metamorphosis of Soviet-style socialism.38 Chinese policy makers anticipated that anti-Revisionism and anti-imperialism would meet with equal enthusiasm in Third World. In 1965 Lin Piao stated

Taking the entire globe, if North America and Western Europe can be called "the cities of the world," then Asia, Africa and Latin American constitute "the rural areas of the world." Since World War II, the proletarian revolutionary movement has for various reasons been temporarily held back in North America and West European capitalist countries, while the people's revolutionary movement in Asia, Africa and Latin America has been growing vigorously. In a sense, the contemporary world revolution also presents a picture of the encirclement of cities by the rural areas. In the final analysis, the whole cause of world revolution hinges on the revolutionary struggle of the Asian, African and Latin American people who make up the overwhelming majority of the world's population. The socialist countries should regard it as their international duty to support the people's revolutionary struggles in Asia, Africa and Latin America.39

China sought to construct a new Revolutionary Strategy premised upon the commonality of the Third World in the struggle for economic and social development. Africa was central—the testing ground where this new strategy would be implemented.

1. Zhou En-Lai and the United Front Strategy

The doctrine of “The United Front” as a fundamental principle of Marxist-Leninism, is defined as "a united and temporary alignment between a community party or state and one or more non-communist political units with the dual purpose, on the communist side, of confronting a common enemy and furthering the revolutionary cause."40 Throughout the period 1960-1965, the United Front strategy was an essential component of Chinese foreign policy, linking its ideology with its conduct in foreign affairs.

After China's venture into African affairs during the Suez Crisis, by 1960, at the height of the anti-colonialist movement Africa, China was showing considerable interest in the long-term prospects for revolution in 38 Ibid.

39 Ibid.

Africa. China perceived of Africa as the perfect medium for revolutionary struggle and its strategy was to encourage four trends in political consciousness: anti-imperialism, support for the African national liberation movements, the pursuit of self-reliance and furtherance of Afro-Asian solidarity. Thus China's strategy in Africa developed into creating a broad united front directed against the practice of external imperialism while simultaneously assisting in the foment of internal revolution.

Zhou En-Lai visited ten African nations between December 14, 1963 and February 4, 1964 in an attempt to promulgate these views and assess the reaction. Zhou stated:

The purpose of my visit is to enhance the mutual understanding between China, and the friendly African countries; strengthen the traditional friendship and cooperation between China and the African countries, increase our knowledge and learn useful things from African people.

Zhou, on this tour to Africa, wanted to somehow gauge African perceptions of Asia and to break the "isolate and contain" policy that the U.S. had imposed upon the PRC. He also wished to establish a bond of solidarity and brotherhood with progressive African leaders. Zhou was accompanied to Africa by Chen Yi and an entourage of about forty. Their itinerary included Egypt, Algeria, Morocco, Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Tunisia, the Sudan, Ethiopia and Somalia, the primarily Arabic or Arabized nations. (Snow, pp. 74-76)

41 Ibid., p. 216.
42 Ibid., p. 218.
Throughout the tour Zhou emphasized "the dichotomous nature of China's policies' with Zhou playing on contrapuntal themes of peace and struggle, progress and poverty, weakness and strength, cooperation and opposition." (Hutchinson, p. 62) Zhou patiently explained such Chinese policies in opposition to the Test Ban Treaty and tactfully promulgated his ideology by unveiling a revised version of "The Five Principles of Peaceful Coexistence."\(^{44}\)

1. China supports the African and Arab peoples in their struggle to oppose imperialism and old and new colonialism and to win and safeguard national independence.

2. It supports the pursuance of a policy of peace, neutrality and non-alignment by the governments of the African and Arab countries.

3. It supports the desire of the African and Arab peoples to achieve unity and solidarity in the manner of their own choice.

4. It supports the African and Arab countries in their efforts to settle their disputes through peaceful negotiations.

5. It holds that the sovereignty of the African and Arab countries should be respected by all other countries and that encroachment and interference from any quarter should be opposed.

Despite Zhou's anti-imperialist appeal, his arguments were not received as wholeheartedly as he had anticipated. He was constantly reminded of the shortcomings of China's policies everywhere he went. The African nations wanted money, not weapons and rhetoric. In Egypt he was shown the Soviet-built Aswan Dam. In Algeria he learned very quickly that some Africans did not accept China as the titular leader of the revolutionary struggle in Africa. They gladly accepted China's assistance, but this was an African struggle to be won or lost by Africans. In Morocco he was faced with the claims of King Hassan that the Soviets were backing the Algerians. In Ghana, once again he had to compete with Soviet influence and monetary aid. In East Africa, his delegation represented the first Chinese visit of the century. In fact the Africans were challenging the Chinese to put their money where their mouth was. More importantly, the African leaders told Zhou that they did not completely accept Chinese ideology. Nor did they accept the idea that the United States was the leading imperialist threat.4546

Zhou went to Africa with the objective of teaching the Africans how to distinguish between their "enemies and friends." (Hutchinson pp. 126-147) What followed was a series of setbacks. Although China was successful in linking ideological formulations with actual situations in some instances (i.e. backing opposition movements in Kenya, Cameroon, the Congo, Burundi and Rwanda) Chinese intentions were viewed with suspicion. Subsequent to Zhou’s tour Chinese delegations were expelled from several African nations for subversive activities (see Table 2) In addition, Zhou left the continent without obtaining full support for the Chinese position in the Sino-Soviet dispute. However Zhou did learn some valuable lessons, the most important being that Africa was diverse and beholden to no one superpower or ideology.

46 During 1960 campaign, President Kennedy asserted that “we lost ground in Africa because we have neglected and ignored the needs and aspirations of African people.” The result was a U.S. diplomatic offensive aimed at wooing African leaders.
TABLE 2. AFRICAN DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH CHINA, 1956-72

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>STATE</th>
<th>YEAR OF INDEPENDENCE</th>
<th>YEAR RELATIONS ESTABLISHED</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Algeria</td>
<td>1962</td>
<td>1962</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Burundi</td>
<td>1962</td>
<td>1963; relations suspended in 1965, restored in 1971</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cameroon</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1972</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Central African Republic</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1964; relations suspended in 1966</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chad</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1972</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Congo (Brazzaville)</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1964</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dahomey</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1964; relations suspended in 1966, restored in 1972</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Equatorial Guinea</td>
<td>1968</td>
<td>1970</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ethiopia</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>1970</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghana</td>
<td>1957</td>
<td>1960; relations suspended in 1966, restored in 1972</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guinea</td>
<td>1958</td>
<td>1958</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kenya</td>
<td>1963</td>
<td>1963</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mali</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1960</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Malagasy Republic</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1972</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mauritania</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1965</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Morocco</td>
<td>1956</td>
<td>1958</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nigeria</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1971</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rwanda</td>
<td>1962</td>
<td>1971</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Senegal</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1971</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sierra Leone</td>
<td>1961</td>
<td>1971</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Somalia</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1960</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sudan</td>
<td>1956</td>
<td>1958</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Togo</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1972</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanzania (until 1964</td>
<td>1964</td>
<td>1964</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanganyika and Zanzibar</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tunisia</td>
<td>1956</td>
<td>1964; relations suspended in 1967, restored in 1971</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uganda</td>
<td>1962</td>
<td>1962</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Arab Republic (Egypt)</td>
<td>1922</td>
<td>1956</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zambia</td>
<td>1964</td>
<td>1964</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zaire</td>
<td>1960</td>
<td>1972</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note: Tanganyika gained its independence in 1961 and entered into diplomatic relations with China in the same year; Zanzibar won independence in 1963, and relations with China began in the same year. The union of the two states was achieved in 1964.

(Source: Yu, George T., China’s Foreign Policy, a Study of Tanzania, New York: Praeger Press, 1975).

47Yu, 1975, op. cit., p. 8
Prior to Zhou's tour, China's approach to Africa was based on its own revolutionary experience and ideology rather than a knowledge of African conditions and aspirations. China had overestimated the potential impact of antirevisionist and anti-imperialist rhetoric and its relative importance to African nations. The African nations had given China a "wake up call" which let them know their ideological preconceptions were wrong and the assumption that "Africa was bound to follow the direct course of China's revolutionary map" was invalid.\textsuperscript{48}

After the tour, Zhou embarked on an all out offensive on the diplomatic, economic and revolutionary front in order to gain friends and to establish China as the leader of a broad united front in the Third World. The first priority was to convene a second Bandung Conference in 1965. During the AAPSO Conference 1964 preparatory meeting in Djakarta, China vehemently opposed Soviet participation on the basis that they were neither African nor Asian. (Snow, p. 120) This action led to Soviet charges of race baiting by the Chinese. In a letter to the participating countries, the Soviets contended that the Chinese were attempting...

... to install little by little an attitude of suspicion towards many peoples of socialist countries merely because they are whites ... The PRC government preaching of race is no more than a false cloak for its ambitions of hegemony among the Afro-Asian countries.\textsuperscript{49}

The controversy and period ended with the cancellation of the Second Bandung Conference, which had been scheduled for 1965, which was an additional blow to China's psyche and agenda. Nevertheless, there were lessons learned from the period. With regard to the united front strategy and its effect on China's behavior, wide gaps appeared between its statements and its actual performance. China's united front strategy had five shortcomings that had precluded its successful implementation. First, the PRC believed that it already possessed extensive influence throughout the Third World and therefore developed policies aimed at long-term objectives rather than first securing and cementing its tentative alliances. Second, China's entire perception of indigenous African movements had been erroneously distorted to conform to China's Revolutionary experience. Third, China had linked its international initiatives to its own strategic requirements, thereby arousing the suspicion of Africans. Fourth, China's preoccupation with the Vietnam War (which China intended making a major topic before Second Bandung Conference in 1964 [which was cancelled]) slowed the momentum of Chinese activities. And fifth, the rigid commitment to a United Front had resulted in too many constraints and tactical limitations while dealing with individual countries. Regrouping from these setbacks China made a conscientious effort to redirect its focus away from North and West Africa towards East Africa. Specifically Tanzania, where, because of the setbacks elsewhere, China wisely sought firsthand knowledge of Tanzanian culture and politics and developed its policies accordingly. Although China's new foreign policy, as well as the Great Leap Forward, were failures on a grand scale, China has nonetheless succeeded in achieving the status of an international player.

\textsuperscript{48} Larkin, \textit{op cit.}, p. 199.

50 Armstrong, op. cit., p. 237.
D. CULTURAL REVOLUTION AND ISOLATIONISM (1966-1969)

This period can be generally characterized as one of setbacks, in the international arena. By 1966 China was firmly enveloped in the "Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution." As a result, Sino-African relations were substantially suspended, with the exception of the East African nations, particularly Tanzania.

The Cultural Revolution created a very negative international image for China and adversely affected its relations in Africa. Bruce Larkin states five hypotheses as the basis of the wide-scale diminution of China's position in Africa:51

1. The efficiency and effectiveness of Chinese embassies in Africa suffered: ambassadors and staff members were called home for extended stays.
2. Supporting facilities in China were preoccupied with internal disputes which interfered with training of foreign students.
3. Moderate economic recession may have increased competition for funds.
4. The Cultural Revolution showed that there was no single "Chinese Path to Socialism."
5. The vastness and audacity of the Cultural Revolution made it more difficult for China to conduct a united front strategy.

Though the Cultural Revolution slowed down China's revolutionary strategy in Africa, some forward movement was still achieved. The most successful venture was that of the Tan-Zam Railway, as described above, which required an enormous financial commitment on the part of China. Moreover, China continued to funnel aid (in form of credits) to development projects in such states as Guinea ($10 million), Somalia ($3 million), Mali ($4 million), and Algeria ($2 million). These were constructive policies that allowed China at least to keep up the appearance that its deep commitment to African development was still ongoing.

51 Larkin, op. cit., pp. 144-145.

On the other side of the coin, China suffered some significant political setbacks in the form of broken relations with failed revolutionary movements. Until this period its largest defeat was in the Congo in 1960. The Congo had been a playing field where the Soviet Union, the U.S. and China had all vigorously competed. According to Mao "If we can take the Congo, we can have all of Africa!" China backed the government of Patrice Lumumba but how solid China's ties to the revolutionaries were is a matter of question. In fact China attempted to keep its involvement secret throughout the struggle. In addition, revolutions and coups d'état led to the suspension of diplomatic relations in Burundi, Central Africa Republic, Dahomey, Ghana and Tunisia.

The period ended with China having to reestablish its position and credibility in the African communities. An increase of support for revolutionary movements throughout Africa (See Table 3) was the goal of a policy designed to establish intimate ties with the movements which would eventually attain power. The Chinese hoped that their investment and 53 Hutchinson, op. cit., p. 81 and Larkin, op. cit., p. 168.

52 Ibid., p. 81

54 Brzezinski, op. cit., p. 178
commitment would find fruition in the form of African support in Beijing's quest for a seat in the United Nations.

TABLE 3. SOVIET AND CHINESE SUPPORT OF MAJOR NATIONAL LIBERATION MOVEMENTS TO 1970

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Territory</th>
<th>Organization</th>
<th>Certain or Probable Recipient of Support from</th>
<th>Not Recipient of Support from China or the Soviet Union</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Angola</td>
<td>Movimento Popular de Libertação de Angola (MPLA)</td>
<td>UNITA</td>
<td>MPLA</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>União Nacional Para a Independência total de Angola (UNITA)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Governo Revolucionário de Angola no Exílio (GRAE)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mozambique</td>
<td>Frente de Libertação de Moçambique (FRELIMO)</td>
<td>COREMO</td>
<td>FRELIMO</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Comité Revolucionário de Moçambique (COREMO)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Portuguese Guinea</td>
<td>Partido Africano da Independência da Guiné e Cabo Verde (PAIGC)</td>
<td>PAIGC</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rhodesia</td>
<td>Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU)</td>
<td>ZANU</td>
<td>ZAPU</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Africa</td>
<td>African National Congress (ANC)</td>
<td>PAC</td>
<td>ANC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Pan-Africanist Congress (PAC)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South-West Africa</td>
<td>South-West African People's Organization (SWAPO)</td>
<td>SWANU</td>
<td>SWAPO</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>South-West African National Union (SWANU)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

E. 1970-1979—CHINA'S REEMERGENCE IN AFRICA

After the military clash in the Sino-Soviet border in 1969, it became clear that the Soviets posed the greatest and most immediate threat to China's security. In response to the Soviet threat, China initiated a series of overtures to the U.S. which resulted in a Sino-American rapprochement and the visits of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and President Richard Nixon.\textsuperscript{55} At this juncture, China stepped up its activities in Africa.

The Sino-Soviet conflict had been smoldering throughout the 1960s. By 1970, when China emerged from the Great Proletariat Revolution it was ready to challenge and resist the Soviet threat. Africa was the perfect arena for the battle.\textsuperscript{56} Thus in 1970, China embarked upon an unparalleled diplomatic offensive in Africa. The culmination of its efforts were realized by a significant enhancement of Chinese influence on African affairs and the much cherished admission to the United Nations. China achieved such successful results by accelerating its participation on three major fronts—economic aid, diplomatic relations and arms transfer.

1. Economic Aid

One of the first initiatives undertaken in 1970 was an increase in economic aid to African countries. China had learned from its experiences during the period 1954-1966 that the African leadership was far more responsive to money than rhetoric. China accordingly tripled its monetary commitment and became the primary source of aid to Africa, supplanting the Soviet Union. In order to fully appreciate the scale and depth of China’s initiative (see Table 4) a contrast with the Soviet program needs to be made. First, China contributed aid to more African countries than the Soviet Union (29 to 22). Second, China’s contributions were much more geographically \textsuperscript{56} Yu, 1980, \textit{op. cit.}, p. 169.

dispersed while the Soviets primarily contributed the aid to the North African nations. Third, China contributed aid to a greater number of emerging nations than did the Soviets (23 to 11).\textsuperscript{57} Finally, in comparing figures for the periods 1954-1966 to 1970-1979, China increased economic aid from $428 million in 1966 to $1945 in 1979. In contrast Soviet aid decreased from $1900 million to $113 million during the identical period. (Yu, 1980, pp. 169-171)

The increase in aid witnessed by African nations affirmed China’s commitment in clear, substantive terms.

\textsuperscript{57} Ibid., pp. 169-171.
TABLE 4. CHINESE AND SOVIET AID COMMITMENTS TO AFRICA, 1954-66 AND 1970-79
(in millions of U.S. dollars)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>China</td>
<td>USSR</td>
<td>China</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Algeria</td>
<td>52</td>
<td>236</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Angola</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Benin</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Burundi</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cameroon</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>71</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Central African Empire</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chad</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Congo</td>
<td>25</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Egypt</td>
<td>85</td>
<td>1,001</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Equatorial Guinea</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ethiopia</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>102</td>
<td>85</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gambia</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghana</td>
<td>42</td>
<td>93</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guinea-Bissau</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kenya</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>48</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Liberia</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Madagascar</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mali</td>
<td>55</td>
<td>59</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mauritania</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mauritius</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Morocco</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>44</td>
<td>32</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mozambique</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Niger</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>51</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nigeria</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rwanda</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Senegal</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sierra Leone</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>28</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Somalia</td>
<td>22</td>
<td>66</td>
<td>111</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sudan</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>22</td>
<td>82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanzania</td>
<td>54</td>
<td>20</td>
<td>305</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Togo</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tunisia</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>34</td>
<td>97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uganda</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>16</td>
<td>-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Upper Volta</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>52</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zaire</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zambia</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>-</td>
<td>290</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TOTALS</td>
<td>$428</td>
<td>$1,900</td>
<td>$1,945</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

2. Diplomatic Relations

Over a nine year period China had aggressively campaigned to win African nations over to its side of the Sino-Soviet conflict. By 1979 China had forged diplomatic ties with 26 additional nations, bringing the total to 42 (Table 5). The diplomatic initiatives were pointedly successful in light of China's refusal to establish relations with any nation that recognized Taiwan. (By way of contrast, Taiwan established relations with only three nations.)

China also received a substantial number of African heads of state and representatives in Beijing (Table 6 refers). Conferring the pomp of state ceremony upon the visiting delegations was clearly designed to enhance mutual prestige and help to diminish the Soviet power base in Africa by painting the Soviets as imperialist.

In the perception of Chinese leadership, the Soviets had three principal objectives in Africa. First, to exploit the natural resources of the continent such as copper, cobalt, diamonds, gold and uranium. Second, to advance Soviet strategic interests in the competition with the U.S. for world hegemony and third, to prevent African unity.58

China continuously sought to expose any Soviet action which would bring Soviet intentions and loyalty under the questioning scrutiny of Third World nations. In the case of Africa, China pointed out the lack of Soviet support for Algeria in 1950, the Congolese in 1960, and in the Arab-Israeli...

58 Ibid., pp. 186-187. wars, which had denied the Arab people the right of "Waging a just war against the Israeli aggressor."\textsuperscript{59}

TABLE 5. THE PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF CHINA’S NEW DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS IN AFRICA, 1970-79

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>State</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1970</td>
<td>Equatorial Guinea</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1970</td>
<td>Ethiopia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>Cameroon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>Nigeria</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>Rwanda</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>Senegal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>Sierra Leone</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972</td>
<td>Chad</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972</td>
<td>Malagasy Republic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972</td>
<td>Mauritius</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972</td>
<td>Togo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972</td>
<td>Zaire</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>Upper Volta</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>Gabon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>Gambia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>Guinea-Bissau</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>Niger</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>Botswana</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>Comoros</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>Sao Tome and Principe</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>Mozambique</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>Cape Verde</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>Seychelles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>Liberia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>Libya\textsuperscript{60}</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1979</td>
<td>Djibouti</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

\textsuperscript{60} Libya had unilaterally announced recognition of China in 1971 but had continued to maintain relations with the Republic of China on Taiwan.
TABLE 6. MAJOR AFRICAN DELEGATIONS TO CHINA, 1971-1979\textsuperscript{61}

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Leader of Delegation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>President of the Liberations Front of Mozambique</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1971</td>
<td>Deputy President of Sudan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972</td>
<td>President of the Supreme Revolutionary Council of Somalia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1972</td>
<td>Vice-president of Zambia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>President of Zaire</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>President of Cameroon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>President of the Congo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>President of Somalia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>President of Zaire</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1973</td>
<td>President of Senegal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>President of the Supreme Military Council of Niger</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>President of Togo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>Head of the Federal Military Government of Nigeria</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>President of Mauritania</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1974</td>
<td>President of Gabon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>President of the Liberation Front of Mozambique</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>President of Gambia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1975</td>
<td>President of Sao Tome and Principe</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>President of Malagasy Republic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>President of Benin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>President of Botswana</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>President of the Central African Republic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>Vice-president of Tanzania</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>President of Mauritania</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>President of Gabon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>President of Sudan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>Prime Minister of the Congo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>Vice-president of Somalia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>General Secretary of the Zimbabwe African National Union</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>President of the Supreme Military Council of Niger</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1977</td>
<td>President of Cameroon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>Deputy Prime Minister of Egypt</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>Minister of the Supreme Military Council of Ghana</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>President of Somalia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>President of Seychelles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>President of Mozambique</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>President of the Congo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>President of Rwanda</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>President of Liberia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1978</td>
<td>President of Gabon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1979</td>
<td>President of Burundi</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

\textsuperscript{61}Through March 1979 only.
3. Arms Transfers

In terms of arms supplies, the Soviet Union still outdistanced China in the volume of arms transfer. (Table 7) Arms sales were not a focal point of Chinese foreign policy during this era. In fact China continuously criticized the Soviet Union for providing arms but nothing else. The majority of Chinese arms transfers took place in the period 1974-1979, in response to the war in Angola.

TABLE 7. CHINESE AND SOVIET ARMS TRANSFERS TO AFRICA, 1967-79

(in millions of U.S. dollars)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>African State</th>
<th>China</th>
<th>Soviet Union</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Algeria</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>1500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Angola</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Benin</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Burundi</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cameroon</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>—</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Central African Empire</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chad</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Congo</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Egypt</td>
<td>60</td>
<td>2615</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Equatorial Guinea</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gambia</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>—</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guinea</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guinea-Bissau</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Libya</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>5000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Malagasy Republic</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Malawi</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>—</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mali</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>110</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Morocco</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mozambique</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>170</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nigeria</td>
<td>—</td>
<td>150</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rwanda</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>—</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Somalia</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sudan</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanzania</td>
<td>105</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tunisia</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>—</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uganda</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zaire</td>
<td>31</td>
<td>110</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zambia</td>
<td>32</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TOTALS</td>
<td>301</td>
<td>11,876</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Through Zaire and Tanzania, China backed, trained and supplied arms to all three liberation movements in the conflict with Portugal—the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), the National Union for the total independence of Angola, and the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FLNA). When the Portuguese were overthrown in 1974, the conflict was transformed into Soviet and Chinese backed factional fighting. The Soviets supported the MPLA while China backed both the FLNA and UNITA. The MPLA seemingly triumphed in February, 1976, and made attempts to push into Zaire. Assessing the apparent failure of its Chinese jousting in Angola, the Chinese leadership concluded that it was not prepared at that juncture in time to challenge the Soviets in the military arena. Thereafter China’s arms transfers were insignificant and symbolic in nature.

The perceptual shifts in Chinese foreign policy during the seventies were driven by an all-consuming preoccupation with challenging the Soviet Union in Africa. China viewed Soviet imperialism as a threat to world peace. This view of reality was the framework of Mao’s formulation of the “Three Worlds Theory” which was yet another form of the United Front strategy. The strategy, in essence, found the interests of China, the U.S. and the Third World and set them in opposition to the Soviet Union. Mao first articulated the “Three Worlds Theory” to Kenneth Kaunda in 1974 and also stated “We are the Third World."\textsuperscript{64} Mao was firm in his conviction that together they could successfully oppose Soviet hegemony in the region.

---

62 Snow, op. cit., p. 127.

63 Ibid.

Henceforth China "adopted a complementary approach toward Africa and Third World issues"\textsuperscript{65} and would stop at nothing to undermine Soviet influence. This was true even in those cases where its actions conflicted with its ideology and that of African nations. A prime example of which was Chinese support for the Arab-Israeli Peace Process, pursued even though it greatly irritated Arabs.\textsuperscript{66} However, Deng Xiaoping "assured Africans that when China became an advanced nation" it would not abandon the Third world. While the policy was effective for a time, it had run its course by the time the 1980s approached. Thus, China abandoned its strategy and began to distance itself from the U.S. The split was more complete when the Reagan administration exhibited a more pro-Taiwanese stance than the Carter administration.\textsuperscript{67}

After the death of Mao in 1976, China implemented a series of domestic reforms which essentially disavowed most of the ideological concerns and policies that had been associated with Mao for the last 20 years of his life. In July 1981, the Sixth Plenary Session of the Eleventh Central Committee of the

\begin{itemize}
  \item \textsuperscript{64} Snow, \textit{op. cit.}, p. 141.
  \item \textsuperscript{65} Lim, Z., \textit{op. cit.}, pp. 239.
  \item \textsuperscript{66}Ibid.
  \item \textsuperscript{67} Harding, Harry, \textit{A Fragile Relationship}, (Washington, DC: Brookings Institute, 1992), p. 109.
\end{itemize}
Communist Party (CPC) an evaluation and verdict on its history since the establishment of the People’s Republic of China in 1949 was issued. While the document praised the contributions of Mao it was also highly critical of his policies, particularly the Cultural Revolution.68

Comrade Mao Zedong was a great Marxist and a great proletarian revolutionary, strategist and theorist. It is true that he made gross mistakes during the “cultural revolution,” but, if we judge his activities as a whole, his contributions to the Chinese revolution far outweigh his mistakes. His merits are primary and his errors secondary. He rendered indelible meritorious service in founding and building up our Party and the Chinese People’s Liberation Army, in winning victory for the cause of liberation of the Chinese people, in founding the People’s Republic of China and in advancing our socialist cause. He made major contributions to the liberation of the oppressed nations of the world and to the progress of mankind.69

1982 not only marked the 27th anniversary of the Bandung Conference but also marked the establishment of a new direction in foreign policy unveiled at the Twelfth Congress of the Communist Party (CPC), June 1981. A Former CPC General Secretary stated that this signified the era of a new “peaceful independent policy” designed not only to open the door externally but to stimulate new dynamism at home.70 Because Africa has always been at the center of China’s foreign policy the effect is three-fold:

- Peace and independence,
- The Four Principles, and
- Third World stance reevaluated.

---

1. Peace and Independence

By the end of 1982 Sino-American relations were markedly strained. China was highly suspicious of the Reagan administration strengthening its relations with Taiwan. In addition, China was aggravated by U.S. arms sales to Taiwan. From the perspective of the PRC leadership, there was a clear linkage between U.S. support of the Taiwanese military and the continuing failure to get reunification talks with Taiwan underway. The level of hostility was reduced when the Reagan administration, as a conciliatory action, agreed to curtail future arms sales to Taiwan. By the end of 1982, China found it in its best interests to loosen its ties with the United States and announced an independent foreign policy based upon the "Five Principles of Coexistence." Moreover, former (CPC) Secretary Hu Yaobang proclaimed "China never attaches itself to any big power or group of powers, and never yields to pressure from any big power."

This move towards neutrality was an attempt to refocus its foreign policy and re-establish its stature and influence in the Third World, which had been weakened by rapprochement with the U.S. Because Africa has always been an integral part of China's foreign policy, Premier Zhao Ziyang, like Zhou En Lai, embarked on a political/ideological tour to 11 African nations lasting from December 1982 to January 1983. Included in the tour were Egypt, Gabon, Algeria, Morocco, Kenya, Guinea, Zaire, Congo, Zambia, Zimbabwe, and Tanzania. Zhao came to Africa with almost an identical

---

71 Harding, op. cit., p. 196.

theme to Zhou En Lai nearly 20 years ago. According to Zhao Ziyang, the objective of this tour was to, "learn from African peoples' experiences in construction, promote mutual understanding and friendship, strengthen unity and cooperation between China and African countries."73

While the objectives were almost identical, the intent and approach differed. The theme throughout the tour was economic and technological cooperation, African and Third World solidarity, South to South cooperation and the importance of the role of the Organization of African Unity (OAU). While in Egypt, Zhao said:

The economic and technological cooperation between the two countries has had a very good beginning. China will make efforts to further develop this cooperation on the basis of the principles of equality and mutual benefit, better practical results, more diversity in form and mutual development .... He pointed out, "China's foreign policy is consistent, with two basic points first oppose hegemonism and safeguard world peace; and second, firmly unite and cooperate with the other third world countries. This policy was reiterated at the 12th National Congress of the Communist Party of China. The first countries I visit after the 12th Party Congress are Egypt and other African countries. This shows that China will further carry out the policy of firmly strengthening its unity and co-operation with the other third world countries, as was reiterated at the 12th Party Congress ... Organization of African Unity has made contributions to safeguarding the solidarity of African and Third World countries."74

Zhao reiterated this theme to each and every country and was received warmly.

For a full account of the trip to individual countries, see Beijing Review, 6–24 January 1983.
In 1983, China established diplomatic relations with Angola. In 1985 China stepped up the level of economic aid to Ethiopia in the form of 15,000 tons of food, 75,000 agricultural tools, and 10,000 blankets. In 1986 leaders from the ANC visited Beijing which resulted in a commitment of material aid.\textsuperscript{75}

China’s actions were indicative of an ideological metamorphosis from the stage of revolutionary struggle to that of economic development and cooperation. In order to pursue economic development, China needed a peaceful and stable environment. Within this context China vowed never to involve itself within the internal affairs of African nations (South Africa excluded) and since 1983 has generally maintained its policy of non-intervention.

2. Emergence of Four Principles

On Zhou En-Lai’s visit to African in 1963-1964, the “Eight Principles Governing Chinese Foreign Aid”\textsuperscript{76} were implemented and policy. The “eight \textsuperscript{75} Xuetong, Yan, “Sino-African Relations in the 1990s,” CSIS Africa Notes, 19 April 1988, p. 3.

\textsuperscript{76}The Eight Principles Governing Red Chinese Foreign Aid are:

1. In the assistance it furnishes to other countries, the Chinese government constantly observes the principle of equality and mutual benefit. It never considers this assistance as a type of unilateral charity but rather as mutual aid. Thanks to this assistance, friendly and newly independent countries can progressively develop their national economies, free themselves from colonial control, and consolidate world anti-imperialist forces.
2. In furnishing aid to other countries, the Chinese government strictly respects the sovereignty of the recipient states. It never asks for any privilege and never poses conditions.
3. The Chinese government furnishes its economic assistance in the form of loans exempt from interest or at a minimum rate of interest and provides long periods for their repayment, so as to reduce to a minimum the burden carried by the recipient countries.
4. In furnishing economic aid to foreign countries, the Chinese government does not seek to place the recipients in a state of dependency on China but rather to aid them to move forward, step by step, on the pathway of self-sufficiency.
principles” were essentially a set of ideological guidelines to establish the goals and criteria for loans and aid that China intended as assistance to African nations in becoming self-sufficient. Almost 20 years later the Eight Principles\textsuperscript{77} were supplemented by Four Principles Governing Sino-African Economic and Technological Cooperations\textsuperscript{78}. Marked ideological differences

5. Projects that the Chinese government helps the recipient countries to realize are, as much as possible, those capable of yielding rapid results for a minimum investment. This makes it possible for the recipient governments to increase their revenue and accumulate capital.

6. The Chinese government furnishes the best material manufactured by its own plants at prices prevalent on the international markets. If the material provides not to be in conformance with the norms and the quality desired, it promises to replace it.

7. To be sure that personnel of the recipient country has fully assimilated the necessary knowledge to use its technical aid, the Chinese government offers it the appropriate professional training.

8. The experts that the Chinese government sends to recipient countries to aid them in their tasks of construction have the same standard of living as the experts of these countries. Chinese experts are forbidden to formulate any special demands or to benefit from special advantages. From Cooley Appendix B, pp. 224-225.

\textsuperscript{77}Xuetong, op. cit., p. 3.

\textsuperscript{78}The following are the Four Principles Governing Sino-African Economic and Technical Cooperation:

1. In carrying out economic and technological cooperation with African countries, China abides by the principles of unity and friendship, equality and mutual benefit, respects their sovereignty, does not interfere in their internal affairs, attaches no political conditions and asks for no privileges whatsoever.

2. In China’s economic and technological cooperation with African countries, full play will be given to the strong points and potentials of both sides on the basis of their actual needs and possibilities, and efforts will be made to achieve good economic results with less investment, shorter construction cycles and quicker returns.

3. China’s economic and technological cooperation with African countries takes a variety of forms suited to the local specific conditions, such as offering technical services, training technical and management personnel, engaging in scientific and technological exchanges, undertaking construction projects, and entering into cooperative production and joint ventures. With regard to the cooperative projects it undertakes, the Chinese side will see to it that the signed contracts are observed, the quality of work guaranteed and stress laid on friendship. The experts and technical personnel dispatched by the Chinese side do not ask for special treatment.

4. The purpose of China’s economic and technological cooperation with African countries is to contribute to the enhancement of the self-reliant capabilities of both sides and promote the growth of the respective national economies by complementing and helping each other.
between the policies are apparent. The Four Principles emphasized economic and technological cooperation based on mutual benefit. 79

China has always confronted inadequate financial resources in implementing its foreign policy. The change of focus was intended as a solution to the monetary strain that its aid program had created. Since 1983, talks with African nations have centered primarily on economic cooperation development and mutual benefit. In 1986, China signed approximately $480 million in construction and labor contracts as well as initiated trade and technology exchange committees with Tunisia, Mauritius, Gabon, Zaire, Zimbabwe, Tanzania, Mauritania, Algeria, and Libya. 80

3. Third World Position

Although China is a developing nation itself, it has attempted to provide leadership and economic aid to African nations. During this period aid to African nations increased from $50 million in 1983 to $400 million in 1987. Of course, there have been tradeoffs, not the least of which is a $350 million trade imbalance in favor of China. Nevertheless China has been successful in implementing its model of economic reform; all the while criticizing its nemeses, the United States and the Soviet Union, for meddling in the internal affairs of Africa. What makes the Chinese economic model so attractive for some African nations is that it provides much needed assistance while still allowing the measure of political and economic independence that African nations consider a necessity.

79 Xuetong, op. cit., p. 3.
80 Xuetong, op. cit., p. 4
The bottom line is that some African nations may identify with China because, "similar to them, they are developing nations and unlike them, China has real potential to be an authentic global power and perhaps someday defend Africa's interest."

G. SUMMARY

Since 1949, China's foreign policy has evolved from one based on revolutionary ideology and armed conflict to the more pragmatic stance of peaceful coexistence and economic reform. China's primary objective and ambition has been to gain influence, respect and international political support.

Although China has forged relations with other developing/Third World nations in Latin America and Asia, ideological differences, strategic considerations and the issue of Taiwan have served as natural barriers to graining prestige and spreading its influence. Thus, Africa became the sole venue by which China could successfully compete with the super powers on a level playing field.

China's role and activities can, and have often been, perceived as that of an agitator pursuing an agenda of world revolution. The most difficult aspect of analyzing Chinese foreign policy to this point has involved the task of deciphering the rhetorical content from the real purpose. One element of the analytical task is clear, however, the heart and thrust of China's foreign policy has been its African ambitions.

China has been successful in many of its initiatives and ventures. While it can also be noted that numerous ventures failed and failed miserably.
There are several reasons for the most notable failures. First, China’s successes and failures in foreign policy have been directly correlated with its domestic policies. A primary example was the “Great Proletarian Revolution” in that it sent out an ill-conceived message that China did not practice what it preached.

Second, China has consistently overestimated the blanket support revolutionary ideology would receive in the African states. The fact of the matter is that most African nations have always been wary of China’s motives and intentions.

Third and most important, Zhou was not sufficiently versed in the diversity among the African states. As a result, China did not take the variations of cultural realities and political aims into account while seeking to establish extremely broad-based political and economic alliances. This naiveté was evident when Zhou En Lai stated during the 1960s “Revolutionary prospects are excellent throughout the African continent.” Varying sets of priorities and objectives among diverse sectors of the African population made it almost impossible for China to set a consistent policy. As a result China resorted to implementing policy, on an ad hoc basis, supporting those regions and/or elements that exhibited characteristics favorable, in at least some degree, to China’s ideology.

As has been seen, the 1970s witnessed a perceptual change at the base of Chinese foreign policy. As China emerged from the Great Proletarian Revolution, its objectives in Africa, as elsewhere, became focused on the pragmatic and less revolutionary and rhetorical. Its earlier practices of supporting revolutionary bands and subversive activities had failed miserably. After failing to achieve influence by revolutionary means and given the challenges of a new international environment (in particular the Sino-Soviet conflict), China developed a policy that was much more flexible.
Influence was attained through the orthodox method of bilateral trade, and economic agreements. The change in tactics resulted in wide-scale African support which was not only instrumental in China’s attainment of its U.N. seat but also assured unequivocal African support on many U.N. matters.

In the 1980s, China again underwent a foreign policy metamorphosis exemplified by the Five Principles of Peaceful Coexistence, and Four Principles of Economic and Technical Cooperation. Domestically, China’s focus had been on far-reaching economic reformation. The change in ideological tilt was transposed to the international sector. When nearly half of Africa’s heads of state visited Beijing, the biggest challenge was to bring these countries into the stream of economic reform.

At the end of the 1980s, entering the 90s, China was faced with the international repercussions of the Tianamen Square incident, the cessation of the Cold War and the Gulf War. As self-proclaimed leader of the Third World, China’s rhetoric was obliged to change. Thus South-to-South cooperation as well as economic reform had to be encouraged. The “new world order,” or extension of capitalist free trade into previously socialist domains, would expose a greater need for capital for Third World development than China could provide. The emphasis that China is currently placing on building a Third World trade infrastructure for those nations who are excluded from development because of capital shortage is both an opportunity and potentially the boldest bid that China has yet made in terms of constructing a vast and cohesive network of friendly nations.
III. CONTEMPORARY SINO-AFRICAN FOREIGN POLICY

This chapter examines contemporary Sino-African relations from 1990 to the present. These events have brought about dramatic changes in the international environment and may have far-reaching consequences for China as well as Africa. Of particular importance are 1) the ending of the Cold War, 2) the effect of the American victory in the Gulf War, 3) the American perception of the New World Order, and 4) renewed intensification in the North-South conflict.

A. THE EFFECTS OF THE ENDING COLD WAR ON SINO-AFRICAN RELATIONS

The ending of the Cold War has had a tremendous effect on Africa and Sino-African relations. With the ending of the Cold War African nations "felt marginalized by industrialized nations and has produced a post-colonial identity crisis for a continent long regarded as strategic"\(^8\) in the high stakes struggle between the superpowers. In addition, Africa's relationship with China was also undergoing a metamorphosis of sorts. China, facing international condemnation and economic sanctions as a result of the Tiananmen Square incident, had been forced to decrease the level of aid to African states. China's priority has been to husband its capital resources in an effort to keep its domestic economic agenda on track in the aftermath of the Tiananmen incident. With the exception of loan/aid packages extended to the Central African Republic, Algeria and Ethiopia and the restructuring of Zaire’s debt, Chinese aid has become conspicuously absent following Tiananmen.

In essence there is a feeling of Africa “fatigue” in the international community. No longer an appropriate playing field for superpower surrogates, African has essentially been told to “Get your house in order. No longer a priority.” African states can no longer expect to receive substantial financial or technical assistance from the West. Michael Chege (a Kenyan political scientist) for the Ford Foundation writes:

With the ending of the Cold War, African has lost whatever political luster it may have once had, and there are no compelling geostrategic or economic reasons to catapult it to the top of the global agenda.

B. THE EFFECTS OF THE GULF WAR ON SINO-AFRICAN RELATIONS

This may be changing. The Gulf War sent an uneasy message to China and African States. The willingness of the Western Powers to aggregate their military force and President George Bush’s vision of “New World Order” is being viewed with fear and skepticism by China and the African States who see it as simply another face of neocolonialism. The overwhelming majority of Third World nations share a common history of colonial exploitation. The significance of the Gulf War, when viewed from such a vantage, was not the containment of Iraqi aggression, but rather a full-scale 82Segal, op. cit. p. 124-125.

---

84Segal, op. cit. p. 124-125.
cooperative effort on the part of the industrialized powers to protect western interest in what is still essentially a Western economic sphere of influence. The fact that virtually all the western nations and Japan participated in financing the Gulf War was seen as a testament to the economic interdependence of the Western economies and as a grim omen in regard to the willingness of the industrialized powers to protect their position of economic advantage and "right" to the resources of the world.

African states also fear that they will be left to perpetual economic ruin as what few capital resources that are available are redirected to the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, thereby further stifling their own aspirations and development strategies.85

China recognizes the implications of the ever-shrinking pool of development capital and has called for greater South to South cooperation as the economic gap between North and South, rich vs. poor intensifies. Li Peng (Premier of the State Council) stated at the 5th session of the 7th National Peoples Congress on 20 March 1992:

International economic competition is growing bitter. Contradictions between North and South are becoming more pronounced .... Another key element if our foreign policy is to strengthen solidarity and cooperation between China and other developing countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America and our friendship and cooperation have been increasingly fruitful. The Chinese government supports the just struggle of South African people."86

In China's view power politics and world hegemony is at an all-time high as "Western countries exert economic pressure on the Third World by linking their assistance with democracy and human rights." Africa is a classic example and having abandoned the hopes of the 60s and 70s is now struggling for sheer survival.

The 1980s are known as the "lost decade for Africa" as its economy deteriorated and the number of severely underdeveloped countries rose from 16 to 28 between 1980 and 1989. During the same period GDP stagnated and the economic growth rate dropped from 3.4% to -1.5% the resource balance declined as a percentage of GDP declined from 1.4% to -3.3%. The average annual growth rate further declined from -3.5% to -4.5%. In fact, Africa was the only region in the world not to experience per capital growth. The percentage of African contribution to World Gross Product declined from 1.9% to 1.2%. In addition, Africa is still faced with an external debt that grew to approximately $270 billion. 40% of Africa's export earnings are used to repay interest on that debt approximates $500 million/year. All this while population growth has expanded at a rate of 3%, three times greater than the rate at which agricultural land is being put into production in order to feed the expanding population.

---

89 Ibid.

Moreover, from the period 1990 to present, more than half the African states have been mired in political, national, factional and territorial strife that have continued to cripple the economy. As a result the following leaders have fallen from power. (See Table 8.)

TABLE 8. FALLEN HEADS OF STATE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Status</th>
<th>Date</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Kenneth Kaunda (Zambia)</td>
<td>Voted out</td>
<td>October 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kengistu Haile Mariam (Ethiopia)</td>
<td>Fled</td>
<td>21 May 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Metsing Lekhanya (Lesotho)</td>
<td>Toppled</td>
<td>30 April 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mouissa Traore (Mali)</td>
<td>Toppled</td>
<td>25 March 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mathieu Kerkou (Benin)</td>
<td>Voted out</td>
<td>25 March 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aristides Pereira (Cape Verde)</td>
<td>Voted out</td>
<td>17 February 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Siyad Barre (Somalia)</td>
<td>Fled</td>
<td>27 January 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pinto Da Costa (Sao Tome)</td>
<td>Voted out</td>
<td>20 January 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hissene Habre (Chad)</td>
<td>Fled</td>
<td>2 December 1991</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Samuel Doe (Liberia)</td>
<td>Murdered</td>
<td>10 September 1990</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chadli Benedid (Algeria)</td>
<td>Replaced</td>
<td>June 1990</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam Nujoma (Namibia)</td>
<td>Replaced</td>
<td>June 1990</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

These challenges have forced African nations to seek new alternatives in development. Consequently several OAU, African Leadership Forum conferences have been convened to discuss problems, solutions, and set agendas for progress. In addition, African nations signed an agreement to develop an African Economic Community to promote economic integration and development.

---

91Ibid., p. 13.
These developments have met with tacit approval in China as positive steps towards strengthening the economic position of the Third World.

If Third World nations strive to develop their national economies, strengthen South to South Cooperation, speed up North-South Dialogue, they will become a force in the international arena in the 1990s and a vital part of the world's effort to set up a new international Political and Economic Order.92

China is fully aware that Africa supplies a significant proportion of the world's raw materials to industrialized nations, particularly Europe and Japan.93 Because many of these African nations depend on these materials for their present economic survival and as the source of future investment capital, receiving fair market value is of great importance. Although African minerals play a fundamental role in the economic prosperity of the developed nations, there is insufficient direct investment back into African economies. The perception of a structural inequity in the trade practices currently and historically emplaced are fueling a pan-African consensus for demanding fairer trade policies. If a successful United Front is maintained, the industrialized nations will be forced to restructure trade agreements and practices. China realizes that only economic issues can get a North-South 93Gerard Chaliand, "The Struggle for Africa" (New York: St. Martin's Press, 1980), p. 32-33. Percentage of raw materials are as follows: Diamonds (75%), gold (70%), cobalt (70%), vanadium (50%), platinum (46%), chrome (36%), mananese (30%), copper (20%), uranium (20%). Materials are mostly concentrated in the following areas: South Africa, Namibia, Angola, Zambia, Zaire, the Maghreb, Morocco, Western Sahara, Mauritania, Niger, Algeria and Libya are rich in hydrocarbons, phosphates, iron and uranium. dialogue started and that ultimately the issue of peaceful coexistence is dependent upon mutually beneficial economic interaction.\textsuperscript{94}

C. CHINA AND THE NEW WORLD ORDER

The concept of a New World Order manipulated at the behest of the western powers is offensive to the Chinese leadership. The prospect of the Western Powers colluding to formulate an international order articulated by President George Bush "where diverse nations are drawn together in a common cause to achieve the universal aspirations of mankind: peace and security, freedom and the rule of law. ... America was the only nation on this earth that could assemble the forces of peace"\textsuperscript{95} is threatening to China, which views it as a manifestation of neocolonialism.\textsuperscript{96}

China hopes to foster the development of an entirely different type of "New World Order." As early as 1988, Deng Xiaoping stated:

I recommend that the Five Principles of Peaceful Coexistence which was formulated by us Asians in the 1950s should serve as the norms for the new international order for a very long period of time.\textsuperscript{97}

China views these principles as the norms that should guide future international relations to attain peace and development. The Five Principles are as follows:

\textsuperscript{96} Segal, op.cit., p. 124-125.

\textsuperscript{97} Zhenhuang, op. cit., p. 12.
• Mutual respect for territorial integrity and sovereignty
• Mutual nonaggression
• Noninterference in each others' internal affairs
• Equality and mutual benefit
• Peaceful coexistence.

China vehemently rejects the concept of the New World Order as formulated by President George Bush. China's perception is that it is a "New World Order" dominated by a tripolar U.S.-Western Europe-Japan coalition which supports U.S. hegemonic aspirations and uses democratization and the human rights issue as a condition for economic cooperation.98 China maintains that a viable New World Order should take the needs and interests of all the nations in the world into consideration and that it should not be based on power politics and the continued exploitation of the developing nations of the "Third World." Thus a "fair and rational new international order in which all nations, big or small, will participate" should be the aim.99

Li Peng at the UN Security Summit in January 1992 stated:

... in our view, such basic principles as sovereign equality of member states and noninterference in their internal affairs ... should be observed by all its members without exception. All countries, big, small, weak, rich or poor, are entitled to participate in world affairs as equal members of the community and make their own contributions toward peace and development.100

99Ibid., p. 5.

100"Li Peng Addresses Summit," full text of speech by Li Peng at UN Security Sumit, 31 January 1992, FBIS 3 February 1992 from RENMIN RIBAO OVERSEAS EDITION.
In an interview Li Peng went on to say:

China believes the future new international political and economic order should be based on the Five Principles of Peaceful Coexistence. It would be dangerous for one or several countries to lead the world. We consider that all countries, big or small, rich or poor, and strong or weak, are equal members of the world family, should enjoy equal rights to peace and development of the world and should fulfill their own duties. We also consider that the United Nations should play a greater role in the future new international order.101

1. Diplomatic Offensive

China has undertaken a pragmatic diplomatic offensive seeking to parlay its primacy in the Third World and veto power in the United Nations into a position where it can take a significant role in shaping this “New World Order.” Of the 165 members of the United Nations 130 are deemed to be developing nations. This may well explain why China favors an increased role for the UN in defining the nature and working structure of the New World Order. The Tiananmen Square incident left China in virtual isolation and as a result went from being pursued as a trade partner to being a pursuer. China’s present objective is to establish a network of trade partners that will eventually alleviate dependence on U.S. markets and/or goodwill for achieving their economic goals.

In a six-month period (July 1991 through January 1992) Chinese Premier Li Peng visited six Middle Eastern nations (Egypt, Jordan, Iran, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Kuwait). In January 1992, Foreign minister Qian Qichen visited six subsaharan African nations (Mali, Guinea, Senegal, Ivory Coast, Ghana, and Namibia, including a stopover in South Africa), and established diplomatic ties with Israel. In addition Li Peng also visited members of the EC (Italy, Switzerland, Portugal and Spain.)

The primary objective of Li Peng's diplomatic initiative was to rebuff what he views as the advance of U.S. hegemony by rallying support for a "New World Order" based on the Five Principles and South to South cooperation. Chinese leaders also centered discussions around the international economic situation and debt burdens which are completely crippling the developing nations thereby widening the gap between North and South nations. "They believe that the unreasonable situation must be changed as soon as possible. For this purpose, the South to South cooperation must first be strengthened to realize effective dialogues between the South and the North." In China's view what is needed is a broad united front economic strategy designed to challenge the economic supremacy of the North. China feels that it has consolidated its position, having stood its ground after Tianamen and world isolation. In an effort at least partly motivated by the desire to project a more progressive world image, China has enhanced its global acceptance by participating in the peace settlements in Cambodia and Namibia. Now China is accelerating its evolution toward political moderation by using its diplomatic influence to pursue its primary

---

103 Ibid.

104 Xiaodong, opcit., p. 14.
objective of strengthening its domestic economy. Improving trade, developing new markets, luring foreign investment and technology transference are the top priorities of China’s trade and foreign policies.

China is also seeking support for observer status in the Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) as well as reentry into GATT. China also hopes to play an expanded role as arbiter of international affairs and peaceful conflict resolution.

2. Arms Sales

The issue of China’s proliferation of nuclear weapons and ballistic missile technology to Third world nations is a source of contention between China and the West. China has emerged as the third largest exporter of arms after the United States and the former Soviet Union.\(^\text{105}\) China’s emergence as a major arms exporter coincides with the U.S. exchange of high technology to Beijing. While the United States was selling sophisticated weaponry to China, China became the primary supplier of sophisticated weaponry at bargain basement prices to the Third World. Beijing relies heavily on its arms sales to support its own arms industry, develop new weaponry and gain influence in those regions.\(^\text{106}\)

The most significant commerce involves sales of ballistic missiles to Saudi Arabia ($2-3 billion), M 11 missiles to Pakistan, M9 missiles to Syria and a 15 megawatt nuclear reactor to Algeria.\textsuperscript{107} Attempts to curb missile proliferation have failed despite the fact China has declared its willingness to sign the Nonproliferation Treaty (NPT) "in principle" and entertain the possibility of joining the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR).\textsuperscript{108} Moreover, China is modernizing its military machine, seeking to construct a military capable of projecting power far beyond the adjacent geography. Emphasis has been placed on developing or buying air refueling capability and expanding its Navy, with plans for building an aircraft carrier. In addition China has increased its long-range deployments and exercises. This military buildup should make China a formidable regional force in the near future.\textsuperscript{109}

China resents the pressure tactics and patronizing attitude of the United States represented by linkage of arms sales and human rights issues with renewal of Most Favored Nation status. President Yang Shankun in an interview with \emph{U.S. News and World Report} stated:

American opinion censures us for selling weapons. Yet why does it not censure itself? Many of the weapons in the Middle East are American. So there is a question of fairness here ... China has a saying, "only magistrates are allowed to set fires. Ordinary people are not allowed to light lights ... so we ask Americans to understand the Chinese peoples' frame of mine. China has a psychology that is very important. The more pressure you apply, the less China will give in. If you speak reasonably, if you explain your reasons clearly, China might agree. If you resort to high pressure, however, it will be counterproductive.\textsuperscript{110}

\textsuperscript{108}Ibid.

The often sanctimonious rhetoric of the U.S. is particularly aggravating to China and the Third World in light of the fact that the severe economic deterioration the Third World experienced during the last decade directly coincides with the growth in U.S. debt, which grew from $1 trillion to $4 trillion in the same decade, effectively absorbing much development capital that would otherwise have been available to underdeveloped nations.

Faced with paucity of hard capital China will continue to export arms as a means of meeting strategic and political objectives: gaining influence, recognition as the unequivocal and true leader of the Third World and a legitimate global power. The underground nuclear detonation that too\textsuperscript{111} place in China in May of 1992 is further evidence that the Chinese leadership regards the present as a time for self-assertion and is far more concerned with establishing China's military credibility than with the consequences or censure of American opinion.

D. SINO-AFRICAN RELATIONS AND NORTH-SOUTH CONFLICT SINCE 1990

The motif most frequently articulated by China is the need for increased North-South dialogue, South to South cooperation and a New World Order

\textsuperscript{110}President Yang Shankung, interviewed by Mortimer Auckerman in \textit{U.S. News and that encompasses “both political and economic aspects.” The North-South dialogue is the brainchild of the Group of 77. In 1974 the United Nations adopted the Declaration on the Establishment of a New International Economic Order. Its intent was to negotiate “changes in the global economic system in order to make it more equitable and more supportive of development” in Third World nations. The prospects for a meaningful North-South dialogue gained momentum in the period 1974-1979 as a result of the oil crisis in 1973. The South Commission reports:

It was undoubtedly spurred by the fear of the developed countries that the newly found assertiveness of the South after the rise of oil prices could lead to a damaging confrontation.

At the time the South has some leverage with which to negotiate. Once the leverage disappeared, the northern developed nations abruptly lost interest in the ways they might assist economic development in the southern nations.

In effect meaningful North-South negotiations ended at the conference (UNC/TAD) in Manila ... By that time there had been an ideological shift in the governments of some leading countries of the North. In addition the governments of most of the countries of the North had become preoccupied with fighting inflation at home, and gave no priority to agreeing on a new basis for North-South economic relations or to defining the nature, scope and prospects of interdependence.

112 Ibid.

114 Ibid., p. 217.

Many of the countries in the South (Third World) suffer from a multitude of problems. What the vast majority of the nations of the southern hemisphere have in common is endemic structural poverty that is the direct result of inadequate capitalization and an absence of the type of investment that has wide-spread ramifications and long-term benefits, i.e., reinvestment of profit in local economies that would serve as the basis of capital dispersion and formation. As nations in the North gravitated to high-tech industrialization and stockpiling, the need for raw materials declined by one-third and severely damaged those few Southern economies that had finally gained autonomy over their own resources. Moreover, the high debt accrued by Third World nations, particularly in Africa, preclude sustained economic development. More than 40% of Africa’s annual export earnings are used to service its foreign debt.

At the first North-South Roundtable Conference held in Abidjan 8-9 July 1991, Jean Pierre Bouter, Executive Director of the World Bank said that “developing countries had paid to the North more than it was receiving in loans, grants or investments.” The Chinese leadership maintains that such imbalances are the “root cause” of social instability in the South and will ultimately lead to armed conflict. “In the absence of economic development

---

115 Challenge to the South, op. cit., p. 217.

117 Ibid.
there will be no genuine peace and stability in the world." China rejects the explanation that poverty in Africa is a direct result of African failure to practice democracy and embrace capitalist ideals, asserting rather that the major problem is the exploitation and unfair trade practices employed by the North. Li Peng, in speaking on the issue of global North-South conflict has stated “developed countries should do more and take on more responsibility for narrowing the gap, adopt a more tolerant attitude towards debt, practice exchange of equal values in trade and attach no political strings.

On 8 July 1991 Chairman of the South Commission and ex-President of Tanzania, Julius Nyerere, was in China and presented Li Peng with the Chinese edition of Challenge to the South. The report was a culmination of three years work by the South Commission (formed in 1987) to which China donated $400,000. The report is a comprehensive review and analysis of the development and underdevelopment of countries in the Southern hemisphere. The commission emphasizes the need for Third world nations to intensity their struggle for self-reliance, social justice and solidarity among themselves. The report notes that “despite its great promise and natural resources the Third World has not benefitted from world prosperity.”

Despite the developing world’s technological progress and vast proliferation 118 Luye, Li, “UN Role in Establishing a New World Order,” Beijing Review, September 30 to 6 October 1991, p. 13. Li Luy is the Director-General of the China Center for International Studies and has been China's personal representative for the United Nations.

120 Li Peng, op.cit., July 1991, p. 27.

121 Challenge to the South, op. cit., p. 218.
of consumer goods, 75% of the world’s population (.35 billion are living at or below minimum human subsistence.”

The report also addresses the cause of underdevelopment, inadequate economic infrastructure and lack of education being primary among them. The report is critical of economic and financial arrangements that were clearly designed to foster the interests of the developed countries at the expense of the Third World.

Carrying the theme of inequity on to its logical conclusion, the report advocates the formation of an alliance between the least developed countries and would declare and end to debt repayment within the present terms thereby the developed nations to renegotiate the terms of the debts. The point raised in Challenge to the South reinforce the ideology and rhetoric that China has long been exposed to concerning the Third World. Now it seems the Third World has embraced it and is now ready to make changes.

E. NEW CHINESE LEADERSHIP

There is much speculation as to what the effect of a change in leadership will have on the implementation of its foreign policy. The logical guess is very little. Regardless of who ascends to power the emphasis will continue to be on economic reform. As Harry Harding said in, The Fragile Relationship

The most important development to occur in China in the 1980’s was the program of economic reform and international engagement .... Rooted in the realization that China could not become a modern powerful nation let alone keep up with the rest of Asia-Pacific region....

China’s challenge will be to press ahead with its own development. China is leery to develop full economic interdependence with the U.S. and Japan. Thus it will seek to establish access to markets in the Third World, including Africa. The prospect of a Free South Africa is extremely appealing to both China and Africa. Moreover as mentioned above, African nations have agreed to regional economic integration. Clearly, Chinese diplomatic actions are aimed at long-term rewards. As such, China will continue to perform in a pragmatic fashion internationally in order to achieve its goal of wealth, influence, prestige and most importantly, global power status. But it will have to be within the limits of its own capabilities.
IV. IMPLICATIONS FOR U.S. FOREIGN POLICY

Historical judgment will undoubtedly single out the disintegration of the Soviet Union and the end of the Cold War as being the key events of the previous decade. The Gulf War was looked upon as the herald of a "New World Order." Ironically, however, another war perhaps even more threatening to coexistence and world peace was initiated, though its beginning went completely unnoticed. As of yet, it is a secret war of global proportion, a war of capital deprivation between the Haves and Have Nots.

As with all wars, the root causes have long historical pedigree but the precipitating event of the new Cold War was the monumental growth in U.S. debt, the ramifications of which have driven the majority of underdeveloped nations to the brink of desperation.

Viewed from the perspective of the Have Nots, the actions and policies of the U.S. government in regard to the national debt have two possible interpretations. The first is that the mechanisms of responsible government inside the U.S. have simply broken down and the rest of the interdependent industrial economies have had little choice but to underwrite the growing deficits in order to protect their own investments and insure the continued prosperity of the developed nations as a whole. A collapse of the American economy would have disastrous effects throughout the developed and developing world. A second, and more ominous interpretation is that the developed nations, especially Japan and Germany, which are the primary sources of American debt support, have been more than willing to funnel their surplus investment capital into the U.S. treasury precisely because of the predictable effect it would have on Third World nations. Countries in the grip of starvation and economic chaos have little leverage when haggling over the price of their resources.\textsuperscript{123} Whichever view one subscribes to makes little difference, the fact remains that the prospect a "New World Order" wherein the developed nations employ military cooperation and economic collusion as a means of gaining maximum and unchallenged advantage over the Third World is quite literally life-threatening to the peoples of the underdeveloped nations.

A world-wide shortage of capital and/or its inequitable distribution had already become a global crisis before the disintegration of the Soviet Union and its client states. The current efforts of the Eastern European and Central Asian countries to develop capitalist economies can only have the effect of greatly accelerating the economic decline of the underdeveloped nations. The fact that industrial infrastructures exist in much of the former Soviet Union and Eastern Bloc make them more competitive as receptacles for investment.
Geographic proximity and deep historical ties are also important factors in their ability to attract capital at the expense of southern hemisphere development.

Inasmuch as the decade of the 1980s witnessed the collapse of "communism" inside the Soviet Union, it also bore witness to the failure of "socialism and one-party rule" on the African subcontinent. Though no alternative "ism" per se has yet been embraced by the African peoples, the \textsuperscript{123}Greenhouse, Steven, "U.S. and World: A New Economic Order is Ahead," \textit{New York rhetoric and concept of South and South cooperation, as espoused and formulated by the Chinese leadership, appears to be a logical and perhaps the singular course of action available for many in the Third World as an alternative to a new cycle of colonial rule and exploitation.

A. U.S. FOREIGN POLICY AND INTERESTS IN AFRICA

For the last 40 years United States foreign policy towards Africa has been defined within the strategic context of the East-West struggle. U.S. interest was contingent on the perceived or real threat of its monolithic adversary, the Soviet Union.

Priority was given to those nations which exhibited strategic value, served strategic interests and were on the pro-Western side of the East-West ideological struggle. The primary objective was to contain Soviet geostrategic maneuvering. Africa did not figure into the overall scheme of Western economic development strategy. Both overall direct U.S. investment and exports to Africa hovered somewhere around three percent of U.S. total international investment. However, Africa is a leading source of the world's raw materials and mineral resources. Consequently the concerns of U.S. policy makers focused on the vulnerability of strategic choke points which go through the Indian Ocean and pass by the Cape of Good Hope to the Atlantic. (See Figure 1) Virtually all of Europe's oil and a significant amount of U.S. oil is transported through these shipping lanes. Blockage of these lanes would result in economic hardship of vast proportions. The same is true for the Horn of Africa where oil tankers move from the Persian Gulf through the Red Sea and on to the Suez Canal. As a result of these concerns certain "marriages of convenience" with a number of corrupt despots emerged. Strategically important countries such as Kenya, South Africa, Somalia, Sudan, Zaire, Mozambique, and Liberia embodied everything the U.S. supposedly opposed, lack of democratic rule, repression, human rights infractions, as well as plundering and mismanagement on the part of the leadership. Yet the U.S. consistently ignored injustices to protect its interests and those of its allies in the West.
Figure 1. Map of Africa—Strategic Choke Points

As a result of competition between the Superpowers, regional conflicts and internal struggles were magnified and masked within a Cold War context. "The end of the Cold War," President Bush said in National Security Strategy of the United States, "should benefit Africa in that it will no longer be seen as a battle ground for superpower conflict. In a world of peace, more attention and resources should be freed to help the world's poorest .... Concepts of democracy and market economies must be applied in a continent where initially these concepts were rejected because socialism was fashionable ... Benign neglect will not suffice." 124

In contrast to Presidential and State Department rhetoric, the U.S. has persisted in following a policy (with the exception of the South African region) where Africa is low on the totem pole of priorities. Dictatorial rulers such as Mobuto (Zaire), Barre (Somalia) and Mois (Kenya) whose government were once propped up and were the recipients of substantial U.S. aid have now been told to get their houses in order, make democratic reforms and/or step down.\textsuperscript{125} To make matters worse, the national treasuries of a number of the previously U.S.-backed countries have virtually been looted with the full knowledge for the West. A prime example is Zaire whose ruler, Mobuto, is alleged to have amassed a personal fortune worth $6 billion, half the size of the national debt ($12 billion).\textsuperscript{126} Africa is being seemingly abandoned. If not for the pressure of the Congressional Black Caucus and the TransAfrica lobby, Africa might possibly be deleted from the map of U.S. concerns entirely.

In April, the U.S. advocated a sharp reduction in United Nations Peacekeeping forces being deployed in wartorn Somalia.\textsuperscript{127} In fact the “Horn of Plenty is now the Horn of Misery.” Drought, famine and civil wars plague the countries of Sudan, Ethiopia, Somalia, Eritrea, and Djibouti, threatening the lives of 23 million people. Central Africa is beset with epidemic AIDS and has little to offer in medical facilities and treatment.

To the West, Nigeria, the continent’s most prosperous state, is experiencing social unrest as the result of religious conflict between Islamic and Christian forces. Liberia has also experienced recent political unrest which resulted in the death of Samuel Doe and substantial internal turmoil. Western Sahara is mired in a factional war with Morocco. In North Africa, Libya was just targeted with U.S.-sponsored sanctions. Southern Africa shows the most promise of regional economic and social progress as a result of the reforms recently instituted in Namibia, South Africa, and Zambia.

Despite the generally calamitous conditions, the U.S. needs to revamp its foreign policy with regard to Africa. While it is true that Africa is a conflict-prone region at this juncture in time, much of its conflict is a direct result of its racist colonial past. When the European colonial powers withdrew from their holdings no attempt was made to re-draw national boundaries that would reflect the realities of cultural and historical bands and/or rivalries. The newly independent states had little prospect of quickly becoming viable homogeneous nations. As a consequence, what has arisen has been tribal conflict and foreign-sponsored dictatorships. Nationalism became an obstacle not a goal. Though independent from colonial rule, the legacy bequeathed by the European powers has left Africa to suffer in disarray.

There are, however, some very real geopolitical and economic trends beginning to develop that could have far-reaching consequences. In order to be effective, the post-Cold War U.S. policy should be one based more on genuine partnership for development and less on geopolitical and strategic concerns. There is presently an opportunity for the United States to show authentic leadership in world affairs that extends beyond the boundaries of the industrialized nations and forge a relationship that is beneficial for both

---

European powers divided up the continent at the Berlin Conference in 1884-85. At this time it was acquiesced that a European State could legally claim any territory that was effectively occupied. Consequently, the divisions were instituted irregardless of tribal borders which resulted in conflict. (i.e., indigenous Somalis live in four different states.)
sides. Yet the opportunity may be proven to be evanescent. Michael Clough, a former professor at the Naval Postgraduate School, and an Africanist at the Council of Foreign Relations conveys some reasons why in his book, Free at Last?

One reason is that the Bush Administration has failed to provide any leadership on African Issues. Neither the President nor any of his senior foreign advisers has displayed any real interest in the continent. Instead they have delegated responsibility for policy toward Africa to mid-level officials with limited vision and no domestic political base. These officials operate with considerable latitude so long as they heed three injunctions: 'Don't spend too much money. Don't take stands that might create domestic controversies. Don't let African issues complicate policy toward other, more important parts of the world.'

Former Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs in the Reagan Administration, Chester Crocker, supports this assessment. Speaking to Africa Confidential he said, "Most secretaries of state have just wanted to keep African issues off their desk ... the idea of putting big money into African economic development remains an anathema." Lacking any set of far-reaching goals or policy objectives, the major theme of U.S. foreign policy has been to use the carrot/stick approach to promote increased democratization.

B. THE PUSH FOR DEMOCRACY

In 1990, the U.S. put its African friends on notice that all future aid would be tied to democratic and human rights reforms. In speaking about democracy at the African-American Institute, Assistant Secretary Cohen said in 1991, "... We sincerely believe it is the only way that African people can bring about happiness in the long run."\textsuperscript{131}

---

At an address at the Voice of America symposium, in September 1991 he said,

Equally important, we are making clear the link between political liberalization and outside assistance. We will help countries pursue a democratic course and those already with democratic systems. In an era of escalating demand for scarce sources, we cannot waste non-humanitarian assistance on governments which refuse the path to democracy.\textsuperscript{132}

Even Julius Nyerere, elder statesman and former socialist president of Tanzania, admits serious mistakes were made in Africa. At the African Leadership Forum he told other African heads of state, “The worst deficit we have is the deficit of democracy. We thought we could develop without involving the people.”\textsuperscript{133}

African nations are ready to take full responsibility for themselves and seek African solutions to African problems. Democratic electoral systems, good governance, and a market economy are the desires of most African peoples. But the reality is that being “democratic” is unlikely to improve their economic positions or living conditions. Acquiescing to U.S. demands will not translate into increased aid but rather continuation or even decrease of existing levels of U.S. aid. Simply put, the African states are going to have to run faster to remain in the same place. Democratic values and commitments may be difficult to sustain in the face of growing western trade protectionism, competition from newly industrialized states, a history of authoritarian colonial and post-independence rule, in a context of continued scarcity of resources and ethnic strife.\textsuperscript{134}

C. EFFECT OF CHINESE INITIATIVES ON U.S. FOREIGN POLICY

China will almost certainly emerge as a global power in the 21st Century. As such, it could become a threat to American interests at some point in time. At present China’s consuming priority is to protect its national interest through establishing stability, economic growth, and "building socialism with Chinese characteristics,"\textsuperscript{135}

The Gulf and the Cold War have brought about a new set of relationships for the entire world. While the industrialized nations are redefining relations with African nations, China is doing the same. However, China is taking an entirely different approach. The Chinese view this period as a window of opportunity to gain friends and influence in the international arena. China’s objective is to create a mechanism of influence that extends over the entire African continent.

Learning from their past experience, it is not China’s objective to establish relationships based on political ideology. Rather China seeks relationships based on mutual economic benefit. China combines the pragmatic, visionary

\begin{footnotesize}
\begin{itemize}
\item \textsuperscript{134}Riley, Stephen P., \textit{The Democratic Transition in Africa: An End to the One-party State}, p. 30.
\item \textsuperscript{135}Li Peng, \textit{China’s Foreign Relations}, \textit{Beijing Review}, 23-29, September 1991.
\end{itemize}
\end{footnotesize}
and patient in its approach. Africa's potential for growth, strategic and raw materials and the lure of new markets act as magnets for Chinese ambitions for global expansion.

The goals of China's initiatives in Africa may ultimately be achieved for a rather simple reason, and that is that the United States underestimates the importance of China in Asia and pays too little attention to long-run considerations. Rep. Les Aspin has even put China on the list of potential conventional targets. The United States should show China more respect.

Just as "The Powers That Be" consistently underestimate the importance of China in Asia, they likewise do the same in Africa. In fact in a draft of a strategy document leaked to the New York Times, 8 March 1992 which focused on regional contingencies and conflicts, neither China nor Africa was mentioned. If even potential existed for regional conflict it will surely be in this strategically vital part of the world. Besides the ever-present problem of economic development, one of the greatest threats to the region is the permeation of Islamic fundamentalism throughout the African continent. (See Map #2). China, cognizant of the potential for conflict the Islamic issue represents, has attempted to at least show tolerance by allowing Chinese Muslims to make the pilgrimage to Mecca and opening its own mosques in China.

---

AFRICA
Penetration of Islam

Muslims predominate
Muslims form significant minority

Figure 2. Spread of Islamic Fundamentalism
The fact that China no longer has to frame its dealings with African nations in the context of the Cold War is of considerable benefit to Chinese interests. Gone are the days of outright grants. Further aid is surely to be based on mutual benefit and economic interdependence. Since Africa is, as the director of the Inter Africa Group, Abdul Mohammed, expressed, "The only region where you have B.C., A.D. and the Twenty-first Century" all in one;\(^{138}\) it is a perfect market for the export of low-level technology, that is relatively simple to operate and maintain.

It may be somewhat misleading, however, to characterize the future of Sino-African trade as being solely focused on the exchange of "low-level" technology and equipment. The electronics and computer industries in China are currently producing some products of sufficient quality to stand up to open competition with Japanese and Western manufacturers. China is somewhat unique in this regard, spanning the entire scale of technological and industrial manufacture, which is also a very positive attribute in terms of building trade with Africa.

The development of Sino-African trade need not pose any threat to the interests of the United States. It would be advantageous, however, for the U.S. to expand its trade with China as a means of curtailing an inordinate dependence on building a defense industry as a primary mechanism of employment, industrialization and trade. Roughly 70 percent of the Chinese population is still rural and/or agrarian and living far below the standards the Communist Party wants to achieve. The willingness of the gerontocracy to initiate the radical economic reforms of the last 10 years is ample illustration of the risks the party is willing to take in order to accelerate development and raise the standard of living. The manufacture and proliferation of high-tech weaponry is too profitable for the Chinese to abstain from but U.S. trade policy will undoubtedly be a crucial factor in determining the scale of manufacture and the subsequent effects.

\(^{138}\)Perlez, op. cit. p. 9.

D. THE ROLE OF THE UNITED NATIONS

A final consideration in the development and interplay between Chinese and American versions of the New World Order is the relative stature and position support each can control and solidify in the U.N. China believes that the U.N. should play a significant role in the implementation of the "New World Order." China's diplomatic offensive and self-proclamation as the de facto leader of the "Third World" is in great part designed to solidify Afro-Asian/Third World bloc voting in the General Assembly which would then have the capacity to undercut policies that are disadvantageous to its coalition. Any issue strongly favored by the Assembly is almost certain to be adopted, in spite of American opposition, as was the 1974 vote to expel South Africa. Luye, op cit., p. 121. If the U.S. is going to conform to the United Nations as an instrument and forum for the implementation of its policies, then it must work to establish broad-based support that is inclusive of African and Chinese interests.

Luye, op cit., p. 121.
China will likely emerge as a global power in the 21st Century. With South to South Cooperation and relative apathy by the West towards African in particular and Third World nations in general, China’s economic interaction with Third World countries will certainly grow. Within a framework of economic interdependence Chinese influence in the region will be greatly expanded, thereby challenging Western supremacy. Yes, Africa has its share of problems but steps are being taken to alleviate and/or solve them. Africans have read the handwriting on the wall. As they strive toward regional solidarity and economic prosperity, the United States may find itself on the outside of a formidable economic and political development that has the ability to affect world agendas.

China on the other hand will have solidified its influence in one of the most vitally strategic regions in the world and gained a venue to project the power of its growing navy under the auspices of the Five Principles of Coexistence. If South-to-South cooperation is successful and the result is a more equitable distribution of wealth, they will have achieved their goal of becoming a global power.

In light of these facts, this thesis will conclude with recommendations for policies that I believe will be in the best interests of Africa, China and the United States.

E. RECOMMENDATIONS

1. What is in the Best Interest of Africa

After enduring a history of slavery, colonialism and oppression, Africa is at a crossroads and must chart its own course and destiny. No longer a political or strategic interest to Western nations, African problems will have to and should be solved amongst themselves. Thus the priority should be the cessation of civil wars that are raging in such nations as Liberia, Sudan, Ethiopia, and Angola. A more peaceful Africa will result in an economically integrated Africa. An economically integrated Africa will result in a more prosperous Africa.

