Foreigners Demand Response

SK021057 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1037 GMT 2 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 2 Mar (KCNA)--The February 10 issue of the Yugoslav paper COMMUNIST allotted one whole page to an article titled "Reasonable Way for Beginning Dialogue" by a councillor of the International Department of the League of Communists of Yugoslavia supporting the proposal for tripartite talks.

It is due that the proposal for tripartite talks is evoking the attention of the world public circles, the article noted, and said: the proposal constitutes an important step for a peaceful solution of the Korean question.

It said:

Yugoslavia actively supports the initiative of the DPRK on convening tripartite talks for forcing all foreign troops out of South Korea and solving the Korean question peacefully without outside interference.

We consider that tripartite talks will make a positive contribution to the reunification of Korea and held towards easing the tensions in Korea and the Far East.

A seminar supporting the proposal for tripartite talks was held on February 10 by the Stockholm group for the study of the chuche idea of Comrade Kim Il-sung in Sweden.

The reporter and speakers at the seminar said that the new proposal for tripartite talks put forward by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea this time is a most fair and realistic one for easing the tensions and achieving a durable peace in Korea and accords with the interests of the U.S. people, to say nothing of the Korean people.

They stressed that the United States and South Korean authorities must unconditionally and immediately respond to tripartite talks.
An annual meeting of the Turku branch of the Finland-Korea Association issued a statement on February 12, which said:

We strongly demand that the United States unconditionally withdraw its troops from South Korea and respond at the earliest date to the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for tripartite talks.

The statement called upon all the peaceloving and progressive peoples of the world to express full support to the DPRK proposal for tripartite talks.

Guinean President

SK020424 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0342 GMT 2 Mar 84

The ambassador conveyed cordial regards of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song to the president.

He also conveyed to him relief money sent by the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to the Guinean people who suffered earthquake damages.

The president expressed deep thanks for this and asked the ambassador to convey his wholehearted, warm greetings to the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song and Comrade Kim Chong-il.

The precious relief money sent by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il is an expression of the warm solicitude for us, he noted, and said:

The political support of the DPRK to Guinea and her cooperation in various fields including economy, culture and education imbue the Guinea people with strength, courage and confidence and greatly inspire them in their fighting cause.

I received with deep impressions the proposal for tripartite talks put forward by the DPRK, he stated, and continued: The proposal is a most fair and reasonable one to solve the Korean question in a peaceful way.

I and the Guinean Government highly estimate the DPRK proposal for tripartite talks as a most responsible and sincere one to terminate the tragedy of national division and unconditionally support it.

The talk took place in a friendly atmosphere.

Present on the occasion were the Guinean Premier Lansana Beavogui and Foreign Minister El Hajj Abdoulaye Toure.
Mexican Party

SK030425 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2209 GMT 2 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 3 Mar (KCNA)---A message of solidarity came to the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea from Gilberto Rincon Gallardo, international secretary of the Central Committee of the United Socialist Party of Mexico, in support of the new proposal for a peaceful settlement of the Korean question advanced at a joint meeting of the Central People's Committee and the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

We consider that the proposal of your country for tripartite talks on letting the South Korean authorities participate in the DPRK-U.S. talks, signing a peace agreement between the DPRK and the U.S. and adopting a non-aggression declaration between your country and South Korea to open a favorable phase for the peaceful reunification of Korea is a most just and realistic one.

The Central Committee of the Unified Socialist Party of Mexico takes this opportunity of expressing invariable support once again to the policy of the Workers' Party of Korea for the peaceful reunification of Korea and will further strengthen militant solidarity for the DPRK's new proposal.

Portuguese, Somalian Letters

SK030820 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0808 GMT 3 Mar 84

The letter from the Portuguese Central Committee for the study of Kimilsongism said:

The proposal on holding tripartite talks is supported by all of us, and the Seoul and U.S. authorities must accept it.

If the Seoul and U.S. authorities refuse to accept this proposal, the world people will more clearly see who advocates peace and who pursues the policy of aggression and war.

The proposal shows once again the sincere efforts of chuche Korea to decisively remove the danger of war and achieve peace on the Korean peninsula.
The letter from the Kim Il-song library in Somalia noted that the proposal for tripartite talks is a most realistic and reasonable measure for the solution of the Korean question under the present situation. Foreign Meetings

SK030451 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0348 GMT 3 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 3 Mar (KCNA)--Foreign countries are demanding that the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique stop the war exercises at once and respond without delay to the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for tripartite talks.
A solidarity meeting supporting the DPRK proposal for tripartite talks was held in Gwelo City, Zimbabwe, on February 23.

Placed on the platform of the meeting hall were portraits of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and of Zimbabwean Prime Minister Robert G. Mugabe.

Speaking at the meeting, the mayor of the city said that the proposal for tripartite talks is enjoying unanimous support and encouragement of the world's peaceloving people, to say nothing of the Korean people.

He further said:

The Zimbabwean people denounce the adventurous "Team Spirit 84" joint military exercises of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique and strongly demand them to terminate such military rehearsal at once and respond to the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for tripartite talks without delay.

The U.S. imperialists must promptly withdraw their aggression forces from South Korea.

The Zimbabwean people express full support and solidarity for the Korean people in their struggle to realize tripartite talks at any cost and reunify the country independently and peacefully under the wise guidance of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

A letter to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was adopted at the meeting.

The British committee for supporting Korea's reunification in a statement issued on February 15 said that the "Team Spirit 84" joint military exercises being staged by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascist clique must be stopped at once.

The Socialist Youth Union of Austria supports the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederational Republic of Koryo and the proposal for tripartite talks.

We condemn the "two Koreas" plot of the United States.

We hold that all foreign troops and all kinds of destruction weapons including nuclear weapons and means of war must be withdrawn from South Korea.

SK060017 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2228 GMT 5 Mar 84

The message said: The joint meeting of the Central People's Committee and the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly of the DPRK on January 10, 1984, adopted a "letter to the USA Government and Congress" and a "letter to the South Korean authorities", which constitutes a most realistic and positive measure. Talks Welcomed in Foreign Countries

SK070449 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1508 GMT 6 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 6 Mar (KCNA)--The Ghanaian National Institute of the Chuche idea in its statement dated February 21, supporting the proposal for tripartite talks said:

We regard the proposal for tripartite talks as a bold measure to prevent the danger of nuclear war in the Korean peninsula and Asia and a measure of epochal significance in the struggle for the peaceful reunification of Korea, and warmly welcome and support it.

We strongly demand the United States and the South Korean authorities to respond to this proposal for providing a guarantee for a durable peace in Korea and promoting the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea with a correct attitude toward it.

The Swiss branch of the International Association of Democratic Lawyers in its statement issued on February 23 expressed full support to the proposal for tripartite talks and demanded the United States and the South Korean authorities to affirmatively respond to this important proposal and urged the Swiss Government to make positive efforts to have the tripartite talks realized.

In the statement dated February 20 the Sweden–Korea Friendship Association said:
Though more than 30 years have passed since the end of the war in Korea, a peace agreement between the DPRK and the USA has not yet been concluded. The United States is entirely to blame for this. The problem of peace or war in Korea is greatly linked with the problem of peace or war in the world.

We fully support the realistic proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for a peaceful solution of the Korean question.

Portuguese Figure

SK070416 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0333 GMT 7 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 7 Mar (KCNA)—The vice-chairman of the Portuguese committee for supporting the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea on February 16 issued a talk on the proposal for tripartite talks.

He said in his talk:

The Democratic People's Republic of Korea has proposed several times talks between parties concerned for the reunification question. But the United States and the South Korean successive rulers have consistently opposed them.

The DPRK put forward a new proposal for peace on January 10.

The DPRK proposed to hold tripartite talks to avert the danger of a new war and achieve peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification in connection with the situation growing acute on the Korean peninsula.

The DPRK holds that peace in Korea can be guaranteed only when the armistice agreement signed between the DPRK and the United States is replaced by a peace agreement and the U.S. troops are withdrawn from South Korea.

He went on to note that the DPRK, in its letters to the U.S. Government and Congress and to the South Korean authorities, called upon them to respond to the proposal for tripartite talks.

If the United States ignores the dialogue and continues to aggravate the situation, its aggressive color will be exposed more glaringly to the world.

DAILY ON U.S. TRANSFER OF WAR EQUIPMENT TO SOUTH

SK090507 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0436 GMT 9 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 9 Mar (KCNA)—The U.S. imperialists decided to deliver large quantities of new-type combat equipment including "Stinger" A-A guided missile system, "F 16" fighter-bombers and TOW missiles till 1986 for the modernization of the South Korean puppet army and ship military equipment nearly twice as much as this year into South Korea in 1985, according to a report.

Commenting on this, NODONG SINMUN today says this shows that the U.S. imperialists are persistently following the aggressive line against our country.

The author of the commentary says:

The U.S. imperialists declared South Korea the "frontline of U.S. strategy" and "testing ground for a showdown of strength" in the 1980s and turned this region into their nuclear forward base and are running wild to provoke a new nuclear war.

Clamouring about use of nuclear weapons against us, Reagan during his visit to South Korea in November last year cried that he would continue supporting the modernization of the South Korean puppet army.

The introduction of nuclear equipment and means of their delivery into South Korea which was made public in the "security aid" program for next year submitted recently by the U.S. State Department to the Congress proves that Reagan's "commitments" are taking concrete shape. This also clearly shows that the U.S. imperialists are trying to realize their wild aggressive design on Korea with a nuclear war.

It is our consistent stand to remove the danger of nuclear war and guarantee peace on the Korean peninsula and realise the cause of national reunification.

We will wait till the United States gives up the new war provocation manoeuvres and accepts the proposal for tripartite talks at an early date.

LIAISON GROUP DEMANDS RESPONSE TO TALKS PROPOSAL

SK021054 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1030 GMT 2 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 2 Mar (KCNA)—The International Liaison Committee for the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of Korea issued a statement on the new war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique.

Noting that the "Team Spirit" military exercises held annually have been escalated to assume more aggressive and provocative nature as years went by, and constantly whipped up a war atmosphere in Korea, the statement said:

Last year, too, the U.S. imperialists hastened the formation of an aggressive U.S.-Japan-South Korea triangular military alliance, expanded military bases and introduced nuclear and various other weapons into South Korea in larger quantities.

