Spreading Democracy: America's Obligation?
INTRODUCTION

This Special Bibliography Series, Number 103. "Spreading Democracy: America’s Obligation?" was developed by the McDermott Library’s Social Sciences Bibliographer and Reference Librarian, Frances K. Scott in support of the 47th annual Academy Assembly to be held at the United States Air Force Academy, 8 – 11 February 2005.

Within this year’s topic the bibliography begins with the moral/philosophical-level questions on whether democratization is possible in all regions, if it is necessary for peace and for free-market societies and if it is a suitable goal for US foreign policy. From there the bibliography moves to the practical level and explores how such a goal is/should be incorporated in US foreign policy, what the proper organizational, force and policy structure should be to meet such a goal, what role public opinion, political culture and domestic politics have in determining how we carry out such an objective and what role other countries, NGOs and IGOs should play. Finally, the bibliography also addresses the specific role of the military in a democratization role and explores civil-military relations in this light. All items cited in the bibliography are included in the McDermott’s Library’s collections.

If you are a participant in this year’s Academy Assembly, the Academy’s oldest continuing annual event, we welcome you to your United States Air Force Academy. We hope that your stay in the Colorado Springs area will be rewarding and enjoyable and that you find this year’s topic intellectually challenging.

We are pleased to make this bibliography available to other libraries free of charge as part of the Academy’s gifts and exchanges program. Libraries wishing to receive this bibliography or to be on the permanent mailing list for future bibliographies should write to:
