INFORMATION REPORT ON AFGHANISTAN

Comments, Trends, and Developments

The Pakhtunistan Issue and Relations with Pakistan

1. There was no significant change in the treatment of this issue during the month. The government of Pakistan continued to be referred to in news items and editorials as reactionary, imperialist, and aggressive.

2. Both the leading Kabul newspapers Anis and Islah published an editorial on 4 May concerning the communique issued by the CENTO powers in Teheran. On 3 May Foreign Minister Mohammad Na'im, in an interview with a correspondent of the Bakhtar News Agency, stated that he saw no justification in the concern of the CENTO foreign ministers. The CENTO communique had expressed concern and anxiety over the statement by Khrushchev in Moscow concerning the rights of the Pakhtun people for freedom. Perhaps a significant point raised by the Afghan foreign minister in his statement was that still some of the "Afghan" people are under the yoke of foreign domination and that the Soviet leader had recognized and stressed their right for self-determination and freedom. It would have been more appropriate, stated Mohammad Na'im, if the CENTO minister had expressed anxiety over the aggressive and cruel attitude of Pakistan toward the Pakhtun people. The above-mentioned editorials expressed concern that the CENTO minister have overlooked the rights of seven million Pakhtuns in favor of the "aggressive Pakistan". The newspaper Anis published a summary of comments and editorials on 5 May by other newspapers on the same lines.

3. The newspaper Anis reported on 11 May that a conference was organized on May 10 at the public library in Kabul where a number of talks and papers were delivered by the teachers and intellectuals in the area concerning Pakhtunistan and the concept of freedom.

4. The Afghan Minister of Commerce, Cholam Mohammad Shirzad, gave an interview to a correspondent of the Pakhtun News Agency on 12 May (Islah 14 May) in which he stated that the Afghan importers are concerned and have been complaining about the increasing transit difficulties and obstacles created by Pakistan with regard to the Afghan transit goods. The Afghan minister further stated that these difficulties have brought great losses to the Afghan business circles. The government of Pakistan, added the Afghan minister, treats the existing transit treaty between the two countries merely as a scrap of paper. The Afghan transit goods are subjected to several taxes and charges which are clearly contrary to the provisions of the treaty; for example, Afghan goods are subject to sales tax, customs duty and charges, refugee tax, and so forth. The Afghan minister further said: the government of Pakistan, on the one hand, does not permit the storage of the Afghan transit goods in the warehouses more than 24 hours, and, on the other hand, the Pakistan railways fail to provide transportation for the Afghan goods for long periods. Thus the goods are left unprotected at the port of Karachi for weeks or months resulting in their deterioration and loss. This situation has already brought serious consequences for the Afghan economy. In addition, the Afghan goods are often lost on their way crossing Pakistan. The government of Afghanistan, concluded Mohammad Shirzad, has frequently protested against this situation through the diplomatic channels but the conditions have not improved. The newspapers Islah and Anis published editorials on this subject on 15 May calling the attitude of Pakistan hostile and guided by unrealistic and bad tactics. Other newspapers in the capital carried editorials condemning Pakistan for these difficulties, reported Anis on 16 May.

5. The highlight of the activities during the month was a gathering of six thousand Pakhtuns (according to the Bakhtar News Agency) in Jalalabad, Nangarhar Major Province, to seek the support of Afghanistan for their struggle for freedom against the atrocities and oppressions from Pakistan. The gathering consisting of the leaders and members of the Salarzi, Atmanjil, and other tribes from the central and northern Pakhtunistan met with the governor of Nangarhar Major Province, Mohammad 'Osman in Jalalabad. The governor assured the gathering that the Afghans will stand by their Pakhtu brothers through life and death and would not rest until the Pakhtu nation has obtained its aspirations. The governor also promised to convey the sentiments and demands of the Pakhtuns to King Zahir and to Premier Mohammad Daud. The following tribal leaders were among those who spoke at the meeting: Mula Ahmad, Mula Mir Hasan Shah, Majid Khan 'Ali Shirzi, Mohammad Yusef Khodadad Khalil, Malek Heydar Khan, Mohammad-Zi, and others.