This shows that they are facing headlong along the road of military adventure with increasing frenzy in an attempt to maintain and strengthen their domination over Korea and Asia in accordance with the "plan for global strategy,"

Saying that the "Team Spirit 84" joint military rehearsal is a crude challenge to the DPRK proposal for tripartite talks, the statement stressed:

The International Liaison Committee for the Independent and Peaceful Reunification of Korea calls upon all the national committees for supporting Korea's reunification and governments, all the political and social organizations of various countries of the world and all the peoples of the world over to strongly denounce the aggressive "Team Spirit 84" joint military exercises and war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military "regime". It also calls upon the world's peaceloving people to actively support the DPRK proposal for tripartite talks and put pressure upon the U.S. Government and the South Korean authorities to renounce the policy of military adventure jeopardizing peace in Korea, Asia and the world and come out to a dialogue.

STUDENT MAGAZINE BRANDS ROK U.S. 'COLONY'

SK081036 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1017 GMT 8 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 8 Mar (KCNA)—WORLD STUDENT NEWS No 1, the magazine of the International Union of Students, came out with an article "titled "South Korea, Colony of the U.S. Imperialists, and Anti-U.S. Struggle of Students."

Noting that South Korea under the U.S. imperialists' occupation today is their complete colony utterly destitute of sovereignty, the magazine said:

The so-called "government" existing in South Korea is nothing but a marionette strictly serving for the U.S. imperialists' colonial policy of aggression. This marionette regime is a brainchild of U.S. imperialism, which can neither represent the South Korea people nor exercise any sovereignty.

South Korea is completely dependent on the United States, all the home and foreign policies of the South Korean puppet regime are worked out on the order and direction of the United States and executed only under its supervision and control.

The real ruler of South Korea is the commander of the U.S. forces occupying South Korea and the U.S. ambassador there.

South Korea is totally dependent on the United States economically, too.

It is controlled by the United States in the military domain, too. The South Korean puppet army is, to the bone, a colonial mercenary army of the U.S. imperialists acting under the control and supervision of the commander of the U.S. forces occupying South Korea.

In a nutshell, South Korea is a pattern of modern colony completely dependent on the United States in everything, politically, economically and militarily.

Laying bare the networks of fascist repression covering the whole area of South Korea, the magazine noted:

Today the South Korean people are putting up a stubborn anti-U.S., anti-dictatorship struggle, conscious that they can never live such a life any longer.
Through their actual experiences of life, the South Korean people have never been a "protector" or "helper" but a truculent aggressor and plunderer, the sworn enemy of the Korean people and the root cause of all misfortunes and sufferings.

Therefore, the South Korean people and students are vigorously waging an anti-U.S., national salvation struggle, upholding the fighting slogan against U.S. imperialism and for independence. This is entirely natural and just.

In conclusion the magazine pointed to the continued upswing of the anti-U.S., anti-"government" struggle of the South Korean students and declared that, with no fascist repression and torture can the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique ever check the powerful struggle of the South Korean people and students who have risen up for the cause of justice.

PARTIES AGREE TO DISCUSS ELECTION LAW REVISION

[Text] Rival political parties agreed to begin negotiations over proposed revisions of the National Assembly Election Law next week. The agreement was made at a meeting of floor leaders of the three major parties Wednesday.

Secretaries general, floor leaders and chief policymakers of the three parties will meet, probably next Friday, to start talks on the opposition proposed revisions of the law.

At Wednesday's meeting, the floor leaders also agreed to complete bipartisan negotiations over the knotty issue at the earliest possible date to have a bill passed by an extraordinary house session expected to be convened in June or July. The next parliamentary elections might be held in December or early next year.

The parties are expected to wrangle over the election law revisions because the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) is in favor of only minor changes in the law, including the restructuring of a handful of constituencies in which the population has substantially increased and changing some administrative districts.

The two opposition parties, however, want a law revision, particularly enabling them to gain a larger share in the parliamentary proportional representation system.

The DJP stands opposed to any change in the proportional representation system, insisting that a ruling party should maintain [a] majority in the assembly for the sake of political stabilization.

The main opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) calls for a change in the system under which the ruling party is entitled to get two-thirds of the 92 seats reserved for proportional representatives. The 92 represents one-third of the total parliamentary membership of 276. The rest, 184, are elected popularly.

It asserts that the 92 seats should be shared in proportion to the aggregate number of votes each party wins in the parliamentary elections.
The opposition DKP also asks for reviving individual campaign rallies, hiking the frequency of joint campaign rallies, increasing the number of voting observers and dividing overpopulated electoral districts in Seoul and other big cities.

The ruling party is said to have shown flexibility only to the DKP's call for raising the frequency of joint campaign rallies and increasing the number of voting observers.

The Korea National Party (KNP) calls for electing up to three lawmakers in each of the densely populated constituencies and reducing the 92 seats reserved for proportional representatives. Currently, two lawmakers are elected in each of the 92 electoral districts.

Like the DKP, the minority KNP insists that the 92 seats should be shared in proportion to the number of votes each party wins in the elections.

REPORTAGE ON GOVERNMENT LIFTING POLITICAL BAN

Government Briefs Foreign Envoys

SK259648 Seoul YONHAP in English 0634 GMT 25 Feb 84

[Text] Seoul, 25 February (YONHAP)—The government Saturday called foreign diplomats stationed here to the Foreign Ministry and briefed them on Saturday's lifting of the political ban established in 1980 for an additional 202 former politicians and others.

A presidential spokesman announced earlier in the day that President Chun Doo-hwan reinstated the former politicians and leading dissidents who had been barred from resuming political activities until 30 June 1988.

At the briefing, a Foreign Ministry spokesman told diplomats that the president carried the reconciliatory action as part of his continued efforts to achieve national harmony.

The government will take steps similar to today's partial lifting of the political ban to make sure the nation can develop on the basis of political stability, the official added.

Among those present at the briefing were U.S. Ambassador to Seoul Richard Walker and Japanese Ambassador Toshikazu Maeda.

Editorial on Lifting Ban

SK260147 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 26 Feb 84 p 4

[Editorial: "Lifting Political Ban"]

[Text] The latest government action of additionally releasing 202 former politicians and public figures from political ostracism is certainly a welcome step contributing to the cause of national reconciliation and political development.

The action was taken just one year after the first partial lifting of the political ban, which was initially imposed in November 1980 on a total of 567 notables under the "old order," barring them from engaging in political activities until June 1988. With the two relief measures taken, 99 persons are now left blacklisted.
What is particularly noteworthy of the latest lifting is the fact that it was taken amid discreet political moves for the next general elections, presently expected to take place toward the end of this year or early next year.

It is premature to predict how the green light given to the former politicians will affect the nation's existing political arena and partisan affiliations, let alone the prospects of the forthcoming parliamentary elections.

Yet, crystal clear is the relief measure's positive effect to further animate the local political climate for democratic progress and promote the process of liberalization on the basis of stability and harmony.

In fact, the lifting of the political ban followed a series of amnesties and other manganous actions taken in favor of those who had been charged with violating special decrees and laws related to national security and social order.

Recent instances of such clemency included the release of collegians detained for their part in campus unrest and the subsequent step enabling them to re-enroll in their former schools.

Announcing the additional release of the blacklisted figures, the government noted in a statement that the lifting was done as the political ban's goal of renovating the political climate and establishing political ethics has been substantially achieved and as the released were deemed as having repented their past deeds.

Indeed, the government has strived to cultivate a new political modus operandi under the Fifth Republic, which was inaugurated after a period of sociopolitical confusion.

Efforts for the renewed nation-building have been essentially directed to restore political, economic and social stability for the nation's "second takeoff" to join the ranks of advanced countries in the shortest possible future.

In this process, a focal issue has been to institute a "responsible and productive" political order based on dialogue among and integrity of political actors, wiping off the past traits of political confrontation and corruption.

Also crucial in the ongoing national task to build an advanced country are firm national reconciliation and consensus, which provide vital ingredients in forging national dynamism.

In this connection, the latest lifting of the political ostracism, now 3 years and 3 months old, is expected to help further stimulating the national cause—not only through political reanimation but also by boosting the nation's political maturity as a whole.
On the other hand, those released from the ban are called on to make a fresh start with bona fide efforts to participate in the national march to build an industrialized democracy.

It is hoped that the days will come soon for those still blacklisted to be set free for political engagement and other social activities, a prospect which the government said is dependent on the extent of their repentance.

Daily Examines Lifting of Ban

SK260158 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 26 Feb 84 p 4

[Editorial: "Political Ban Lift"]

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan yesterday lifted the ban on political activities for 202 former politicians, ranking officials and others. The measures, aimed to liberalize and normalize the political climate of the nation, is the second such step taken since the establishment of the Fifth Republic.

The lifting of the November 1980 political ban barring discredited and corrupt former politicians from active roles is timely and appropriate in that it precedes the parliamentary election campaigns that will be in full swing in the latter part of this year.

While welcoming the step taken by the government as a matter of principle, we cannot but be concerned about its possible adverse effects on the political stability and national harmony pursued by the Fifth Republic.

A ban on political activities of some persons was first introduced as a necessary evil in this country following the nation's liberation from Japanese colonial rule in 1945. Similar prohibitive actions were taken after the Liberal Party Government was toppled in 1960 and then after the military revolution in 1961.

Such extraordinary measures were taken because it was deemed necessary in the interest of the nation to prevent the recurrence of corrupt and irresponsible political behavior by old-time politicians during the development of a new order for the renovation of the nation's politics.

Thus, the 1980 Law on Special Measures for Renovation of the Political Climate, under which a total of 567 persons were barred from politics until June 1988, was intended to end the ills of past political practices during the Third Republic and bring forth a fresh and salutary political atmosphere for the new era, the Fifth Republic.

Korea's political order of the past was marked by corruption and confusion fed by rampant partisan strife. The previous ban imposed in 1962 failed to achieve its aim, leaving many politicians to revert to their former untidy behavior.

The Fifth Republic under the leadership of President Chon has pursued with much success the goal of attaining national rapport and politics based on consensus and dialogue.
The first lifting of the political ban a year ago, when 250 persons were freed, and the latest removal of another 202 from the ban fully reflect the government's intention to continue pursuing such goals. Our political climate has settled to a great degree and awareness of the voting public has matured remarkably.

The government did well to allow most of the banned former politicians to engage in politics again if they choose to do so. Our political system is based on plural parties and popular elections that require participation by all citizens. It is encouraging in this context that President Chon indicated that he would consider political clemency for the remaining 99 persons "at a time deemed appropriate," hopefully before too long. But, of course, it will depend on how they repent their past wrongdoings.

Meanwhile, those who have been freed from the ban are urged to reflect upon their past, too, so that they will not repeat their misguided behavior. They should understand the purpose of the clemency and try to meet the great expectations placed on them by the people.

We will closely watch their future activities and how they will affect the nation's political scene, particularly in connection with the forthcoming National Assembly elections. Some of them will join existing parties and some others may try to form a new party.

In any event, we don't want to see them undermine the current political stability. That is why we desire and work for well-ordered elections. We have suffered heavily from the plague of vain rhetoric and desperate confrontation in politics and thus cannot afford to allow it to recur.

All politicians, regardless of affiliation, must join in serving the cause of national development, freedom and peace. The reentry of those freed from the political ban in politics should enliven and invigorate our political processes without contaminating and damaging the integrity and orderliness of our political development.
PARTIES URGED TO DO AWAY WITH PARTISAN STRATEGIES

SK290105 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 29 Feb 84 p 4

[Editorial: "Special House Sitting"]

[Text] The 121st extraordinary session of the National Assembly opened yesterday with Prime Minister Chin Ui-chong delivering an address on state affairs for this year.

In his report on state affairs, Premier Chin made it clear that the government has no intention of revising the current constitution so as to guarantee the peaceful transfer of power in 1988 in accordance with the basic law.

Along with the possibility that general elections will be held later this year, the prime minister also stressed that the government will do its utmost to create a clean and fair election climate for the parliamentary elections through which the next 12th National Assembly will be formed.

Referring to academic affairs for the nation's higher education, Prime Minister Chin emphasized the need to guarantee self-regulatory measures among university and college authorities in the days ahead.

The extraordinary house sitting will continue until 17 March. Representatives of the three major political parties are scheduled to deliver keynote addresses today.

Leaders of the opposition camp are expected to demand that the government should immediately lift the political ban for the remaining 99 former politicians, following the recent partial removal.

One of the major issues during the current legislative sitting will be concerned with a revision of the present parliamentary election system, particularly keeping in mind the forthcoming general elections.

The ruling and opposition camps have reportedly agreed on the need of revising the existing parliamentary election law by June or July.

Based on this accord, the rival parties are expected to push through preliminary negotiations while best reflecting their respective partisan stands.
In the course of debating on a probable realignment of electoral districts, legislators are reminded that changes thus far made in the population distributions in the related districts should reasonably be put into consideration.

Such a fundamental principle on equilibrium in elections should be respected beyond the partisan strategies.

At a time when the nation will see the pre-election climate gradually in the offing, legislators may be more concerned with their partisan popularity on the floor during the special house sitting then with their real mission to represent the wishes of the people in the legislative management.

In this particular respect, the government ministers answering the questions from the lawmakers should not fail to present the administrative measures concerned in a sober and sincere way.

Doing away with any partisan strategies, both the government and opposition camps are now urged to make every effort to implant a striking image as effectively working political groups among the people at large during the house sitting.

In other words, under no circumstances should they turn the legislative floor into a forum for election campaigning in this pre-election season.

The ruling camp should realize how to compromise with the opposition parties with respect to major legislative issues, thus following the strong will for democratization to the letter.

Likewise, the opposition politicians are called upon to play their role of making the legislative function more productive, instead of staging showdowns with their political rivals concerning specific legislative matters.
ROK DAILY ON SAMIL INDEPENDENCE MOVEMENT

SK010033 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 1 Mar 84 p 4

[Editorial: "Promoting Samil Spirit"]

[Text] Today is the first day of March, a month to refresh ourselves with new hopes. Adding to this, especially for Koreans, is that it comes as an ever-powerful reminder of what our forebears did at a time of national agony over two generations ago.

Sixty-five years ago today, leaders representing Korean society joined to declare national independence from Japanese imperialism. The nonviolent uprising spread like wildfire across the country, bringing the unfortunate plight of Korea to world attention.

Marking the anniversary of the Samil (1 March) Independence Movement, we are again reminded of the bitter agony of being deprived of national sovereignty by foreign colonial rulers. It reaffirms our resolve to preserve the integrity and independence of the nation.

It is very fortunate that the significance of Samil Day which once seemed to fade is now regaining its importance. The spirit of the anniversary is a staunch reminder to our contemporary efforts to keep our independence and build prosperity.

The ongoing construction of a mammoth Independence Hall under way in the central heartland of the country is an epitome of such efforts. The hall is not merely aimed at preserving the past memories but at reaffirming the aspiration and resolve embodied in the movement in overcoming contemporary challenges.

In retrospect, it was not an uprising motivated by emotion. It was a righteous movement calling for national self-determination in a nonviolent manner, the principles which are still in order.

It was designed to restore the deprived sovereignty to its citizens. It was not motivated simply by chauvinistic fervor, though it probably marked the first major awakening of collective Korean nationalism as a modern state.
The initiators of the Samil Movement laid its objective in contributing toward the cause of peace but not through disrupting it. Therefore, they desisted from using violence and, instead, advocated justice and reason in struggling for their cause. This is, in a sense, the working philosophy they have bequeathed to us.

All this behooves us to further develop such spirit by upholding the legitimacy of this republic.

It is a pity, however, to see the communists in the north act against the Samil spirit by resorting to violence and belligerence. They remain opposed to our offer to resume inter-Korean dialogue in keeping with the spirit of national self-determination.

Nonetheless, we have no choice but to continue to make ourselves faithful to the spirits symbolized in the Samil Movement. It requires endurance and steadiness on our part.

The upholding of such spirits is no less required in order to override the current uncertainties evolving around the Korean Peninsula. We have to pause to ponder whether or not Korea had to suffer indeed from such national agonies at the turn of the century if it had been well awakened to the surging challenges.

One sure way of not repeating the past errors lies in fostering our national strength. This will also be the way of preventing the Pyongyang Communists from attempting another invasion of the South and, eventually, leading them to come to South-North dialogue in earnest.

All in all, the Samil Movement must be maintained as a living lesson of wisdom. That requires us to carry the priceless lesson into action. We must address ourselves to bolstering our national potential for viability and prosperity. This is the way for us to positively contribute toward world peace.

REPORTAGE ON CHON TU-HWAN 3RD ANNIVERSARY

DJP Spokesman Hails Achievements

SK030347 Seoul YONHAP in English 0315 GMT 3 Mar 84

[Text] Seoul, 3 Mar (YONHAP)--South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan Saturday morning received congratulations from his secretaries and security guards on the third anniversary of his inauguration as the nation's 12th president.

President and Mrs Chon invited key government and ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) officials to a luncheon they will host at the presidential mansion Chongwadae.

In a statement marking the third anniversary of Chon's inauguration, the DJP said, "Under the inspired leadership of President Chon, along with full support from the whole nation, the Fifth Republic has established a foundation for creating an advanced fatherland."

DJP spokesman Rep Kim Yong-tae said, "In such a short period, the Fifth Republic, led by Chon, has achieved political and social stability, an outstanding enhancement of its international prestige and noticeable economic growth which enabled domestic prices to become stable.

"We pledge to fulfill our historic task of creating an advanced fatherland taking advantage of the new atmosphere that the government recently created through a series of reconciliatory measures, like the lifting of the political blacklist, the reinstatement of students expelled from campus for anti-government activities and the release of arrested students," Kim said.

KOREA HERALD on Anniversary

SK030025 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 3 Mar 84 p 4

[Editorial: "President Chon's Leadership"]

[Text] Today marks the third anniversary of President Chon's taking office. Although the years preceding had been characterized by disorder and disunity, they are behind us.
Korea has placed itself on the right track toward joining the ranks of advanced nations under the leadership of President Chon. He began to channel national energy and wisdom into building a foundation for stability, without which, in his words, we can expect little, not to speak of national security.

Besides political and social stability, an economic feat, the first in the nation's history, was accomplished—a near zero increase in prices. Last year saw wholesale prices drop 0.8 percent and retail prices rise only 2 percent as compared with increases of 42.3 percent and 32.2 percent, respectively in 1980 and 1981. The nation's economy, furthermore, grew 9.2 percent last year.

President Chon has been active in efforts to elevate Korea's diplomatic stature in the international community. Beginning with a visit to the United States in 1981 as President Ronald Reagan's first summit guest, he toured five Southeast Asian countries, four African countries, Canada and Burma on three separate occasions. He also invited President Reagan and Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone to Seoul last year.

President Chon has been busy checking central and local administrations. This is in keeping with his philosophy as epitomized by himself—a President must be dedicated to serving the people with sincerity.

He has championed the cause for a just society which, in his eyes, is a prerequisite to insuring national viability and to pursuing the people's well-being. He has managed to harmonize social cleanup efforts with liberalization that had not been attempted in the past.

Under his government, the nightly curfew was lifted, middle and high school uniforms were abolished and requirements for foreign trips by ordinary citizens were liberalized. Clemency has been granted to those including students, convicted for their dissident activities. Most of the politicians who were prohibited from political activities have been reinstated.

The nation will host the Asian Games in 1986 and the Olympics in 1988. With all efforts geared toward developing Korea into an advanced nation, President Chon is resolute in his desire to see democracy take firm root in Korea. He has time and again committed himself to abide by the Constitutional provision allowing only a single seven-year term for the Chief Executive. He believes that a peaceful transfer of power—the absence of which had been blamed for political upheavals in the past—is essential to set an example for implementing democracy here.

President Chon has continued to push for solid national security readiness in the face of the ever-present North Korean invasion threat. His philosophy aims at making South Korea superior to the North in all areas because, in his belief, it will force the northern Communists to abandon their reckless dream of conquering the South. Under his leadership, the people in the South have shown a firm and mature posture whenever faced with formidable challenges.
President Chon has repeatedly called on Pyongyang to come to inter-Korean dialogue. He will continue to do so in his realistic approach to solving the Korean unification problem in the spirit of self-determination.

Considering the uncertainties in the world, we must stand behind him in shaping our destiny—to be strong, to grow, and to overcome any challenges that may arise.

POLICIES, PROGRAMS OF FIFTH REPUBLIC REVIEWED

SK050107 Seoul YONHAP in English 0100 GMT 5 Mar 84

[YONHAP news analysis]

[Text] Seoul, 5 Mar (YONHAP)--Since its inauguration three years ago, South Korea's Fifth Republic has exerted itself to build a society with greater spontaneity and justice. That is well manifested in the emphasis of autonomy rather than regulation, the spirit of service rather than reigning, and welfare and equal wealth-sharing rather than hasty economic growth.

Major achievements of the Fifth Republic in the social field during the past three years include improved welfare through social development projects and service-oriented administration and the successful implementation of a social purification movement.

Most of the social policies were directed toward improving people's welfare. The 1982 lifting of the midnight-to-4-a.m. curfew, among other things, expressed the government's firm determination to build a society with greater freedom.

The government also revised the wage system to promote the welfare of the poor, enacted a law to upgrade the well being of the old and handicapped and expanded the medical insurance system to give a greater number of people benefits from economic development. From the outset of the Fifth Republic, the government launched a vigorous campaign for a "clean and frugal government." For example, the government established a system January 1, 1983, that made it mandatory for ranking public servants to report their personal property holdings to government authorities. As an initial step, 648 ranking officials at the vice minister level and above registered their property with authorities.

In order to improve administrative services for people, the government revised more than 1,100 laws and ordinances and overhauled 1,000-odd administrative institutions.

As a result, administrative procedures were simplified, administrative efficiency improved and the government's interference in the lives of the people declined.
The government has energetically pushed for the purpose of establishing a "clean, bright and just society." The 1981 establishment of the social purification commission headed by the prime minister and a five-year national audit and inspection program complemented the government's resolution to eliminate all social vices.

The social purification campaign steadily emphasized that dispositions toward corruption, inflation and disorder should be eliminated. The purification campaign, the audit and inspection program and influential government agencies have ended power-backed corruption, influence peddling, and an authoritarian tendency in officialdom.

EX-DRP MEMBERS TO DISCUSS ACTIVITIES RESUMPTION

SK020231 Seoul YONHAP in English 0209 GMT 2 Mar 84

[Text] Seoul, 2 March (YONHAP)--Former lawmakers of the disbanded ruling Democratic Republican Party (DRP), who were removed from the government's political blacklist 25 February, will meet in separate groups organized by representative regions beginning Friday to discuss the resumption of political activities.

Ten former DRP lawmakers from South Cholla Province will meet in Seoul Friday to discuss their entry into existing political parties and other issues. They will include former DRP Secretary-General Sin Hyong-sik and former Representative Han Kap-su.

The scheduled meeting, the first of its kind since the ban lifting, will be followed soon by similar gatherings of former Representative Kim Yong-chae and other former DRP lawmakers from Kyonggi Province, and of former Representative Kim Sang-sok and other lawmakers from North and South Kyong-sang Provinces, political sources said.

Other groups of former DRP lawmakers also scheduled meetings to discuss their political future. Some of the former DRP lawmakers already have decided to join the minor opposition Korea National Party (KNP), the source said.

The moves of the former DRP lawmakers are expected to effect wide-ranging influence on the KNP before the nation's general election scheduled sometime between the end of 1984 and the beginning of 1985. Currently, the KNP has a number of former DRP members, including its president Kim Chong-chol.

DAILY CALLS FOR EFFORTS FOR 'FRESH CLIMATE'

SK070122 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 7 Mar 84 p 4

[Editorial: "Fresh Academic Climate"]

[Text] At the outset of the new semester that has just begun, we renew our particular hope for the revitalization of the campus climate at higher learning institutions.

This is immediately connected with the pronounced educational policy by the government authorities to liberalize campus affairs, probably to an unprecedented degree.

In conformity with this drastic educational policy, university professors and administrators now have a freer hand to deal with academic matters, without interference by the government authorities, contrary to previous days.

Professors now hold primary responsibility for any undesirable happenings on campuses, including student demonstrations and similar developments involving collegians in the days ahead.

We welcomed this self-regulatory measure for the higher educational institutions of the nation, yet are concerned about conceivable side-effects that may follow, bypassing the true spirit of the educational liberalization.

We fully endorse university autonomy at this juncture, in which academic management is hoped to be normalized with full respect to the academic authority on campuses.

Taking advantage of the fresh academic climate emerging these days, not only faculty members but collegians as well are urged to feel a sense of responsibility at the respective levels, so that the related government authorities may no longer have to repeat the unhappy practices of the past in which police forces were sent in to campuses.

In the first place, both professors and collegians should affirmatively accept the bold educational measure by the government to leave academic affairs mainly in the hands of university authorities.
On the part of collegians, they are called upon to refrain from going so far as to bring about extreme confusion on campuses, leading to the renewed intervention in academic matters by the government authorities.

Citizens of good sense as well as educational experts should highly regard the courageous government measure to allow virtually all former collegians, who have been involved in campus demonstrations and ousted from universities and colleges, to be readmitted to their old schools.

We hear of some friction between these collegians and the university authorities at the beginning of the new semester on university campuses.

Nevertheless, it is understood that the school authorities are meeting with these once unhappy collegians with a particular sense of affection from the educational point of view.

Along with the effectuation of the educational measure for self-governing of academic affairs, the related government authorities made it clear that they would consult with university administrators in case of extreme campus developments, prior to making any decision on interference thereafter on the campus.

We construe this as a forward-looking posture on the part of the government authorities, in which they will exercise patience and caution in disposing of campus problems.

Then, the professors and students as well are likewise asked to remain sober so as to help maintain a stable academic climate, free from police interference on the campus.

All in all, various social segments, including the government authorities, professors and students themselves, should not fail to feel a strong sense of mission to realize a productive academic climate from the current semester on.

YONHAP NEWS ANALYSIS ON STUDENT SITUATION

SK010708 Seoul YONHAP in English 0653 GMT 1 Mar 84

[News analysis by Kim Song-su]

[Text] Seoul, 1 March (YONHAP)—The government's move to leave all university and college affairs, including campus disturbances, in the hands of schools marks a turning point in the possible realization of complete school autonomy.

Education Minister Kwon I-hyok Wednesday said that the government will not send police forces into institutions of higher learning throughout the country unless school administrators ask for police help in controlling illegal student activities.

Thus, the government has taken a meaningful step by shifting its basic policy toward campus problems from direct intervention to academic independence, observers said.

In particular, it is encouraging that the government will first consult with school authorities before taking legal actions against students who instigate campus demonstrations and violate laws, observers noted.

The 29 February step, calling on colleges across the nation to reinforce guidance and counseling activities for problem students by setting up a student guidance council, reflects the government's firm will to refrain from interfering with campus issues ranging from demonstrations to management, they observed.

The measure is in the same vein as a government policy announced last December that 1,368 former students ousted from schools in connection with campus disturbances would be allowed to return to their campuses for the spring semester starting this month.

The government's punishment-oriented policy, in part, has been responsible for the deterioration of "the campus situation," the observers said.

Since universities and colleges have been caught in the vicious cycle of demonstrations and severe punishment, the government has rightly decided to let individual schools have a free hand in settling their own problems in a bid to pave the way toward campus normalization, they said.
Kwon stressed these points in a speech at a meeting of chief administrators of universities and colleges from across the country, saying that every school should fulfill its responsibility to normalize the current campus situation and contribute to social stability and development.

Both students and professors should not overlook that self-control is a consequence of responsibility.

From now on, colleges should accept more responsibility for the solution of all school affairs then the government, he said.

"Colleges must expect government interference if they neglect or fail to control campus issues, and do not show sincerity in coping with disturbances on their campuses," the minister warned.

He went on to say that former students now serving prison terms or waiting to be tried in connection with campus disturbances will be freed soon and be permitted to re-enroll for the spring semester.

In an effort to prevent schools from being further influenced by outside factors, expelled students and college authorities should take the lead in settling all campus issues on their own, he said.

The government also should endeavor to help colleges recover a stable academic atmosphere but not by directly intervening in campus issues, the observers added.

MEASURES FOR CAMPUS AUTONOMY--About 1,500 Seoul National University [SNU] students gathered on the campus yesterday and discussed measures to promote a free and autonomous campus atmosphere. The discussion continued for about an hour and 40 minutes on the lawn before the main hall starting at 1:20 p.m. What the students discussed included amendments to school regulations, selection of student body members by students themselves and promotion of freedom for the school press. The students originally planned to have the discussion with school administrators. School authorities did not attend, saying that they were not consulted in advance. Nam Se-chin, dean of student affairs, said that school authorities will have a free discussion with students next week or after. Meanwhile, student corps members of Yonsei University distributed printed documents titled "For Campus Democratization" to students attending school yesterday. The student corps suggested in the document that students gather in the school auditorium Friday to discuss reinstatement of expelled students, changes in the semester system and prevention of police surveillance on campus. REPORTAGE ON COUNTRY'S ECONOMIC SITUATION

YONHAP Analysis

SK030201 Seoul YONHAP in English 0115 GMT 3 Mar 84

[By Yi Sunt-su]

[Text] Seoul, 3 Mar (YONHAP)—The major economic achievement of South Korea's fifth republic since its inauguration on March 3, 1981, perhaps can be best summarized as freedom from the three economic phenomena—small or stagnant growth, skyrocketing prices and a worsened international payments balance.

Helped by the social and political stability under the leadership of President Chon Tu-hwan during the last three years, soaring prices have stabilized, the economy has grown at a wholesome pace and the nation's balance of international payments improved greatly.

Many analysts agree that if the economy continues to develop at its current pace, the nation will soon join in the ranks of industrially advanced countries.

When the fifth republic began in 1981, the economy had many hurdles to overcome both at home and abroad. Internationally, they included the worldwide recession, growing protectionism among major trade partners, an unstable supply of raw materials and their rising costs.

Domestically, the economy suffered from the vulnerable industrial structure, unbalanced development between industries, chronic inflation and private enterprises' poor business management stemming from the excessive government protective measures.

In the face of these problems, the government put the major emphasis of its economic policy on price stabilization, the improved balance of international payments, improved international competitiveness through quality control and productivity increases and expanded investments in production facilities.

The government's sweeping price stabilization measures pulled down wholesale price hikes from 42.3 percent in 1980 to 11.3 percent in 1981, the first year of the fifth republic, and consumer price hikes from 32.2 percent to 13.7 percent.
The falling trend of commodity prices continued and price hikes remained below the double-digit figure in 1982—2.4 percent hike in wholesale prices and 4.8 percent gain in consumer prices. In 1983, wholesale prices dropped 0.8 percent, for the first time in history of the nation, while consumer prices registered a mere 2.0 percent rise, thus laying a firm foundation for stability-oriented growth in the years to come.

As a result, the economy grew 6.2 percent in 1981, 5.4 percent in 1982 and 9.2 percent in 1983. This economic performance since 1981 well compared with the negative 5.2 percent growth in 1980.

On the balance of international payments front, the current account deficits did not come down from the five billion U.S. dollar mark in 1980 and 1981. Due to sustained export growth coupled with the effective use of energy and the domestic production of capital goods, however, the red-ink figures dwindled to 2.6 billion dollars in 1982 and again to 1.6 billion dollars in 1983.

Chun set forth an economic philosophy which stated that an economy that achieves high growth under high inflation is a weak and distorted economy. He called upon enterprises to improve their management, international competitiveness and financial structure through self-discipline to attain wholesome growth.

The philosophy has been the basis of the government's economic policies and the driving force for the stability-oriented growth in the past three years.

Based upon the philosophy, the government has made every possible effort to inject vigor into the sagging economy, stimulate domestic demand within the framework of price stability and maximize the efficiency of the national economy.

In reality, the philosophy of steady, stable growth took the form of low bank interest rates, stable won-dollar exchange rates, proper rises in wages, stable supply of daily necessities, retrenchment in government spending, a proper supply of money, increased domestic savings and prevention of speculative investments in real estate.

The government's policy has resulted in a realignment of the government organization, implementation of fair trade transactions, an import liberalization program, the overhauling of customs duty and domestic tax systems, an improved investment climate for foreigners, the fostering of promising small and medium industries, realignment of heavy and chemical industries, and development of high tech industries such as electronics.

Under the circumstances, it is no wonder that many economists both at home and abroad agree that Korea will soon join the ranks of industrialized countries with its gross national product exceeding the 100 billion dollar mark and its per capita gross national product surpassing the 2,500 dollar level.
'Stable Prosperity' in Economy

SK060257 Seoul YONHAP in English 0219 GMT 6 Mar 84

[Text] Seoul, 6 Mar (YONHAP)—The South Korean economy continued to enjoy stable prosperity in February as industrial production rose due to balloon-ing exports, Deputy Prime Minister and Economic Planning Minister Sin Pyong-hyon said Tuesday.

Leading business indicators, which predict the nation's economic condition for the coming two to three months, also rose 0.8 points in January to 226.8.

In a monthly briefing to President Chun Tu-hwan on the nation's economy, Sin said exports during the first two months of this year registered a considerable increase of 39.4 percent over a year earlier to more than 4.06 billion U.S. dollars.

He said the nation's exports of electronic products and ships to the United States remained healthy during the period. Overseas shipments of textiles, which have suffered a setback over the past two years, also improved. Textiles account for more than 30 percent of Korea's total foreign sales.

Increased exports to Japan and European Economic Community during the period also contributed to nation's growing exports, Sin added.

Led by textiles, electronics and steel, the arrival of letters of credit (1/c) continued to increase.

Imports, however, marked only a 17.5 percent rise over a year ago to 4.5 billion dollars.

Korea's trade deficit in January, thus, narrowed to 299 million dollars compared to the 393 million dollars in the same period last year.

Industrial production surged 15.4 percent in January reflecting the nation's brisk business activities.

The total money supply, which is money in circulation plus time, savings, and demand deposits at banks, marked a 13.8 percent increase as of the end of February. Bank deposits rose 217.8 billion won (272.25 million U.S. dollars; one U.S. dollar is worth 795 won) during the two months.

The default rate for commercial bills remained at 0.06 percent indicating continued stability of financial situation in the private sector.

In February, prices of agricultural products soared, pushing up consumer retail prices by 1.5 percent.
Food prices, however, are expected to stabilize in the middle of the month.

Wholesale prices edged up 0.3 percent from the end of last year.

Construction permits recorded only a 3 percent increase from a year ago due to a decline in residential housing construction although industrial and commercial construction increased.

ONTA CHIEF SEEKS TO ERADICATE 'UNDERGROUND ECONOMY'

SK290320 Seoul YONHAP in English 0246 GMT 29 Feb 84

[Text] Seoul, 29 February (YONHAP)--An Mu-hyok, commissioner of South Korea's Office of National Tax Administration (ONTA), said Wednesday that his office will concentrate its efforts this year on eradicating the "underground economy," which includes real estate speculation and curb money markets.

"Our society can never accept those who do not have regular occupations and fail to pay proper tax while enjoying luxurious lives made possible by the underground economy," An said during the year's first conference of local tax office chiefs.

Calling the underground economy, which spoils national integrity, the common enemy of a "just society," An instructed the local office chiefs to take preventive measures against real estate speculation and to tax hidden income sources of those who do not have regular jobs but lead extravagant lives or have enormous financial holdings.

An also instructed them to provide through-going guidance and supervision for their subordinates in order to ensure upright tax administration.

In 1982 and 1983, several large-scale financial scandals rocked Korea's financial circles. Most of the scandals involved, directly or indirectly, the nation's multi-million dollar curb money markets.

Finance Minister Kim Man-che, who also attended the conference, said that no one in any walk of life must be alienated by unfair enforcement of tax administration laws. He urged the attendants to exert every effort to correct unfair taxes imposed differently on the same types of businesses.

Kim also said tax officials should cope with cunning tax evasion schemes while gearing up computerization to handle ordinary tax work.

YONHAP ON RECLAMATION PROJECT IN SOUTHERN KOREA

SK270413 Seoul YONHAP in English 0307 GMT 27 Feb 84

[Text] Sosan, Korea, 27 February (YONHAP)—Construction workers Saturday sank a 226,000-ton supertanker to a depth of 18 meters to block the onrushing tide, while laborers complete a 270-meter section of embankment in this west coast town, some 110 kilometers southwest of Seoul.

Workers filled the tanker with water, and sank the vessel to the bottom to impede tide, which flows at a speed of eight meters per second.

Once the 320-meter-long tanker, measuring 45 meters wide and 27 meters high, touched bottom, 140 dump trucks rushed from both sides of the uncompleted embankment to pour rocks and dirt to complete the embankment. The operation took 2 hours. Hyundai Construction Co carried out the project.

Hyundai officials said the work will be continued until 5 March when the embankment will be higher than 22 meters to accommodate high tide.

The section was the final part of a 6,746-meter-long embankment project which will reclaim 95.7 square kilometers of land in the Sosan area, they said.

When the construction is completed, the tanker will be floated to the surface and taken to Inchon to be dismantled for scrap iron, the officials said.

Meanwhile, Hyundai used 12 divers in the operation and maintained communications with them to assure the tanker was submerged safely.

Hyundai officials said that they used the tanker because the tide's force in that area did not allow workers to use conventional construction methods.

They added that the tanker also saved the company some 400 million won (50,000 U.S. dollars; one dollar is worth 800 won) in construction costs.

The land reclamation project will be completed by 1989. By that time, desalinization of the reclaimed land, arrangement of farmland, and construction of a road network and drainage projects will be carried out at a total cost of 135 billion won (168.75 million dollars).
DAEWOO HEAD STRESSES BUSINESSMEN'S 'SOUND MORALITY'

SK280212 Seoul YONHAP in English 0151 GMT 28 Feb 84

[Text] Seoul, 28 February (YONHAP)--Kim U-Chong, chairman of the Daewoo Business Group, Monday stressed that the nation's entrepreneurs should observe a sound morality to establish fair trade practices and coexistence.

"We should establish a national consensus to create a favorable atmosphere for business activities and for mutual understanding," Kim said in a meeting with some 100 senior journalists at the Plaza Hotel in downtown Seoul.

"Korean entrepreneurs, who are standing at a turning point in history, have to meet the conditions—the establishment of common interests, the competition principle based on coexistence and common prosperity, and the promotion of a consensus by creating the foundation for trust," he said.

The meeting was sponsored by the Kwanhun Club, a fraternity of senior journalists of Korea.

Kim, head of one of South Korea's biggest business conglomerates, asked the journalists to play a role in promoting the people's consensus for establishing free capitalism.

Korean industries should put more emphasis on promoting the software industry than the computer hardware industry and invest more money to increase the number of technically trained workers.

Kim said that technical tie-ups with advanced countries will be inevitable for Korean businesses in order to develop the software industry.

General Motors Corp of the United States will invest 500 million U.S. dollars soon to the Daewoo Motor Co to improve Daewoo's assembly lines and upgrade the quality of its automobiles to international standards, Kim said.

Daewoo plans to export as many as 100,000 cars annually to the United States starting in 1986, he said.

NEWSPAPER EDITORIALS ON PROTECTION OF FOREIGN COPYRIGHTS

THE KOREA HERALD

SK280030 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 28 Feb 84 p 4

[Editorial: "Copyright Protection"]

[Text] The protection of foreign copyrights emerged as a bone of contention between the United States and Korea during 2 days of economic consultations held here last week.

Our representatives were on the defensive before mounting U.S. pressure for Seoul to take effective measures to protect the so-called intellectual property rights of American writers, inventors and designers in this country.

Although the bilateral economic meeting was in our estimation not a totally appropriate forum to deal with the issue, we feel the copyright problems are ones that have to be resolved by both sides sooner or later.

Even if the matter hadn't arisen in those talks with Washington, we have arrived at the point where we can't avoid the subject any longer. It seriously affects the prestige of Korea as a proud modern state boasting decent cultural standards.

As are Taiwan, Hong Kong and some parts of Southeast Asia, Korea has for some time been a sanctuary for book pirates. At a number of international gatherings, economic as well as cultural, our government has been pressured to subscribe to the International Copyright Convention and take measures to prevent such piracy.