Africa's move to democracy, dismantling of Apartheid, development of the new African economic market and setting of agenda's to alleviate poverty and stimulate growth are encouraging developments. Clearly, full political/economic integration and interdependence will beneficial for the entire region. As South African President de Klerk communicated on his visit to several African nations in August 1991: "Trade not aid is the answer to Africa's economic problems." With regional economic powerhouses such as South Africa and Nigeria working in harmony, prospects for technological medical and agricultural exchange and development should be promising. This in turn would lead to self sufficiency. A more self-sufficient Africa would become less of a burden to Western economies.

Economic prosperity combined with its influential voice in the international forums could make Africa a force to be reckoned with. Africa accounts for nearly 1/3 of UN votes (50) and has a tendency to vote in blocs not only in the General Assembly but in other Third World organizations such as the Non Aligned Movement (NAM), UNCTAD and the Group of 77. This reality could impede or aid foreign policy initiatives of more powerful northern states.
Clearly the problems in Africa will not be solved over night but if it remains poor, unstable, underdeveloped and undemocratic it may dissipate into relative obscurity. The solution then becomes for Africa to pool its resources and develop a united front. Africa must meet the challenge to save itself because if they do not do it no one else will.

2. What is in the Best Interest of China?

With the end of the Cold War and the implications of the Gulf War the strategic triangle (U.S.–China–Soviet) has dissipated. While the Chinese government has publicly stated that cultivating improved relations with the U.S. is of extreme importance, China has also made it clear that a healthy relationship is based on mutual respect, the five principles of coexistence and the three joint communiques—the 1972 Shanghai communique, the 1979 Communique establishing diplomatic relations, and the 1982 Communique on Arms Sales to Taiwan. As Li Peng conveyed:

As long as the two sides strictly abide by the principles contained in their three Joint Communiques the existing obstacles can be removed and Sino-U.S. relations further improved.\(^\text{140}\)

Overall Chinese foreign policy is on the upbeat as an be seen by the following facts. The Chinese have not modified their policies on arms sales, human rights issues, and unfair trade practices and detonation of a nuclear weapon, in spite of threatened retaliation. They have resumed friendly relations with Japan, the states of the former Soviet Union and Israel, soon to be followed by diplomatic relations with South Africa. China is also a full participant in the Middle East Peace Conference and the Paris Peace Accord (Cambodia), and still continues to enjoy Most Favored Nation status (MFN) with the United States.

\(^{140}\)Li Peng, \textit{op. cit.}, 1992, p. xvi.

Clearly, China is looking to the Twenty-first Century with optimism. With the collapse of the Soviet Union and a peaceful environment, there is a "window of opportunity" to truly become the leader of the Third World, perhaps fill the power gap and become a world power. With the political support of Third World Nations, renewed South-to-South cooperation, acceleration of the North-South economic gap, increased trade interdependence and arms sales to various regions; China should be able to achieve both strategic and political goals of becoming recognized as a world power. Thus it is in China's best interest at this time to continue with economic reform, pursue its independent foreign policy of peace and contribute to the maintenance of a stable international environment.

3. What is in the Best Interests of the United States?

The Sino-African connection is a reality and prospects for economic interdependence based on "cooperation and mutual benefits" may result in far-reaching effects. Now that the Cold War is over the United States must not forget Africa nor ignore the African challenges of debt, AIDS, refugees, hunger, despots and human rights. Benign neglect, economic stagnation, and heightened poverty may result in the reemergence and perpetuation of despots.

Some African nations have proven thus far that they are willing to move towards democracy and economic development. Although there is no prospect of a Marshall Plan for all of Africa, the U.S. could help in the area of transference of technological and agricultural know-how to help bring about a better way of life. More U.S. Aid (hard cash) is not necessarily the answer.
Much of U.S. aid in the past consisted of machinery, arms and money that conveniently found its way into the pockets of repressive despots. The "aid" never reached or aided the people it was intended for—that being the common person/peasant. I agree with Michael Clough who advocates channeling subsequent aid through independent nongovernmental agencies.
Clough also calls for the mobilization of what he designates as "the third sector" or those non-government organizations (NGO'S) interested in the development of Africa. It is imperative that the U.S. reconcile the needs of Africa within the context of its own global interests. An effective manner in which to achieve this is to utilize the knowledge and expertise of special interest groups such as the Congressional Black Caucus (CBC), the Ford Foundation and TransAfrica. While there are other agencies involved in the region, it is their efforts that effectively have influenced U.S foreign policy towards Africa.

No two organizations have done more to effect change in Africa than Congressional Black Caucus (CBC) and TransAfrica. From the time of CBC's inception in 1971, it was clear that the scope of their concerns would include foreign policy. TransAfrica an African-American lobby was formed in 1977 with an objective to form a progressive United States foreign policy towards Africa in General and South Africa's Apartheid system in particular.
Together they were instrumental in garnering enough support to effectively 141Clough, op. cit., 119-120.

override former President Reagan's veto of the Comprehensive Apartheid Act of 1986. Clearly these sanctions were the strongest by any nation and were responsible for the positive changes taken place in South Africa today. In addition, the CBC has also spoken out against the repressive regimes and Human Right violators in Liberia, Zaire and Ethiopia.

The Ford Foundation founded in 1913 is another non-profit institution whose programs are international in scope. Moreover, the Ford Foundation acts as a Transnational actor with the real ability to influence foreign policy. Its objective is to facilitate the causes of war and strengthen the development of democracies in third World Nations particularly Africa and Asia.

It is the Ford foundation that sponsors both African and Chinese students at American Universities. In 1988, the Ford Foundation sponsored the first U.S.–China African Studies conference in Beijing. Since then the US–African Studies Exchange Committee has been formed. George Yu writes:

With Africa as its intellectual focus the Committee has brought together American and Chinese Africanist from universities and institutions in the United States and China to discuss and examine topics of common interest... Several levels of formal academic exchanges have been conducted, including lecture visits to Chinese institutions by American Africanist and research/study in the United States followed by field work in Africa by Chinese Scholars. At least three parties benefit African, Americans and Chinese.

143 Conversation with Professor Carl Rosberg at the University of Berkeley, 8 April 1992.

Keeping the lines of communication open with both Africa and China is vital to fostering healthy relations. President Bush's decision to renew most favored nation status was the right thing to do in dealing with China. It is important to keep the lines of communication open between Washington and Beijing.

Although some experts may argue that Africa has lost its strategic value, potential for future regional conflict may make it advisable to have access to military facilities, with port calls and visit rights. Without cooperation from allies or non-allies the U.S. will not be able to meet its desire for forward deployment as set forth in the National Military Strategy. With the Chinese attempting to procure an aircraft carrier and SU-27 Aircraft (capable of inflight refueling) from the former Soviet Union, it is wise to keep our security options open in the African region.

If the United States chooses to ignore totally the development and aspirations of Africa, it could very well find itself "on the outside looking in" on a region that has great future potential.

For its own good, the United States should monitor China-Africa relations very carefully. It would be inexcusable to lose the support and goodwill of these important parts of the world simply because of carelessness or neglect.

---

APPENDIX A. TIME LINE 1949-1992

CHINA/AFRICA/UNITED STATES

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1949</th>
<th>1950</th>
<th>1951</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>CHINA</td>
<td>AFRICA</td>
<td>UNITED STATES</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fall of Nanjing and Beijing</td>
<td>Race riots in South Africa</td>
<td>Truman begins second term</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chiang Kai-Shek resigns</td>
<td>Apartheid instituted</td>
<td>Dean Acheson becomes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nationalists withdraw to</td>
<td>Libya granted independence</td>
<td>Secretary of State</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>island of Formosa (Taiwan)</td>
<td></td>
<td>Secretary of State Forrestal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC assumes power. Mao Tse-</td>
<td></td>
<td>resigns—succeeded by Louis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tung (Chairman), Zhou En</td>
<td></td>
<td>A. Johnson</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lai (Premier/Foreign minister)</td>
<td></td>
<td>Formation of NATO</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UN General Assembly asks</td>
<td></td>
<td>DOD and JCS established</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>members to respect</td>
<td></td>
<td>Mutual Defense Assistance</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sovereignty of China</td>
<td>Act</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC demands ouster of KMT.</td>
<td></td>
<td>U.S. issued a White Paper:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC recognized by USSR,</td>
<td></td>
<td>All Aid to Nationalist China</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eastern Europe</td>
<td></td>
<td>Cess.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC seizes all American</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>assets</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30-year Treaty of Friendship,</td>
<td>Group Areas bill enacted in</td>
<td>U.S. authorizes continuance of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alliance and Mutual</td>
<td>South Africa</td>
<td>H-bomb development</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Assistance w/USSR signed</td>
<td>Eritrea reunited with</td>
<td>Sen. Joe McCarthy Communist</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Invasion of Tibet</td>
<td>Ethiopia</td>
<td>“witch hunt” proved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC “volunteers” intervened</td>
<td>New constitution in Nigeria</td>
<td>unjustified</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in the Korean War</td>
<td></td>
<td>Internal Security Bill</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.S. recognizes PRC</td>
<td></td>
<td>Korean War</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mao criticizes South African</td>
<td></td>
<td>U.S.-led embargo on PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>discriminatory and anti-</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Communist policies</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| Tibet Agreement | U.N. Trusteeship criticizes | Truman declares that U.S.
| PRC opposes rearmament of | South Africa (southwest | would not bomb China |
| PRC | Africa | U.S. sends arms to Taiwan |
| Language and education | Sudan rejects unification with | John Foster Dulles attempts to |
| reforms | Egypt | dissuade Britain from |
| Abstention on U.N. resolution | Egypt restricts shipping in | allowing PRC participation |
| criticizing Egypt’s restrictions | Suez Canal | in Japan Peace Treaty |
| on Suez Canal | | Proposal of Joint Middle East |
| | | Command with U.K. and | | | | France |
1952

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC and USSR end joint administration of Changchun Railway</td>
<td>Anti-French riots in Tangier</td>
<td>Japanese Peace Treaty ratified (ANZUS)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Anti-British riots in Egypt</td>
<td>McCarran-Water Immigration and Nationality Act</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Non-White campaign in South Africa</td>
<td>Eisenhower elected President</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Anti-British May Insurrection in Kenya</td>
<td>John Foster Dulles becomes Secretary of State</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Britain formally transfers Eritrea to Ethiopia</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Anti-French riots in Tunisia</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Military coup in Egypt, King Farouk abdicates</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Egypt signs independence agreement with Sudan</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1953

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5-Year Plan initiative</td>
<td>Zambia united with Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland (and Malawi) become Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland</td>
<td>Japan occupation ends</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC announces aid program aimed at developing, with USSR, heavy industry</td>
<td>Engagement of Public Safety legislation in South Africa</td>
<td>U.S. ROK Treaty signed</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Geneva Conference</td>
<td>Mau Mau insurrection (cont)</td>
<td>Geneva Conference on Ind-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China-Islam Association formed</td>
<td>Sudan votes for complete independence from Egypt</td>
<td>China</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Walter Sisulu: Secretary General of African National Congress (ANC) visits China

1954

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5 Principles of Peaceful Coexistence initiated</td>
<td>Prime Minister Malan retires in South Africa</td>
<td>H-bomb testing in Marshall Islands</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1955

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC and Taiwan battle in Taiwan Straits</td>
<td>Egypt-Czech arms deal</td>
<td>Pres. Eisenhower asks for authorization to defend Taiwan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Banding Conference attended by 29 states, Ethiopia, Egypt, Ghana (Gold Coast), Liberia, Libya and Sudan attend banding</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PRC Egypt trade deal</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1956</td>
<td>CHINA</td>
<td>AFRICA</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>-------</td>
<td>--------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ban on U.S. news reporters lifted</td>
<td>Tangiers unites with Morocco</td>
<td>First airborne H-bomb exploded</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eighth Party Congress</td>
<td>Togo declared autonomous republic</td>
<td>U.S. supplies Israel with arms</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Denial of U.N. seat</td>
<td>Sudan gains autonomy and joins Arab League</td>
<td>U.S. denies arms to Egypt</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Missile development commences</td>
<td>Somalia elects first premier Abdullah Issa</td>
<td>U.S. denies aid for Aswan Dam</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Morocco gains independence</td>
<td>Eisenhower re-elected</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Tunisia gains independence</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Egypt recognizes PRC, establishes relations</td>
<td>Gamal Nasser elected President of Egypt</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Egypt nationalizes Suez to pay for Aswan Dam; gains complete control</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China endorses Egyptian actions at Suez and offers volunteers to assist in running canal</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Establishment of West Asian and African Affairs Department (foreign ministry)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1957</th>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Mao's Hundred Flowers Campaign commences</td>
<td>Gold Coast and British</td>
<td>Eisenhower Doctrine</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>France refuses to grant Algerian independence</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Director of West Asia and Africa Affairs</td>
<td>Kio Hua visits Ghana</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kio Hua visits Ghana</td>
<td>PRC sends aid to Algeria (FLN)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC delegations visit Ethiopia, Egypt, Ghana, Morocco, Sudan and Tunisia</td>
<td>Asia-African Solidarity Conference</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asia-African Solidarity Conference</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC and USSR conflict on Middle Eastern and African policy</td>
<td>U.S. supplies Tunisia with arms despite French protest</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1958

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5-year Plan</td>
<td>All-African Peoples Conference</td>
<td>Seventh Fleet escorts</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bombardment of Quemoy Islands</td>
<td>Mauritania gains autonomy from France</td>
<td>Taiwanese convoy to Quemoy Islands</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peoples communes formed</td>
<td>Senegal gains autonomy from France</td>
<td>U.K. decides not to support U.S. in Quemoy crisis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Great Leap Forward</td>
<td>Guinea gains independence from France: Sekou Toure president</td>
<td>U.S. PRC talks in Warsaw, Poland</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anti-Chinese demonstrations in Tibet</td>
<td>Mali gains autonomy from France</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-USSR Technical Assistance Agreement</td>
<td>Ivory Coast gains autonomy from France</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations with Morocco and Algeria</td>
<td>Dahomey declared republic</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>French colony Ubang, Shari becomes Central African Republic</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>French Congo gains independence and becomes Gabon</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Middle Congo becomes Republic of Congo</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Madagascar becomes semi-autonomous</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>French Somaliland chose to remain a territory of France</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Tunisia clashes with French troops; joins Arab League</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Egypt and Syria become UAR; USSR lands 100 million for construction of Aswan Dam</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1959

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Anti-Chinese Turmoil in Tibet; Dalai Lama flees to India; calls for U.N. action vs. PRC</td>
<td>Pres. Toure (Guinea) and Pres. Nkrumah sign agreement for a union of independent African states</td>
<td>Dulles resigns as Sec. of State; Christian Herter succeeds</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>USSR voice support for PRC quest for offshore islands</td>
<td>Senegal, Mali and Sudan for Mali Federation: Hodibo Keha Premier</td>
<td>Pres. Eisenhower visits Tunisia and Morocco</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-Guinea sign technical agreement</td>
<td>Upper Volta gains autonomy</td>
<td>Rusk: Reassesses PRC</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PRC establishes relations with Sudan and Guinea

Senegal, Fr. Sudan, Ivory Coast, Mauritania, Niger, Volta and Dahomey form Customs Union