The newspaper Anis which carried the above report on 25 May published an editorial on the same day asserting that as long as Afghanistan exists it will struggle to achieve the aspirations of the Pakhtun people for self determination. Afghanistan will spare no effort to help its Pakhtu brothers toward their goal, concluded the editorial. The Herat newspaper Ittefaq-i-Islam stated in an editorial of 27 May that the Afghans and Pakhtuns will not rest until Pakhtunistan has obtained complete freedom from the oppressive yoke of Pakistan.

6. The Afghan newspapers expressed indignation and disgust at a recent ruling of a court in Lahore, Pakistan, forbidding Khan 'Abd-al-Chafar Khan from participating in any political activity for a period of six years. The Khan is an influential tribal leader in North Western Province and has been the leader of Pakhtu separatist movement within Pakistan. He has close ties with the Afghan leaders. The newspaper Anis stated in its editorial of 22 May that the action of the government of Pakistan constitutes the hardest blow against the Pakhtun people and their leader. Such actions, however, cannot suffocate the freedom movement of the Pakhtun people, stated the paper. The newspaper ittefaq-i-Islam of Herat called the ruling an illegal action of the reactionary and imperialist government of Pakistan in its editorial of 25 May.

7. In an editorial commemorating the forty-second anniversary of the independence of Afghanistan the newspaper Anis stated on 26 May that since the imposition of the Durand Line which artificially and unnaturally separated the Pakhtuns from their Afghan brothers, the former have had no rest and have continued fighting for their national sovereignty and self determination. [Durand Line was the outcome of the agreement of 1893 between Sir Mortimer Durand on behalf of the British government and Amir 'Abd-al-Rahman of Afghanistan defining the boundary between Afghanistan and India].

8. The Faizabad newspaper Badakhshan of 28 April carried a news item reported by the Afghan Bakhtar News Agency saying that anonymous pamphlets are being distributed throughout the Pakhtun regions of Pakistan inviting the Pakhtun people to prepare for a general uprising against Pakistan.

9. The Herat newspaper Ittefaq-i-Islam of 24 April reported that King Zahir, other members of the royal family, and government officials attended a memorial service held at a mosque in Kabul after the death of the leader of the Central Pakhtunistan Haj Mirza 'Ali Khan.

Relations with the Communist Bloc:

1. Premier Mohammad Daud continued his tour of the USSR until he returned to Kabul on 22 May (see JPRS report 3627, August 1960). During his stay in the Soviet Union, he had interviews with Khrushchev and the new chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet, Leonid Brezhnev (Anis, 15 and 21 May). The newspaper Anis reported on 23 May that the Premier's stay in the USSR was for medical check up and rest. It is recalled that the premier stopped in the USSR on his way back from Vienna where he had spent some time in a hospital.

2. The newspaper Anis reported on 10 May that the Soviet Minister of Geology and Mines, Antropov, arrived in Kabul on 9 May to start negotiations concerning oil and other minerals with the Afghan officials. The Afghan Minister of Mines and Industries, Mohammad Yusef, and the directors of mines and petroleum surveys received the Soviet official at the Bagram Airport in Kabul. On 10 May the Soviet minister called on King Zahir, Foreign Minister Mohammad Na'in, Minister of Mines and Industries Mohammad Yusef, and inspected the various departments of the Afghan Geological Organization in Kabul. On 11 May the Soviet minister flew to Mazar-i-Sharif and inspected the petroleum surveys in the province and conferred with the Russian experts working in this area. A series of parties and receptions were given in honor of the Soviet official during his seven day stay in Afghanistan; these included parties given by Minister of Mines and Industries Mohammad Yusef and the Soviet ambassador. The Soviet minister and his companions left for Moscow on 16 May (Anis, 17 May).

3. Members of the Afghan good-will delegation arrived in Moscow on 30 April (Anis, 1 May - see JPRS report 3627, August 1960). Members of the delegation returned to Kabul on 14 May (Anis, 14 May). No details of the visit were published by the local papers. On 28 May (Anis, 30 May) a counselor of the Soviet embassy in Kabul gave a party in honor of the Afghan delegation and showed a film of the visit of the Afghan parliamentary delegation to the USSR last year. On 30 May (Anis, 31 May) members of the delegation held a conference at Kabul Cinema where Chief of the delegation Gol-Pacha Olfat and Deputy Director of the Independent Department of Press Salimi gave talks on their visit to the USSR.

5. The newspaper Anis reported on 11 May that a delegation of Afghan performers has been invited to visit the Soviet Union. The delegation will consist of 16 members, headed by the director of the Art Academy, Rashid Latifi. The director of music of Radio Kabul, Kheyal, would be in charge of the technical affairs of the delegation. On 31 May the newspaper Anis published an interview with Kheyal who gave the following additional information concerning the delegation: there will be eight instrumentalists and six singers with Kheyal as the technical director and Bisad as the announcer. The singers are Mir Salam Khusti, Awwal Mir, Nasim, Ya'qub Qasmi, and Khaland [the missing names not given in the paper]. The instrumentalists are Ostad Mohammad, Mohammad Salim Sarmast, Mir Zia'ul Haq Harawi, 'Abd-al-Majid, 'Abd-al-Rehim, Gol 'Alam, and Malang Najrahi. The delegation will visit the Tadzhik, Uzbek, and other Soviet republics and will stage native Afghan songs and music.
6. The newspaper Anis reported on 6 May that work on the construction of the Khaja Rawash Airport by the Soviet Avtoeksport organization is progressing well. Thus far, 2,300 meters of leveling and 650 meters of paving of the two runways has been completed (see also the Economic section of this report).

7. On 11 May a branch of the Soviet-Afghan Friendship and Cultural Society was opened in Stalinabad, capital of the Tadzhik SSR, reported Anis on 13 May. The well-known Tadzhik writer Alwagh-Zada was elected the president of the society in Stalinabad. Members of the Afghan good-will delegation visiting the USSR (see above) were present at the opening ceremony and Mohammad Arsalan Salimi of the Afghan delegation spoke on the ties of friendship between the USSR and Afghanistan. The Afghan delegation went to Tashkent after the visit in Stalinabad.

8. The newspaper Islah published an editorial on 17 May praising the Soviet Union for its achievements in making flight into space and man in the moon from mystery into reality. The editorial claimed that the latest Soviet satellite launched on 15 May was a prelude to flying man into space and to other planets. The Soviet scientists ought to be congratulated for their great achievements, said the paper. The editorial further stated: at present only two powers have access to the space but there is no reason to dismiss the possibility of other powers joining them in the future. The question that is even bothering the United Nations circles concerns the military utilization of the space. Unless there is complete accord between the two powers controlling the space, there will be catastrophe for the world.

9. The Soviet ambassador in Kabul, acting as the dean of the diplomatic corps, called on King Zahir on the occasion of the forty-second anniversary of the Afghan independence and offered the greetings of the diplomatic mission (Anis, 23 May).

10. The Feyzabad newspaper Badakhshan reported on 29 May that the Moscow, Stalinabad, and Tashkent radios as well as the Voice of America broadcast special programs beamed to Afghanistan to commemorate the forty-second anniversary of the Afghan independence. Madam Jamila Tajiva, president of the Uzbek SSR Friendship Society with Foreign Nations, sent a message to the head of the Afghan-Soviet Friendship Society, Gol-Pacha Olfat, on the occasion of the Afghan independence anniversary (Anis, 30 May). The newspaper Anis reported on 30 May that the Moscow newspapers published editorials on the occasion of the Afghan anniversary.

11. King Zahir sent a message to Leonid Brezhnev on his election as the chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet (Anis, 10 May). King Zahir has approved the appointment of S. F. Antonov as the new Soviet ambassador to Kabul (Anis, 29 May).
12. The tour of the Soviet performers in Afghanistan continued through May 7 (Anis, 2-8 May - see JPRS report 3627, August 1960). On May 1 the Art Academy in Kabul gave a concert in honor of the visiting Soviet performers. On the following day the same academy gave a luncheon in honor of the visitors. On 3 May the director of the Independent Department of Press, Dr. Mohammad Aasef Soheyl, gave a party for the Soviet visitors at Hotel Kabul; the Soviet ambassador and members of his embassy attended. On 5 May at another reception at Hotel Kabul Dr. Soheyl presented Afghan handicraft art objects to the members of the Soviet art delegation and thanked them for their performances. The Soviet ambassador gave a farewell party for the performers on 6 May in Kabul; Dr. Soheyl and others attended. On the whole the reception given to this group of Soviet performers was more elaborate and more enthusiastic to the American and German groups who visited recently.

13. Marshal Voroshilov was among the heads of states who sent a message to King Zahir on the occasion of the death of Prince Aman-Allah Khan in Zurich (see JPRS report 3627, August 1960).

14. The newspapers Islah and Anis published editorials on 9 May commemorating the national day of Czechoslovakia. Both the papers published portraits of the Czech president and called Czechoslovakia one of the most developed and industrialized states in Europe. The papers recalled the ties of friendship and economic and technical cooperation between Czechoslovakia and Afghanistan. King Zahir, reported Anis on 10 May, sent a message to the president of Czechoslovakia on this occasion. The Czech minister in Kabul gave a party which was attended by Prince Marshal Shah Wali Khan and the cabinet ministers and others. Treatment of the International Topics

1. The U-2 incident received full publicity and comments by the Afghan press. Prior to the incident and the break-down of the summit conference in Paris, the papers had built up much hope, and the break-down was, of course, much of a disappointment. While the local papers tried to be impartial in reporting the Paris events, after reading the editorials and reports, one would get the general impression that the United States was responsible for the break-down. In the meantime official comments protested against the United States for "illegal flights" over the territories of Afghanistan.

2. The newspaper Anis reported on 7 May that the American plane was shot down by a new Russian "prodigious" rocket.

3. The newspaper Anis stated in its editorial of 11 May that the flight of an American plane within the Soviet territories has unfortunately caused strain and tension in the US-Soviet relations. Some commentators including the British believe that this action at such a critical time was unfortunate and is bound to produce negative reactions. The same newspaper in its editorial of May 12 entitled "The Aggression of the American Plane" stated that according to the statement by Khrushchev the American plane has also crossed the Afghan territories. This constitutes an aggression on our national territories and an aggression against a world power through our land with its unpleasant consequences.

4. The newspapers published the text of the statement by Khrushchev at the Supreme Soviet concerning the U-2 plane and reproduced the photographs of the equipment carried by the pilot. In its editorial of May 17 the newspaper Anis stated that the factor that created a cold and restrained atmosphere for the summit conference in Paris is the aggression of the American plane in the Soviet territories.

5. Afghan Foreign Minister Mohammad Na'im gave an interview to the correspondent of the Tass in Kabul on 11 May (Anis, 12 May) and answered questions concerning the U-2 incident. The Afghan foreign minister stated that the incident need not cause any anxiety concerning the friendly ties between the USSR and Afghanistan. The aggression of the American plane was contrary to any accepted international procedure. The government of Afghanistan expects to collect all the necessary information concerning this aggression and then it will lodge earnest protests.
against the United States and Pakistan. We believe that such aggressive actions as interpreted by the United States cannot help strengthen the peace: on the contrary, they cause most unpleasant and undesirable consequences. It would be difficult for a country to know whether a plane overhead is taking pictures or is carrying hydrogen bombs. Continuation of such aggressive acts will promote the danger of a war.

The newspaper Isleb reported the official protest of Afghanistan to the United States and Pakistan on 19 May and published an editorial saying that the incident was a result of military pacts and blocks which Afghanistan had condemned in the past. The Feyzabad newspaper Badakshan reported on 21 May that all the newspapers in the capital and the provinces have supported the Afghan protests against the United States and Pakistan.

6. The excitement over the U-2 flight and the break-down of the summit conference put the topic of the racial problems in Africa somewhat in the shadow. The newspaper Isleb, however, published an editorial on 10 May concerning the racial problems confronting the British Commonwealth conference in London. Other articles on this problem were published by both Isleb and Anis.

7. In an editorial concerning the refusal of the dock workers in New York to unload the Egyptian ships, the newspaper Anis stated on 2 May that the action of the dock workers was instigated by the Zionists. The editorial further said that "the Jews in the heart of the Arab world are like a dagger which will cause disturbances and uneasiness in the Middle East while they are there. Furthermore, the regime of the Israeli government is an aggressive regime as it was proven in the attack against Egypt in 1956". The same newspaper published an editorial on 15 May to commemorate the formation of Israel and stated that the state of Israel was aggressive and had caused great catastrophes to the world.