As a matter of principle we can hardly resist such legitimate exhortations. But the situation within our publishing industry has been such that we cannot afford to comply because of certain financial and technical difficulties.

The government has committed itself to resolving the issue by the middle of this year. So a bilateral or multilateral arrangement is likely to be reached for paying royalties for the translation or reproduction of foreign books, discs and tapes.
Any such arrangement will be based on the Universal Copyright Convention or the Bern Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works. But our reading public and publishing interests will have to pay costly royalties and will experience a reduced availability of translated materials.

Besides books and tapes, "intellectual property" also covers a wide range of commercial and industrial designs, trademarks and technological licenses. Regulations have already been introduced in Korea's industrial sector, but are insufficient. Hence strengthened control on patent rights is in order.

But purely commercial copyrights involving educational and cultural materials had better be dealt with separately. It is wrong for U.S. negotiators to link the copyright question with the general system of preferences that affects the entire spectrum of our trade.

Other leading nations were likewise slow to accept international copyright controls. For instance, the United States and the Soviet Union joined the Universal Copyright Convention in 1955 and 1973, respectively. Japan has only been affiliated with the Bern Convention since 1974.

Hence some allowances should be made for Korea as it is a latecomer to the world economic and industrial scene. Before undertaking any drastic legislation, the government should poll the opinions of all concerned to evolve a rational consensus.

The ethical and intellectual insensitivity of some Korean book makers and translators must be dealt with to end such rampant piracy. Also, our statutory system of safeguarding domestic copyrights and patents should be consolidated prior to our joining any international arrangements.

All in all, it is our feeling that the intricate issue of copyright should be dealt with taking the national interest into the fullest consideration. In this respect, we would like to urge our government and other nations concerned to accord our publishing industry an ample grace period so that any adverse effect arising from a hasty introduction of international copyright measures could be well averted.

THE KOREA TIMES

SK280040 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 28 Feb 84 p 4

[Editorial: "Copyright Protection"]

[Text] It is irrefutable that Korea can no longer stay aloof from mounting problems related to the protection of foreign intellectual property rights, notably including copyrights.

This situation was reflected over the weekend in a government position that it would shortly take positive measures on the issues which also involve, among other things, patents, trademarks and industrial knowhow.
The government stand was reportedly disclosed at a meeting of the Korean-American economic consultations in the face of a strong demand that Korea take due protective steps on these rights in order to facilitate the transfer of industrial technology to the Koreans.

Measures being considered by the government authorities were reported to include the legislation of a pertinent law, along with an amendment of the existing domestic copyright law, and accession to related international conventions.

But then, the government move faced prompt local reactions, largely calling for a step-by-step approach in handling the protection of foreign rights so as to protect domestic industries, especially publishing enterprises which for the most part are run with small capital and can hardly afford to pay royalties ordinarily requested by foreign authors and publishers.

Among other matters, the copyrights problem has indeed been an outstanding issue for many years in Korea.

The local publication circle has long faced an across-the-board charge for piracy, though there are some cases of reasonable royalty agreements—arrangements which are in practice in an evergrowing range of other business fields, from trademarks to industrial designs.

The international cry of "piracy" has accordingly ignited controversies among Koreans—one school demanding the early accession to a universal copyright convention to wipe away the "national disgrace," as against the dominant pressure group, mainly made up of publishers, which is hesitant if not reluctant to join such a move until the local publishing world is in better shape.

Thus, the copyright question has already emerged as [a] touchy issue in our society, featuring a contradiction between the hard-pressed reality of the publishing circle and the eventuality of complying with the international practice of copyright protection.

In this regard, the latest government position on the issue should be taken as a forward-looking posture, although there are misgivings that it might have been prompted by foreign demands.

Now, the question seems to be how to carry out what were described as progressive measures. First of all, astute measures should be taken to sustain the viability of local industries, which in turn must gear themselves to meet the eventuality of paying royalties.

Essentially, the government move will have to be a grand one with the [word indistinct] its process, so far stagnant, accelerating.

A likely scenario suggested is that the government, while making public its intent to accede to international agreements by a certain time, start legislative work for revising pertinent domestic laws or enacting new ones and take steps to help local publishers effectively undertake their own renovation.
Another point to be raised is that the copyright question should not be dealt with in a package deal with the United States, along with other intellectual property rights such as industrial knowhow, but as a separate issue taking into account its universal applicability.

After all, due attention has to be paid to safeguarding our national interests, as other nations including many advanced countries have done in tackling the intricate issue of copyrights.

REBOUND ANTICIPATED FOR FISHING INDUSTRY

SK050817 Seoul YONHAP in English 0730 GMT 5 Mar 84

[Text] Seoul, 5 Mar (YONHAP)--South Korea's overseas fishing industry is likely to rebound vigorously from the current recession as the government has secured five new overseas fishing areas since last last year, the fisheries office said Monday.

The industry gradually has shrunk with an increasing number of coastal countries declaring a 200-nautical-mile exclusive economic zone, in which foreign vessels are barred from fishing without permission.

An office spokesman said the government concluded long negotiations with the Mauritanian Government in early January to resume the operation of South Korean vessels in the fishing waters off the northwestern African nation.

South Korean overseas fishing vessels already have begun new operations in the fishing spots off Australia, French Guiana and Colombia, last December, the official said.

Meanwhile, the Brazilian Government has requested South Korea to send fishing vessels to its fishing waters to catch tuna, he added.

Under the agreement between South Korea and Mauritania, the African nation will allow 13 South Korean fishing vessels to operate in its fishing waters. The ships will pay an annual fee of three million U.S. dollars to the African nation, he said.

The fishing waters, noted for their abundance in high-grade fish, like cuttlefish and octopuses, had been shut to South Koran fishing boats since August 1979.

Six South Korean vessels have entered waters off Australia on condition of paying an annual fishing fee of 72,000 dollars to the Australian Government, while three ships, outfitted with gill nets to catch sharks in the French Guianan fishing ground, will pay 150 dollars per ton of their catch, according to the official.
Two South Korean boats have been fishing for tuna in waters off Colombia on condition of paying 3.5 dollars per each ton of their total displacement tons, he said.

Currently, the nation's overseas fishing vessels are operating in 46 overseas fishing waters, and pay 21 million dollars in fishing fees annually.

DAILY ATTACHES SIGNIFICANCE TO KUNMING EVENTS

SK060137 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 6 Mar 84 p 4

[Editorial" A Modest Start"]

[Text] The first direct sports encounter between Korea and China—as tennis competition for the Davis Cup Eastern Zone preliminaries—has ended with the latter winning the semi-final berth.

From the outset of the event over the weekend, which turned out to be a see-saw five-set match, the Korean players were handicapped in that the venue was in the Chinese provincial city of Kunming, about 2,000 meters above sea level, where the host Chinese players reportedly had a four-month winter training to assimilate to the ground conditions.

Notwithstanding, the visiting Korean team, made up of two officials and six players, reportedly exhibited outstanding sportsmanship and engaged in fine play, though it suffered a 4-to-1 defeat.

After all, if there is to be a winner, a sports game has to end up with a losing party—an eventuality that is relevant to so many human events.

What is cherished, particularly in sports events, is the sense of participation and the performance of fine play, fully honoring the rules of the game and enhancing amity and goodwill among the participants.

This aspect of sports was all the more pertinent to the Kunming event, which was highly meaningful as it marked the first major opening of longstanding barriers between the Republic of Korea and China for mutual sociocultural exchanges.

Indeed the tennis event has been closely watched, not only by the parties directly concerned but also by other interested parties, for its impact and implications on the future development of Seoul-Beijing relations.

As far as government formalities are concerned, relations between the two countries have been cool, if not chilly, with no diplomatic ties existent, despite the geographical proximity and Seoul's repeated pronouncements of its open-door policy.
While China's participation in the Korean War on the communist side was something that took place more than three decades ago, the major obstacle hindering an amelioration of bilateral ties has been North Korea, which Beijing regards as one of its closest allies in view of intricate regional geopolitics.

An unexpected breakthrough came last year, ironically by the emergency landing in South Korea of a hijacked Chinese civil airliner, an incident which promoted negotiations by official quarters of the two countries for the return of the aircraft and its passengers and crew members.

Since then, there have been limited human exchanges: namely, China’s admission of a few South Korean officials for participation in international workshops sponsored by UN specialized agencies.

The David Cup preliminary was another international event which obligated China to respect international games rules of hosting the match, regardless of political ties with Seoul.

For all that, the Kunming event was meaningful in that it represented the first match by the South Korean and Communist Chinese national teams in China's soil and it heralded several scheduled exchanges between the two countries in the sports field.

While the event may be called "tennis diplomacy," somewhat along the line of the "pingpong diplomacy" that led to the rapprochement between the United States and China more than a decade ago, we should not indulge in harboring wishful thinking—such as expecting an early improvement of overall relations between Seoul and Beijing—because of many outstanding constraints and delicate regional circumstances.

However, given the realistic situation, sustained efforts for stepped-up exchanges in non-political fields will ultimately contribute to building up amity and understanding between the two neighboring countries and also to promoting regional peace and stability.

Thus the Kunming match should be taken as a modest yet significant start for the far-reaching cause.

ENVOY TO LEBANON Says EVACUATION TEMPORARY

SK060322 Seoul YONHAP in English 0312 GMT 6 Mar 84

[Text] Seoul, 6 Mar (YONHAP)—The evacuation of South Korean diplomats from Beirut is a temporary step to seek shelter from the deteriorating Lebanese civil war, South Korean Ambassador to Beirut Mun Chang-hwa said Monday.

Noting that Lebanon has maintained close relations with South Korea, Mun stressed that the action is only a way to protect Korean officials stationed in Lebanon and should not be construed as a withdrawal from the war-stricken nation.

The ambassador, who returned home earlier this month following the evacuation, made the remarks at a news conference here with local reporters.

"Once the situation in Lebanon improves, South Korean diplomats, who took refuge in Cyprus last month, will return to their normal duties in Beirut, Mun said.

Although South Korea has no diplomatic ties with Cyprus, the Korean diplomats, currently staying in the Mediterranean country, have had no difficulty in carrying out their duties, including the management of the embassy office in Beirut, he added.

The Korean officials are keeping in close contact with local employees and pro-Korean Lebanese in Beirut by daily phone calls and telexes, Mun said.

The Lebanese situation at the time of the Korean exodus had so deteriorated that they could not notify the Lebanese ambassador to Cyprus of taking refuge there in advance, Mun said.

Commenting on the future of Lebanon, the ambassador said, "The summit talks between Lebanese President Amin al-Jumayyil and Syrian President Hafiz al-Assad and the agreement among Lebanese warring factions to hold a national reconciliation conference will no doubt contribute to the settlement of the Lebanon issue."
"However, it will take some time to solve the issue completely and satisfactorily to all parties concerned," he added.

Reiterating his view that South Korea and Lebanon have kept close relations, Mun cited his government's participation in reconstruction work in Lebanon as a good example of South-South cooperation.

"Despite the long civil war, the Middle East nation has managed to maintain a relatively sound economy, with its foreign exchange reserve and gold reserve currently reaching four billion U.S. dollars each," he said.

Some of them were already evacuated from the city and the rest are preparing a contingency plan to cope with the eventual situation, they said. Chong U has instructed its branch office in Baghdad to evacuate its 111 employees working for the construction of a transformer station in Qurna after a report that the situation is worsening in that region which Tehran claims to have captured. REPORTAGE ON GABONESE OFFICIAL'S VISIT

Request for Economic Delegation

SK020915 Seoul YONHAP in English 0847 GMT 2 Mar 84

[Text] Seoul, 2 Mar (YONHAP)—Gabonese First Vice Prime Minister Georges Rawiri Friday requested that South Korea send an economic delegation to Gabon to promote greater trade and closer cooperation between the two nations.

The Gabonese minister made the request at a luncheon meeting here with President Chong Su-chang of the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry (KCCI) and other South Korean business leaders.

Rawiri also urged them to participate in the projected construction of a railway network in his country.

Gabon plans to construct a railway network stretching 108 kilometers at a cost of 800 million U.S. dollars.

Sixteen Gabonese officials attended the luncheon with South Korean business leaders.

Gabonese and Korean participants discussed the possibility of South Korea's participation in the railway network, various ways to pay for the construction and other economic issues between the two nations.

Rawiri flew into Seoul Tuesday for a four-day visit at the invitation of Construction Minister Kim Song-pae.

During his stay in Korea, he paid a courtesy call on President Chon Tu-hwan and met with other government leaders to discuss ways to increase economic relations between South Korea and Gabon.

He also toured industrial facilities here and in southern Korea.

[Text] Seoul, 3 Mar (YONHAP)—Gabon has agreed to consider Korean participation in a 800 million U.S. dollar railway construction project in Gabon, George Rawiri, Gabonese first vice premier said Friday afternoon.

Meeting the press at the Seoul Silla Hotel before leaving, Rawiri said the two countries would seek ways to cooperate in the construction of the third leg of the trans-Gabon railway which will start in 1985.

Korea and Gabon also agreed in general on the African nation's purchasing of Korean-made railway cars and Korean capital investment in the development of Gabonese natural resources, including iron ore, Rawiri said.

Four leading Korean construction firms—Daewu Corp, Hanyang Corp, Hyundai Engineering and Construction Co and Daelim Industrial Co—have shown keen interest in the railway construction project.

Gabon's iron ore reserve is estimated at 700 million tons and the ore's iron content is as high as 70 percent, the Gabonese first vice premier said.

Prior to meeting with the press, Rawiri and Construction Minister Kim Song-tae made public a joint communique in which he said he delivered to President Chon Tu-hwan a personal letter from Gabonese President El-Hadj Omar Bongo. In the letter, he said, Bongo praised the South Korean Government's attempt to unify the divided Korean peninsula through peaceful means.

Chon met with Bongo when he traveled to the African country on the third leg of his two-week tour of Africa and Canada in August 1982. Bongo also visited Seoul in 1975.

While staying in Korea for four days, Rawiri also met with Foreign Minister Yi Won-kyong, Transportation Minister Son Su-ik and other government leaders to discuss mutual friendship and cooperation.

DAILY HOPES U.S.-ROK TRADE FRICTION WILL BE SOLVED

SKO60145 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 6 Mar 84 p 4

[Editorial" Reciprocal ROK-U.S. Trade]

[Text] The current trip of the Korean Presidential Trade Mission to the United States is significant and expectations are great as it comes at a time when our export goods are encountering higher trade barriers there in the form of increased tariffs and deprived preferential treatment.

Granted that liberal trade is threatened and shrinking everywhere, Korean trade is being subjected to overly harsh and often unjustified constraints in the international market.

Seoul's trade relationship with Washington, which is one of the strongest and most dynamic bilateral partnerships in the world, has recently been strained.

Many of the contested points have arisen from technical misunderstanding and lack of coordination. As such they can be ironed out by effective exchange of information and open-minded dialogue.

The high-powered purchasing mission led by Minister of Commerce and Industry Kum Ch'in-ho is believed to be doing a great service toward assuaging misgivings about our export performance on the part of some Americans, and thus stimulate freer trade between Korea and the United States.

Initial signs point to a good outcome of the visiting Korean trade mission. On the occasion of the arrival of the gorup in New York City, Mayor Edward I. Koch proclaimed last Saturday as the Korea-U.S. Trade Day. A conference with the U.S. secretary of commerce is scheduled in Washington this week.

The Korean mission will travel through major American cities in four sub-groups to purchase American products. Among the items to be bought will be two jumbo jet planes worth over $200 million, $500 million worth of raw cotton, machinery, chemicals and other raw materials. The purchases are expected to total $2 billion.
This is a substantial gesture on the part of the Republic of Korea to reciprocate the American goodwill in affording favorable considerations for imports from Korea.

Korea's trade surplus over the United States reached $1.8 billion last year. It was one of the few years when two-way trade was in favor of Korea. We used to buy more from the United States than sell to it.

Korea ranks far below Japan or Taiwan in trade imbalances with the United States. In view of the scale and affluence of the Japanese economy or the strong edge of Taiwan's export industry, the impact of Korea exports to America whose trade went $60 billion in the red in 1983 is less than great.

We have reasons to suspect that Washington, particularly the International Trade Commission, has been too politically inspired in an election year in deciding foreign trade matters. Discriminatory rulings on Korea-made color television sets for alleged dumping may be cited as an example.

Korea's market share of television sets in the United States is 3.5 percent. One particular item that accounts for most of America's television imports is not manufactured in the United States and thus without competition.

Since last year, the Korean Government has taken big steps toward opening up its market to foreign merchandise. The sweeping measures will bring out import liberalization ratio up to 95.2 percent in 1988. Such a liberal approach deserves to be recognized and responded to by its trade partners.

Best efforts should be made by both sides to prevent undue trade frictions with consequent damage to the traditional friendly ties between our allies. The trade mission is required to successfully fulfill the dual role of efficient purchasing and friendly persuasion.

ROK, JAPAN TO RESUME OFFSHORE OIL EXPLORATION

SK290838 Seoul YONHAP in English 0832 GMT 29 Feb 84

[Text] Seoul, 29 Feb (YONHAP)—Korea and Japan will resume their joint offshore oil exploration project on the continental shelf between the two countries in May after a three-year recess.

The resumption of work in the fifth subzone of the seventh mining block follows the recent resolution of the question about compensation for possible losses in Japanese fish hauls in the area, sources at the Energy and Resources Ministry said Wednesday.

The two sides will drill an exploration well in the subzone, some 350 kilometers southeast of Korea's southernmost island of Cheju-do. The subzone is part of the Korea-Japan joint continental shelf development area. The two countries reached a joint development agreement in 1974.

In 1981 Korea and Japan drilled several test wells in the fifth and seventh subzones in the joint development area. But none hit economically feasible oil deposits.

The two sides conducted joint seismic surveys covering more than 900 kilometers in the seventh mining block last year. Results of these surveys are rated as good, and the authorities concerned, according to ministry sources, have decided to drill a test well in the fifth subzone.

Korea has selected Texaco, a U.S. oil company, as its concessionaire for oil exploration in the subzone, while the Japanese concessionaire is Nippon Oil Co.

An estimated 12.8 million U.S. dollars will be spent on the undertaking and the two concessionaires will each shoulder half of the expenses.

Although the 1981 test wells failed to find commercially viable oil beds, they nevertheless showed encouraging signs of oil deposits in the area, the sources said. With its well-developed anticlines, the seventh mining block shows great potential for economically viable offshore oil deposits. Crude oil normally accumulates in the anticlinal rock structure in continental shelves, according to the sources.

KCNA CITES NODONG SINMUN ON 'THREE REVOLUTIONS'

SK051118 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1101 GMT 5 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 5 Mar (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN March 4 carried an article titled "Three Revolutions Are Strategic Line for Modelling the Whole of Society on the Chuche Idea."

Quoting Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau, and secretary, of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, as saying that the ideological, technical and cultural revolutions are the strategic line consistently maintained by our party in modelling the whole of society on the chuche idea and building communism, it says:

There remain in socialist society distinctions between town and country, between the working class and the peasantry, between physical and mental labour, between heavy and light labour and between industrial and agricultural work and between members of society in material and cultural life. The source of these distinctions in socialist society is traced to the ideological, technical and cultural backwardness, a hangover of the old society.

Therefore, the revolution of the working class and other labouring masses for their chajusong which began with the struggle to overthrow the old exploiter system is followed by a struggle to remove the ideological, technical and cultural backwardness in socialist society, through which the essential demands of the communist society are fully met.

The ideological, technical and cultural revolutions are the basic way of transforming the whole of society after the chuche idea and building communist society. It is because the three revolutions make it possible to successfully occupy the two fortresses of communism by transforming society and men as required by the chuche idea.

To model the whole of society on the chuche idea is a struggle to train all the members of society to be fully-developed communist men, lay solid material and technical foundations of communism by developing the productive forces to a high level and establish a unitary system of communist ownership. This cause is carried out through the ideological, technical and cultural revolutions.
The three revolutions also make it possible to pattern the society after the working class to remove the class and other distinctions and realize complete social equality of the working people.

Only by carrying out the three revolutions is it possible to remove the distinctions between the working class and the peasantry by bringing cooperative property closer to all-people property and turning it into the latter and do away with all the distinctions in labour and lay solid material and technical foundations of communism by highly developing the productive forces and capture the material fortress of communism.