1960

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Severe floods and droughts</td>
<td>African nationalism in full swing</td>
<td>Sit-in demonstration led by Martin Luther King</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Civil Rights Act of 1960</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Pres. Eisenhower visits Asia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Polaris Missile launch</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>John Fitzgerald Kennedy elected president</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>USSR technician withdraw from PRC; relations strained</td>
<td>Mauritania becomes and independent Islamic republic; Moktar Ould, president</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Senegal withdrawn from Mali Republic</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Guinea leaves France Zone and accepts USSR economic aid</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Second Afro-Asian People Solidarity Organization Conference (AAPSO)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Sit-in demonstration led by Martin Luther King

Civil Rights Act of 1960

Pres. Eisenhower visits Asia

Polaris Missile launch

John Fitzgerald Kennedy elected president
1960 (continued)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>China-Africa People's Friendship Association (CAPFA) established</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC gives economic aid to Guinea</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Upper Volta gains full independence</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>U.S. forces evaluation of base at Ben Simane (Morocco)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC accepts Soviet proposal to transform Solidarity Council into AAPSO</td>
<td>Niger gains independence from France</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Chad gains independence; stays in France</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Togo gains full independence from France; Sylvanus Olympio</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Dahomey gains full independence</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Nigeria gains full independence; Nnamdi Azikiwe first governor-general</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Central Africa proclaims independence</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Gabon gains independence</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Belgian Congo becomes Independent Congo Republic; Lumumba</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Civil war/Lumumba (Congo)-Gizenga</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Madagascar becomes independent</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>British and Italian Somalia reunited to form Somali Republic gaining full independence; Osman first president</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Aswan Dam construction</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

95
| 1961 |
|---|---|---|
| CHINA | AFRICA | UNITED STATES |
| PRC-North Korea Mutual Defense Treaty Countryside organized into 80,000 communes | Charter of Casablanca (NATO-like organization of African states) (Morocco, Ghana, Guinea, Mali and UAR) USSR vetoes Mauritania's membership to U.N. | Peace Corps established Freedom rides Bay of Pigs Berlin Wall First U.S. space flight |
| PRC establishes relations with Congo, Tanganyika AAPSO (Afro-Asian People Solidarity Organization) Establishes Aid Committee to Algeria and Congo, PRC vice-chair | Sierra Leone becomes independent state Dahomey seizes Ajuda Northern Cameroon unites with Nigeria Ex-Premier Lamumba of Congo assassinated; USSR accuses U.N. Secretary Hammarskjold; Adoula-Gizenga reconciled Insurgency in Angola begins Rwanda proclaimed a republic Burundi petition U.N. for independence South Africa severs ties with U.K.; becomes republic Tanzania granted independence; Pres. Julius Nyrere Jomo Kenyatta (Kenya) released from prison Tunisia/Algeria continue struggle with France Syria with draws from UAR | President Kennedy warns that U.S. would oppose any unilateral intervention |
1962

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sino-border War</td>
<td>OAS established in Lagos, Nigeria</td>
<td>India request aid via President Kennedy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Afro Asia without USSR</td>
<td>Casablanca states and UAR boycott OAS in support of Algeria</td>
<td>Lt. Col. John Glenn becomes first president to make orbital flight</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Cuban Missile Crisis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nasser mediates Sino-India War</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Sino-Soviet rift widens

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

PRC-Indonesia discuss plan for Afro-Asian trade Union with USSR participation

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

PRC establishes relations with Uganda

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Algerian War ends; admitted to Arab League and U.N.

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Rwanda: U.N. mandate terminated

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Congo: U.S. submits plan to persuade Tshombe to accept plan for unifying Congo states. Tshombe accepts

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Zambia: Kaunda's party (United National Federal Party) and ANC unite to establish African majority

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Malawi gains complete autonomy (Tanzania)

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Tanganyika becomes a republic

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Uganda gains independence

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

PRC issue 200 of 400 African scholarships to Somalia

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

1963

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

PRC-USSR rift widens; PRC identifies USSR as “white men” who have no right to be on African continent

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

CCP criticizes USSR for military aid to India

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Third Afro-Asian (AAPSO) Conference

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Cong: Tshombe flees as Katanga state is abolished

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Zambia secedes from Rhodesian Federation

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

U.N. Bans military shipments to South Africa

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Martin Luther King “I Have a Dream” speech

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

John Fitzgerald Kennedy assassinated

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

LBJ president

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Race riots in Birmingham

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Nuclear Test Ban Treaty

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Hotline (communication link) established with USSR

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Zhou En-Lai begins Africa tour to 10 African states

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

PRC loans Algeria 17 million dollars

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

PRC refuses to sign Test Ban Treaty

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Zanzibar granted self-government by British

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Jomo Kenyatta elected Prime Minister of Kenya

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

Algeria-Moroccan War

|                        |                                                  |                                                    |
|                        |                                                  |                                                    |

---

97
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Zhou En-Lai continues visits to UAR, Algeria, Morocco, Tunisia, Ghana, Mali, Guinea, Sudan, Ethiopia, Somalia and Rhodesia</td>
<td>First meeting of Organization of African Unity (Cairo) Boycott Portugal and South Africa Ghana voice support for Zhou En-Lai's Anti-Imperialist Conference Mozambique Revolution against Portugal Federation of Rhodesia dissolved Nelson Mandela imprisoned in South Africa Tanganyika and Zanzibar merge to become Tanzania</td>
<td>Aid terminated to ROC Civil Rights Bill LBJ is elected Race riots in Harlem, Jersey City Warren Commission report (John Fitzgerald Kennedy) findings</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC signs Treaty with Yemen Zhou En-Lai visits Burma, Pakistan and Ceylon PRC and USSR discuss border disputes/convocation of World Congress of Communist Parties Tibet gains autonomy Zhou En-Lai visits Moscow</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations with Zanzibar, Kenya, Burundi</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC loans Algeria 17 million dollars PRC refuses to sign Test Ban Treaty</td>
<td>Kenya becomes on-party republic (Kenyatta) Sudan depots 300 missionaries USSR supports Somalia in war with Kenya and Ethiopia</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preparatory meeting for the Second Afro-Asian Conference (Djakarta); PRC attempts to exclude USSR from conference scheduled for 1965 World Federation of Scientific Workers participants urged to present &quot;broad united front against U.S. imperialism in Vietnam</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>World Federation of Scientific Workers participants urged to present &quot;broad united front against U.S. imperialism in Vietnam</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>First stage of Aswan Dam completed</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

98
| 1965 |  |  |
|-----|----------------|----------------|----------------|
| CHINA | AFRICA | UNITED STATES |
| Cultural Revolution (GPRCR) | Third meeting of OAU | Civil rights march from Selma to Montgomery |
| PRC-Kuwait Trade Agreement | Collapse of Second Banding Conference | Malcolm X assassinated |
| | Gambia gains independence | Voting Rights Act |
| | Ghana severs ties with Rhodesia | Higher Education Act |
| PRC-Congo sign 10 year Treaty of Friendship | Tibet announces autonomy | Vietnam involvement intensifies |
| | Tanzania becomes one party state | American Embassy bombed in Saigon |
| | Afro-Asian Islamic Conference at Casablanca |  |
| PRC offers to build Tan-Zam Railway; preliminary team begins survey | Lin Rao’s “Long live the victory of People’s War” |  |
| | Tanzania severs British ties; assume role as leader of Anticolonialism and African liberation |  |

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1966</th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Third 5-year Plan aborted by GPCR</td>
<td>OAU meeting at Addis Ababa; call for South African sanctions</td>
<td>Vietnam War protests</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Formation of Red Guards</td>
<td>Chad-Sudan at war</td>
<td>Race riots continue in major cities</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC trade with noncommunist countries flourishes</td>
<td>President Nkrumah visits Beijing; coups ensues in Ghana while on visit; reestablishes ties with British and expels PRC and USSR advisors</td>
<td>President Johnson travels to Asia to solidify support for Vietnam</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guided missiles and nuclear tests</td>
<td>Angola Civil War</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deng Xiaoping purged</td>
<td>Zambia adopts 4-Year National Development Plan</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Rhodesian crisis</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Kenya: expulsion of pro-communist forces</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1967

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Cultural Revolution continues</td>
<td>OAU calls for use of force to overthrow Rhodesian regime</td>
<td>Nonproliferation Treaty concluded Race riots in Detroit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PRC, Zambia and Tanzania sign loan agreement for Tan-Zam Railway</td>
<td>Anti-missile Network to counter PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Detonation of hydrogen bomb</td>
<td>Vietnam Peace March</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PRC Nuclear, PRC builds hydroelectric plant in Testing (7th) Guinea</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Arab-Israeli War (6-day War)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lin Rao’s “Long live the victory of People’s War”</td>
<td>President Kaunda of Zambia visits PRC Guerrillas stationed in Zambia raid Rhodesian positions Kaunda mediates cease-fire with Kenyan and Somalian leaders</td>
<td>Israel attacks USS Liberty Justice Thurgood Marshall confirmed to Supreme Court</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC extends trade credit to Egypt</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC recognizes Yemen</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1968

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Order restored, Cultural Revolution over</td>
<td>OAU meeting admits Swaziland and Mauritius bringing number to 42</td>
<td>President Johnson announces refusal to seek re-election U.S.-PRC talks in Warsaw</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC builds railway between Mali and Guinea</td>
<td>Tet offensive</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Detonation of hydrogen bomb</td>
<td>Martin Luther King assassinated Nixon elected president Civil Rights Act Sen. Robert Kennedy assassinated</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1969

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC and USSR border clashes Ninth Party Congress meets in secrecy (GPCR officially over)</td>
<td>Congo: Pres. Mobutu visits Brussels Zambia nationalizes copper mining Rhodesia severed ties with Britain</td>
<td>ABM debates Vietnam protest continues U.S. relaxes trade restrictions against PRC Apollo II walk on moon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC, Zambia and Tanzania sign loan agreement for Tan-Zam Railway</td>
<td></td>
<td>Nixon Doctrine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sudan coup by junior officers Eritrean Liberation Front hijacks Ethiopian Airlines</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1970

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PRC begins construction on Tan-Zam Railway</th>
<th>Anti-war protests</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC launches satellite PRC reemerges in Africa via friendship, cultural, technical and delegations PRC becomes largest donor of aid to Africa</td>
<td>Rhodesian Republic proclaimed Uganda nationalized banks Kenya Kenya orders 1000 Asian businesses to close Libya—Moammar Qaddafi becomes premier; closes British and U.S. base Egypt's Nasser visits USSR; dies succeeded by Anwar Sadat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Secretary of State Rogers tours ten African countries Congo: President Mobutu visits the United States Ethiopia: Revelation of U.S. agreement which applied army</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations with Equatorial Guinea and Ethiopia</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1971

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Fourth 5-year Plan</td>
<td></td>
<td>U.S. recognizes PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC launched second satellite</td>
<td></td>
<td>Pentagon Papers (CBC)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reorganization of CCP</td>
<td></td>
<td>Congressional Black Caucus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC builds nuclear sub</td>
<td></td>
<td>forms submits 61 recommendations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kissinger visits PRC</td>
<td></td>
<td>which included Africa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC formally admitted to U.N.</td>
<td></td>
<td>South Africa Sugar Acts</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC voted into U.N. African</td>
<td></td>
<td>Rep. Diggs walkout on U.N. vote on</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>vote 26-15; this gave them</td>
<td></td>
<td>Apartheid; later resigns</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the necessary votes—26 October</td>
<td></td>
<td>Nixon visits USSR</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>ABN and SALT II Treaties</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Watergate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Nixon reelected</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PRC establishes relations with Cameroon, Nigeria, Rwanda, Senegal, Sierra Leone

1972

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC-US communiqué</td>
<td></td>
<td>Nixon visits PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The teaching of Confucius</td>
<td></td>
<td>Nixon visits USSR</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>discredited</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Zambia: CBC holds first press</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>conference in Africa pledged</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>support and deep affinity between</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>African Americans and Africans</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC purchases US wheat</td>
<td></td>
<td>Watergate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Nixon reelected</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>First African American</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Conference</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>CBC issues “Black Declaration of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Independence and Bill of Rights;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>RT Africa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>with Chad, Malagasi Republic,</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mauritius, Togo, Zaire</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

102
1973

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>10th Party Congress</td>
<td></td>
<td>Withdrawal from Vietnam</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Birth Control Campaign</td>
<td></td>
<td>Kissinger becomes Secretary of State</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>France President visits PRC</td>
<td></td>
<td>USSR threatens to intervene in</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC goes on force alert in</td>
<td>Arab-Israeli War</td>
<td>CBC issues “the true state of the</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>response to USSR activity</td>
<td></td>
<td>union overview” in response to Nixon’s State of the Union address</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deng Xiaoping reemerges</td>
<td></td>
<td>Oil crises: OPEC raises prices 300%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>under patronage of Zhou En-</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lai</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC trade for western</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>technology increases</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>with Upper Volta</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1974

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Deng admitted to Politburo</td>
<td></td>
<td>Nixon resigns; Ford becomes new president</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deng Xiaoping visits UN;</td>
<td>Portuguese overthrown</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>expands upon Three World</td>
<td>Angola</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Theory</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-Japan MFN</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>with Gabon, Gambia, Guinea-</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bissau, Niger</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1975

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Fourth National People’s</td>
<td></td>
<td>Reduces ROC forces</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Congress; 1975 State</td>
<td></td>
<td>Suspension of aid to Israel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constitution; four</td>
<td></td>
<td>USS Mayaguez incident</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>modernizations; 1975 State</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constitution</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-EEC relations</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deng Xiaoping visits France</td>
<td>Cuba sends troops to</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC increases exports to</td>
<td>Angola</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kuwait</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC, Zambia and Tanzania</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>complete for Tan-Zam Railway</td>
<td>President Ford visits PRC</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(TAZARA)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC’s Third satellite</td>
<td></td>
<td>CBC meets with Kissinger to discuss US-Africa policy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>with Botswana, Comoros, Sao</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tome and Principe, Mozambique</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1976</td>
<td>1977</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CHINA</td>
<td>AFRICA</td>
<td>UNITED STATES</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fifth 5-year Plan</td>
<td>Libya, Egypt border clash</td>
<td>Vietnam reunited</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Death of Zhou En-Lai; succeeded by Hua Guofeng</td>
<td>Abrogation of Egyptian-USSR treaty; strained relations</td>
<td>Carter is elected president; CBC drafts African-American Manifesto on Southern Africa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deng purged again</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mao Zedong dead</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gang of Four purged</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Egyptian delegation visits PRC culminating in arms deal</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC Muslims make Hajj to Mecca</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations with Cape Verde, Seychelles</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| Deng in power | Cuban troops in Ethiopia | Carter Doctrine |
| 11th Party Congress | Egypt cools relations with USSR; border clashes with Libya; Sadat visits Israel | CBC initiates Brain Trust system |
| PRC becomes third largest spender on arms behind U.S. and USSR | | Andrew Young is U.N. ambassador |
| | | Transafrica (African-American lobby established) |
| | | Arms embargo to South Africa; Carter addresses U.N. |
| | | Death of Steven Biico in South Africa |
| | | First Anti-apartheid resolution (HCR 388) |
| PRC establishes relations with Liberia | | |
1978