Another reason why the three revolutions are the basic way of building socialism and communism and modelling the whole of society on the chuche idea is that they are a revolutionary way suited to the essential character of the socialist system and the will of the popular masses.

In socialist society, the struggle for liquidating the leftovers of the old society should be waged in such a manner as to educate and remould people and the revolution must be made in such a manner as to remove what is old by creating what is new. Only be carrying on the revolution in the way of the three revolutions for transforming the old and creating the new is it possible to successfully build socialism and communism by strengthening the unity and cohesion of the popular masses and giving full play to their revolutionary zeal and creative ingenuity.

By setting forth the slogan of modelling the whole of society on the chuche idea and dynamically carrying on the ideological, technical and cultural revolutions, our party has occupied the high peak of socialism and opened a bright vista for accelerating the building of the communist society patterned on the chuche idea.

It is our party's unshakable policy to build the communist society which is modelled on the chuche idea along the line of the ideological, technical and cultural revolutions. This policy embodies the principled stand to carry to completion the cause of socialism and communism, the revolutionary cause which was started and has been victoriously guided by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

DAILY PRAISES CHUCHE FARMING METHOD

SK061032 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1019 GMT 6 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 6 Mar (KCNA)--NODONG SINMUN March 5 carried an article titled "Chuche Farming Method Is Scientific and Technical Farming Method."

Pointing out that the great farming method of chuche created by the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a method of doing all farm work on a scientific and technical basis and a method of highly intensive farming, the article says:

It is a most complete scientific method of farming which makes it possible to successfully overcome unfavorable weather conditions and reap a bumper harvest every year. It is because this farming method enables one to do farming on a scientific and technical basis in conformity with the climate of our country.

The chuche farming method ensures a scientific and technical farming in all parts of the country in conformity with the different climatic conditions; it enables all the agricultural guidance organs and cooperative farms to distribute crops and strains and establish a scientific manuring system with meticulous assessment of the climatic conditions and the specific conditions even of each valley.

The chuche farming method helps overcome the lowering of the integral temperature and the shortening of the days needed for the growth of crops due to the late coming of spring and the early coming of winter by means of sowing good seeds nursed through the green revolution, transplanting strong seedlings and applying fertilizers in a scientific way.

The chuche farming method is a most scientific method next because this method makes it possible to do farming in a scientific and technical way in accordance with the biological qualities of crops.

The great farming method of chuche ensures the highest yield per unit by rationally combining manpower with means of production and giving precedence to technical preparations to satisfy the biological demands of all necessary elements such as temperature and nutriment for crops, and thus scientizing the technical process of farming. It expounds in an allround way the scientific cultivating methods to increase the output of crops per unit at maximum such as acquirement of good seeds and distribution of crops and strains on the principles of right drop to right soil and right crop in right season.
The chuche method of farming is a most scientific method also because it is firmly backed by a scientific management method.

The great chuche farming method enables us to thoroughly meet its requirements and enhance the scientific level of management by letting the agricultural guiding personnel and the management officials of cooperative farms always go out to work sites and, working with the farmers, acquaint themselves down to details with actual conditions and solve knotty problems and assigning management to those well versed in scientific farming principles and methods.

By creating the scientific farming method of chuche, the great leader provided us with a most powerful weapon to reap a bumper crop every year, not affected by any natural influence.

JAPANESE FIGURE NOTES DEVELOPMENT UNDER 'RURAL THESES'

SK050810 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0803 GMT 5 Mar 84

[Text] Tokyo, 2 Mar (KNS-KCNA) -- CHOSON SINBO February 25 carried an article titled "The Rural Theses That Has Brought a Rapid Development of Agriculture" written by Kiyoshi Naoi, assistant professor at Teikyo University, Japan, on the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the publication of "Theses on the Socialist Rural Question in our Country", an immortal classic work of the great leader Marshal Kim Il-song.

The author says:

President Kim Il-song put forward a programme of the building of the communist countryside by publishing the rural theses twenty years ago.

This programme propounded by him is, in essence, to highly develop agricultural productivity, make the peasants well off, liquidate the backwardness of the countryside left behind by the exploiter society and eliminate the differences between town and country, the class distinctions between the working class and the peasantry.

The agriculture of the DPRK has made a fast progress since the publication of the rural theses.

The DPRK produced 8 million tons or more grain in 1976, 8.5 million tons in 1977 and 9 million tons in 1979. It continues to record a stable and high-rate growth. The grain output in 1982 was 9.5 million tons.

Per hectare harvest of grain has also shown a leaping growth.

The author points to the fact that Korea has helped tens of developing countries in their agricultural development in the spirit of South-South cooperation.

The experience of Korea in attaining full self-sufficiency in food under the banner of the rural theses is of universal significance, which is worthy of being actively followed by the developing countries, he stresses.

KCNA MARKS AGRICULTURAL WORKING PEOPLE'S DAY

SK051034 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1025 GMT 5 Mar 84

[Text] Pyongyang, 5 Mar (KCNA) -- March 5 is the day of agricultural working people in Korea.

On this day in 1946 the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song promulgated the historic law on agrarian reform.

After the completion of agricultural cooperativization following the agrarian reform, the ideological, technical and cultural revolutions have been successfully promoted in the Korean countryside. As a result, agriculture has made a leaping progress and a radical change taken place in the life of the agricultural working people.

Before liberation, the peasants had to go out to the fields before daybreak and do backbreaking toil, pulling wooden plows and working wornout hoes all day long, and returned home under twinkling starts. This was their daily life.

But, today they do all farm work with the help of machines and chemicals and work with the pride of being the master of the socialist countryside responsible for the granary of the nation.

In the evening the joyous work of the day is followed by diverse cultural life.

Art circles are active in modernly-furnished houses of culture. Families gather to watch TV and hear news from different parts of the country.

Lectures on the chuche method of farming and other technical study are brisk in evening in the agricultural scientific and technical knowledge dissemination rooms well built on all farms.

What is noteworthy in the daily life of the agricultural working people is that they are growing into engineers and assistant engineers under the study-while-working system. For example, all the farmers of eight workteams of the Munjang cooperative farm in Kwaksan County, North Pyongan Province, and some 700 farmers of the Tongnim cooperative farm in Mundok County, South Pyongan Province, make systematic study in evening, all embraced in agricultural colleges.

The heart-revival section of the hospital restored to life a man whose heart stopped beating for 45 minutes and the ophthalmic section brought sight to a man who had been blind for 30 years. A man who could not stand on his feet for 31 years after his birth came to walk after medical treatment there.

Other sections of the hospital have also registered countless successes.

This hospital whose site was chosen personally by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song on the spot after the liberation of the country is located in the eastern district of Pyongyang.

The Korean Red Cross Hospital opened in November 1949. The hospital was razed to the ground in the three year war (June 1950-July 1953), which was provoked by the U.S. imperialists. After the ceasefire it was rehabilitated in a short span of time.

In July 1955 the great leader went to the hospital to cut the tape, announcing its reopening.

He gave on-the-spot guidance many a time to the hospital and gave instructions on scores of occasions, indicating in detail the direction and the way to be followed by the hospital.

The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, upholding the lofty intentions of the great leader, directed the work of the hospital on the spot and gave instructions to it more than one hundred occasions to build it into a leading general hospital of the country and directed deep attention to it.

Thanks to his deep care the hospital has been fully provided with latest medical facilities of hundreds of kinds including the whole sets of equipment of a specialised digestive hospital and equipment of a dental hospital. As a result, the hospital has completely changed its face as a general hospital.
The hospital has now a total floor space of more than 60,000 square metres and 1,700 beds.

At the seminar Jurg Schluer, member of the political bureau of the Swiss progressive organizations and parliamentarian of Berne Canton, made an opening address and then Martin Schwander, director of the World Peace Council and executive member of the Swiss Peace Committee, made a congratulatory speech.

Dario Ghislette, deputy general secretary of the Autonomous Socialist Party of Switzerland and chairman of the Tessin committee of Switzerland for support to the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea, made a report titled "Policy of Korean Reunification Embodying Chajusong."

Ours is an age of chajusong in which the world people are vigorously advancing along the road of independence, he noted, and said: For the Korean people to solve the question of national reunification independently without foreign interference is in full accord with the desire and aspirations of the world people as it most correctly reflects the demands of the present time.
He denounced the U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea and their aggressive manoeuvres.

Stressing that the three principles of national reunification elucidated by the great leader His Excellency President Kim Il-song are a programme of reunification which indicated the most correct way of solving the question of national reunification independently and peacefully by the united efforts of the nation in conformity with its essence, he explained in detail the content and validity of the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederational Republic of Koryo.

Pointing to the consistent efforts of the DPRK Government for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country, he voiced firm support to the proposal for tripartite talks adopted at a joint meeting of the Central People's Committee and the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly of the DPRK and the appeal to the parliaments and governments of all countries of the world which was adopted at the third session of the Seventh Supreme People's Assembly.

The proposal for tripartite talks is an initiative of epochal significance in averting the danger of new war in Korea and actively opening a favorable phase for peace in Korea and her independent and peaceful reunification, he stressed.

Noting that to support the Korean people's cause of national reunification is a common duty of the world's peaceloving people, he said he would render active support and encouragement to the Korean people in their struggle for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

His report was followed by speeches.

In his speech Gilberto Isella, vice-chairman of the Tessin committee of Switzerland for support to the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea, stressed that the proposal for tripartite talks is a new peace proposal and national-salvation measure for fundamentally warding off the danger of war on the Korean peninsula and guaranteeing peace there and for making a breakthrough in a peaceful solution of the question of national reunification.

The United States and the South Korean authorities must give up the "two Koreas" plot and respond without delay to the DPRK proposal for tripartite talks, he said.

The chief of the group for the study of the chuche idea of Latin American students studying in Geneva, Switzerland, emphasized that the respected leader President Kim Il-song has put forward correct lines and policies for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country from the first moment of its division by outside forces and devoted his all to their realization.

He called for more vigorously conducting worldwide solidarity movements for supporting the Korean people's struggle to reunify the country.

A letter to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and a letter to the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il were adopted at the seminar.