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5th National People’s Congress</td>
<td></td>
<td>Nonproliferation Act</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC steps up anti-USSR rhetoric</td>
<td></td>
<td>EEC begins European Money System</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1st 10-year Plan</td>
<td></td>
<td>Carter okays sale of arms and U.S. technology to PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-EEC sign 5-year trade agreement</td>
<td></td>
<td>1st PRC-US student exchange resume</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sadat visits PRC</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-Japan sign 20b trade agreement</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>USSR request talks to improve PRC relations; PRC refuses</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-Japan Treaty of Friendship</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC supports Camp David talks</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Missile purchase from France</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-Taiwan reproachment</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations with Libya</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1979

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC normalizes relations with U.S.</td>
<td>US-PRC normalize relations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC clashes with Vietnam</td>
<td>U.S.-Philippines 5-year base agreement</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC to participate in Olympics</td>
<td>SALT II negotiations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Successful ballistic missile test</td>
<td>U.S. cut aid to Pakistan because of nuclear development</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Request USSR pull out of Afghanistan</td>
<td>Three Mile Island</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Authorization of MX missile</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Andrew Young resigns as U.N. ambassador</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Deng visits</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Shah harbored in New York. Iran hostage crisis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC establishes relations with Djibouti</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1980

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Base agreement with Kenya, Somalia and Oman</td>
<td>Israel-South Africa nuclear test</td>
<td>U.S. sells weapons to PRC and ROC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6th National Congress; Zhao Ziyang becomes premier</td>
<td></td>
<td>USSR grain embargo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC and U.S. coordinate aid for Majahidin via Pakistan</td>
<td></td>
<td>Refugee ceiling 50,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC primary arms supplier for Pakistan</td>
<td></td>
<td>Iran hostage failed rescue attempt</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Successful test of CSSX-4 ICBM</td>
<td></td>
<td>Vance resigns; succeeded by Muskie</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gang of Four trial</td>
<td></td>
<td>Boycott of Olympics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Computer sale to PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Congressmen Gray and Solarz visit South Africa</td>
<td></td>
<td>Reagan elected; A. Haig Sec of State</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1981

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Iran delegation visits PRC process Third World membership</td>
<td>Egypt (Sadat) expels 1,000 Soviets; Sadat assassinated; Mubarak succeeds</td>
<td>RDF formed</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6th 5-year Plan</td>
<td></td>
<td>Pope shot</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trade surplus 6.1 billion with other Third World countries</td>
<td></td>
<td>Haig: Reaffirms arms sales; has strategic imperative</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC resumes Third World rhetoric</td>
<td></td>
<td>U.S. neutron bomb production</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-ROC reunification rejected</td>
<td></td>
<td>Sandra Day O'Connor first female Supreme Court Justice</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC launches three satellites</td>
<td></td>
<td>Trident sub launched</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.S.-Egypt 20 accord for two nuclear power plants</td>
<td></td>
<td>CBC calls for dismissal of Jean Kirkpatrick for meeting with South African military officers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>U.S. vetoes U.N. council resolution condemning South Africa for invading Angola</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1982

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC announces independent foreign policy, pragmatic ideology</td>
<td></td>
<td>Shultz becomes Sec of State</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC proposal for arms control at U.N. meeting</td>
<td></td>
<td>Falklands War</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-US 5-year textile agreement</td>
<td></td>
<td>Suspension of PRC nuclear program</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12th Party Congress</td>
<td>Zaire renews relations with Israel</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-U.S. discuss development of nuclear industry</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-U.K. talks on H.K. begin</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1st submarine missile launched.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>CBC attempts to block IMF loan to South Africa</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1983

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC high tech revolution sweeping world</td>
<td>Zhao Ziyang on Today. Visit to Africa; cancel 100 million debt to Zaire</td>
<td>Reagan “evil empire” speech</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Israel-Zaire 5-year Military Cooperation Agreement</td>
<td>SDI research begins</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>DC government divests in South Africa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>U.S. embassy in Beirut and USMC barracks bombed</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Navy shells Druze positions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>U.S.-Grenada invasion</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>SECDEF Weinberger visits PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CHINA</td>
<td>AFRICA</td>
<td>UNITED STATES</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------</td>
<td>--------</td>
<td>--------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC endorses Middle East conference</td>
<td>IMF approved 359.6 million in loans to Zaire</td>
<td>Navy shells Lebanon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-U.S. increase trade agreements</td>
<td></td>
<td>Deployment of Cruise missiles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zhao Ziyang visits U.S. as well as defense minister</td>
<td>CBC calls for release of Nelson Mandela; escalation of student protest</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Reagan visits PRC; sign Nuclear Cooperation Agreement</td>
<td>Free South Africa protests</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Launch of first satellite</td>
<td>Reagan denounces apartheid</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Statement in support of global peace based on five principles</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PRC-U.K. agree on Hong Kong</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Arab countries consider PRC as prime market investment</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Jordanian contract to build four nuclear plants in PRC</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1985

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TRADE DELEGATION TO JORDAN</th>
<th>RACE RIOTS IN EASTERN CAPE OF SOUTH AFRICA</th>
<th>SOUTH AFRICA SANCTIONS LEGISLATION INTRODUCED BY REP. GRAY AND DELUNS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Kuwait oil minister</td>
<td>Israel Airlift Ethiopian Jews</td>
<td>Julius Nyrere steps down as president of Tanzania</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Educational reform</td>
<td>Riots in Sudan</td>
<td>South Africans cross Angola for preemptive strike against SWAPO-guerrillas</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7th 5-year Plan; National</td>
<td>80 Asian African countries</td>
<td>Pope John Paul visits Togo, Ivory Coast, Cameroon, Zaire, Kenya, Morocco</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Party Congress</td>
<td>meet in Bandung, Indonesia</td>
<td>Anti-apartheid Act</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arab-PRC Investment</td>
<td>to mark 30th anniversary of Asia Africa Conference</td>
<td>Anti-apartheid march</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conference</td>
<td>Sudan accepts military aid from Libya</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Walker spy scandal; Pollard spy scandal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Gramm-Rudman Bill</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Anti-apartheid Act</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Anti-apartheid march</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>President Reagan signs 1 million in aid to Mozambique</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Chase Manhattan Bank suspends credit to South Africa</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

New Zealand refuses port visit for U.S. nuclear ship
ASW sales to PRC
Sale of reactors and nonmilitary technology
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1986</th>
<th>1987</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>CHINA</td>
<td>AFRICA</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC has relations with over 120 countries</td>
<td>(Israel) Peres to Cameroon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Becomes 47th member of Asian Bank</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>African student protest in Beijing</td>
<td>Egypt-PRC create Islamic Bank</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>President Reagan vetoes Antiapartheid Act, veto is overridden by both House and Senate. Sanctions follow</td>
<td>Student protests for democratic reforms</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Central Committee reaffirms policy of economic reforms</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1987</td>
<td>1987</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC negotiation to launch Iranian satellite</td>
<td>South Commission established headed by Julius Nyerere; PRC donated 400,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hu Yaobang resigns</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Li Peng: PRC will not pull back partial economic reforms</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-Portugal: return of Macao (1999)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC increases troops on India borders</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC permanent outposts in Spratley Islands</td>
<td>75 Israeli engineers work on Cavi project in South Africa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC refuses diplomatic relations because of aggressive foreign policy</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>U.S. withholds sales of high tech items due to silkworm sales</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13th Party Congress; Deng retires; Zhao Ziyang elected (General Secretary) Li Peng appointed premier</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1988

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PRC Navy power projects in Spratley Islands</td>
<td>Kenya renews relations with Israel</td>
<td>Noriega indictment</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Long-term leases near Shanghai</td>
<td></td>
<td>Secstate Schultz Peace Plan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tibet unrest</td>
<td></td>
<td>USS Roberts strikes mine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sale of MR missiles to Saudi Arabia</td>
<td></td>
<td>USS Vincennes shoots down Iran airline</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-Vietnam clash in Spratleys</td>
<td></td>
<td>Bush elected; Baker Secretary of State</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Li Peng calls for economic reforms</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pakistan Test</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC announces steps to control inflation of 20-50%</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC students demonstrate against African students</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1989

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>UNITED STATES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Increased military ties with Pakistan, Iran, Saudis</td>
<td>Central African review ties with Israel</td>
<td>Bush visits PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ties renewed with Indonesia</td>
<td>S. African test new missile with Israeli's</td>
<td>US jets shoot down Lybian fighter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tibet unrest</td>
<td>Ethiopia renews ties with Israel</td>
<td>Milken fiasco affecting world markets</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC premier visits Iran, Iraq, Turkey, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi</td>
<td>Yang Shamkun visits UAE, Egypt, Kuwait, Oman</td>
<td>EXXON oil spill</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sino-Soviet Summit</td>
<td>Egypt renews relations with Syria</td>
<td>Oliver North convicted on Iran-Contra scandal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tiennamen Square; Zhao Ziyang purged; Jing Zemin named General Secretary</td>
<td>Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Libya, Saudi Arabia, Jamahiriya and Mauritania form Union of Arab Maghreb</td>
<td>PRC Sanctions for Tiennamen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC warns Eastern Europe against political changes</td>
<td>Through President Carter's mediation Ethiopian government enters into provisional negotiations</td>
<td>Brent Scroncroft secretary visits PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC solidifies economic ties with Kuwait</td>
<td></td>
<td>U.S. approves PRC satellite purchases</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC voices concern to USSR over E. Europe events</td>
<td></td>
<td>San Francisco Quake</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Berlin Wall falls; Germany reunited</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Haig visits PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CHINA</td>
<td>AFRICA</td>
<td>UNITED STATES</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------</td>
<td>--------</td>
<td>---------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC builds warships</td>
<td>Ethiopia denies plan to direct Nile with Israeli assistance</td>
<td>Executive order allows PRC students to remain in U.S.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC requests foreign aid to combat pollution</td>
<td>South Commission results published</td>
<td>Pres. Bush renewed Most Favored Nation status much to consternation of Congress</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC-USSR military exchange visits</td>
<td>Mubarak visits PRC</td>
<td>Vice Pres. Quayle meets with Chai Ling (PRC dissident) in White House</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arrest of Non official Christian leaders</td>
<td>Liberia: Civil War Charles murdered</td>
<td>U.S. named second largest arms exporter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Formation of new Hong Kong constitution</td>
<td>Completion of South Commission report; PRC donated 400,000</td>
<td>Iraq invades Kuwait.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ethnic unrest in Xingiang</td>
<td>Chad: Hissene Habre; fled</td>
<td>Beginning of troop buildup</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PRC renews Fulbright Program</td>
<td>Nelson Mandela released from prison</td>
<td>President Bush visits troops</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Launch of commercial satellites (27th)</td>
<td>Nelson Mandela visits U.S. and other nations</td>
<td>U.S. writes off 7 billion dollar Egyptian debt</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Li Peng visits Moscow</td>
<td>Mozambique: Frelino government makes contact with Renamo</td>
<td>Suspension of aid to Pakistan due to nuclear weapon research</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Renewal of ties to Mongolia</td>
<td>Namibia gains independence</td>
<td>Begin exit of Philippine bases</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reemphasis on birth control</td>
<td>Yang Shingkun visits Latin America</td>
<td>Bush/Gorbachev summit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taiwan offers reunification proposal</td>
<td>PRC offers Chinese NT to Mongolia</td>
<td>Five U.S. congressmen hosted in PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Schmidt in Beijing</td>
<td>USSR delegation visit</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1991

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>US</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Kuwaiti emir visits Beijing</td>
<td>Gulf War; Zambian Kenneth Kaunda mediates securing release of British hostages</td>
<td>Gulf War: Operation Desert Storm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tiennamen activists receive jail sentence</td>
<td>Several African rulers fall from power:</td>
<td>Baker visits Middle East</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>confer with Iraqis about Soviet peace proposal</td>
<td>Ethiopia: Mengistu Haile Mariam</td>
<td>President Bush lifts economic sanctions in South Africa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4th Session of the Seventh National People's Congress on 25 March 1991</td>
<td>Lesotho: Metsing Lekhanya</td>
<td>Bush extends Most Favored Nation status to PRC without conditions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Mali: Moussa Traore</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Benin: Matthieu Kerekou</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Bape Verde: Aristides Pereira</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Somalia: Siyad Barre</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sao Tome: Pinto da Costa</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>18,000 Ethiopian Jews airlifted by Israel</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Winnie Mandela trial/conviction</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Kampala leadership forum</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>BCCI scandal</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Zambia: Kaunda voted out after 26 years, Frederick Chiluba</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Angola peace treaty imminent</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>EC reports 30M Africans affected by war and famine</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Namibia gains independence: visits PRC</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PRC break off relations with Central African Republic after C.A.R. resumed relations with Taiwan</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>African leaders sign treaty to develop economic common market</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1992

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHINA</th>
<th>AFRICA</th>
<th>US</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Chinese foreign minister Quian Quichen tours six-country African tour: Mali, Guinea, Senegal, La Cote d'Ivoire, Ghana, Namibia</td>
<td>Referendum on Reform passes in S. Africa 68-7 voted yes</td>
<td>Los Angeles riots after Los Angeles after a jury acquits the police officers who beat Rodney King. Unrest reported in cities across the United States</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Israel accused of transferring patriot missile technology to China</td>
<td>5th Session of the 7th National People's Congress 20 March 1992</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

112
BIBLIOGRAPHY

BOOKS

JOURNALS, MAGAZINES, NEWSPAPERS

"Li Peng Addresses Summit," Full Text of Speech by Li Peng at UN Security Summit, 31 Jan 1992, FBIS, 3 FEB 1992 from RENMINRIBAO OVERSEAS EDITION.

"Li Peng on Domestic and World Issues." Interview in Mexico with Mario Vasquez, President of Mexican Newspaper "Sun Mexico," Beijing Review, 1-7 July 1991, 24-29.

Qida, Chen, Fu Qisong, Zhu Zhonggui. "China and Other Third World Countries: Growing Economic and Trade Relations, CHINAFRICA, 6, June 1991.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>INITIAL DISTRIBUTION LIST</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Defense Technical Information Center 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cameron Station            2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alexandria, Virginia 22304-6145 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Library, Code 52 2       2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Naval Postgraduate School 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Monterey, California 93943-5100 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. OP-60, The Pentagon, Room 4E556 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Office of the Chief of Naval Operations 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Washington D.C. 20350 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. OP-607, The Pentagon, Room 4E556 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Office of the Chief of Naval Operations 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Washington D.C. 20350 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Dr. Thomas C. Bruneau 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chairman, National Security Affairs (NS/BN) 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Naval Postgraduate School 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Monterey, California 93943 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. Thesis Supervisor 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Claude A. Buss (NS/BN) 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Naval Postgraduate School 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Monterey, California 93943 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7. Second Reader 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>David Winterford (NS/WB) 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Naval Postgraduate School 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Monterey, California 93943 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8. Lt. Bernardette Semple, USN 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joint Chiefs of Staff/J6E 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pentagon, Rm 1D836 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Washington, DC 20318-6000 6</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>